

Greeks Retreat Before German Onslaught; British Stand Off Waves of Axis Tanks At Mount Olympus Despite Threat of Trap

U.S. Production To Exceed Any 2 Other Nations

Knudsen Tells Senate Group This Country Hasn't Started.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
WASHINGTON, April 17.—The senate defense investigating committee heard today that when the United States "gets going" it can turn out armament as fast as any two European countries, even though housewives may have to make their aluminum pots and pans last longer in order to accomplish that objective.

Big, soft-spoken William S. Knudsen, defense production chief, told the senators that as soon as the nation's facilities get in high gear they would be manufacturing war equipment as rapidly as "any two countries in Europe you could mention"—including Germany.

Shortages Threaten.

Previously, ruddy-faced Frank Knox, secretary of the Navy, had said there were threatened shortages in such things as aluminum, structural steel, steel forgings and magnesium. The Office for Production Management has already placed aluminum and some other products under a priority system, which restricts their use for civilian purposes.

Both Knox and Knudsen outlined the work of their respective agencies in connection with the defense program.

Knudsen described the Office of Production Management, of which he is co-director, as an "expediting agency," whose primary responsibility is to see that a $10 fellow doesn't get a million-dollar job. Knox said the Navy might have made some mistakes in costs and methods, but it was not going to make the mistake of failing to have a two-ocean fleet ready "at the earliest possible moment."

No Comparison.

Chairman Truman, Democrat, Missouri, asked Knudsen whether he thought the United States could equal the productive capacity of Germany.

"We've got much more productive capacity than that," the OPM chiefman replied. "We've got more than any two countries in Europe you can mention. There is no comparison there."

"You think we could supply the whole world with armaments?" Truman queried.

"I don't know about the whole world," was Knudsen's reply, "but we can take on any two of them after we get started."

He amplified this a moment later when a committee member asked if Germany was "gaining" on the United States in production.

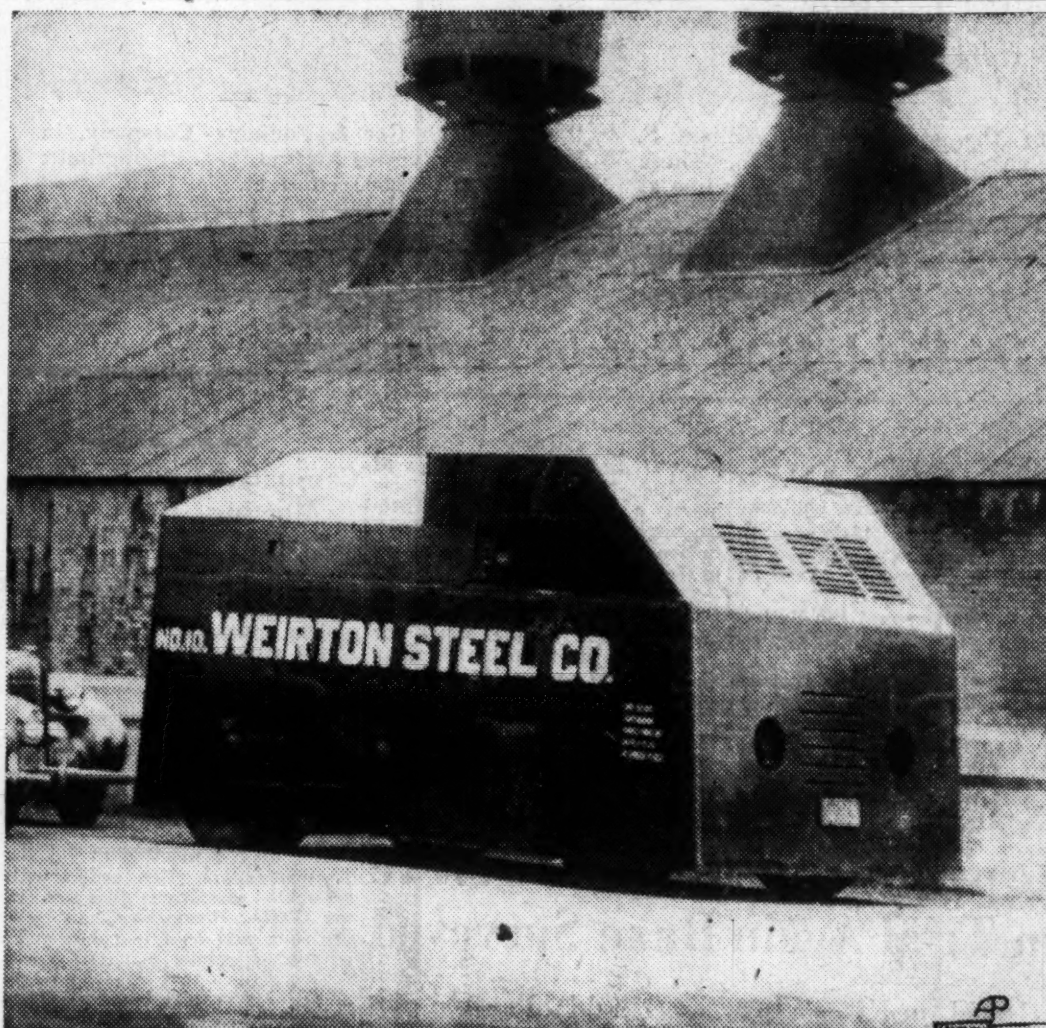

"We haven't got started yet," Knudsen said, grinning, "so what do you mean 'gaining'?"

In another defense development the House Naval Committee decided tentatively to broaden a bill calling for a 30-day cooling off period before strikes could occur on naval defense jobs to make it apply to all defense labor disputes.

The amendment, sponsored by Chairman Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, was adopted without formal objection as the committee prepared to send the legislation to the house for debate.

PROTECTION—When employees inquired if the plants of the Weirton Steel Company of Weirton, W. Va., would remain open, company officials placed armored cars at the gates for "protection," the company said. The CIO, however, called the move one of "intimidation." Plant officials said there are reports "outsiders" will attempt to close the plants. (Story on Page 13.)

U. S. Transfers Four Fast New Cargo Ships to Great Britain

at Once Under Lend-Lease Program;

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP)—The United States started making good today on President Roosevelt's promise to provide Great Britain with sorely needed cargo ships by transferring four new, high-speed freighters. All are fast enough to outrun a submarine.

U. S. To Form Nation-Wide Aircraft Alarm

500,000, Mostly Women,
Enemy Planes.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP)—Immediate formation of a nationwide aircraft warning service to include 500,000 or more volunteer civilian observers was announced today by the War Department.

Termed "minute men," the observers are to co-operate with the Army Air Corps in warning of the approach of enemy aircraft in wartime, in a manner similar to practices in European belligerent countries.

General George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, told his press conference the warning system was "very much" like that of Great Britain and that most of the observers probably would be women.

The War Department termed the move "another step in real preparedness for a possible emergency."

"It is being taken now in recognition of the fact that the active co-operation and collaboration of the general public are essential in the air phase of defense," it was added.

The volunteer corps will apply on a national basis experiments with aircraft warning networks carried out regionally by the Army for several years. Methods used abroad as reported by American officers were also taken into consideration.

Organization is to start immediately, under direction of Lieutenant General Delos C. Emmons, commander of the General Headquarters Air Force.

The Army estimated that between 500,000 and 800,000 civilians would be enrolled by the end of August. They will be affiliated with the interceptor commands of each air force.

Plans Complete For Halifax's Visit to Atlanta

Day Planned To Give Visiting Dignitary
Maximum of Enjoyment.

A kindred nation, desperately embattled at home and on two sides of the Mediterranean to prevent a catastrophe which might swiftly engulf the Western Hemisphere, will send its highest ranking foreign representative to Atlanta next Friday to speak as freely as usage will permit of Anglo-Saxon ties and democratic ideals.

Lord Halifax, who continues as a member of the British cabinet while serving as ambassador to this country, will come here with Lady Halifax and attaches of the embassy to spend the day in friendly fashion and to deliver a formal address that night, the third since his appointment to Washington.

He will be the guest of the Atlanta Bar Association and other civic organizations. The exact nature of his pronouncement will not be known in advance, but observers, following hour by hour the fateful developments in the Greek peninsula and in Libya, see a strong possibility that his utterances will prove historic.

Tall, imperious, a close associate of Chamberlain, yet a key figure in the subsequent Churchill government, Lord Halifax has been in immediate touch with the developing international scene since Hitler's emergence as a prime power. No man, it is said, if he chose to speak freely, could give in greater detail the events of these crucial years.

The day in Atlanta has been planned to give the guests a maximum of enjoyment and the city full opportunity to meet them.

Immediately after their arrival in the morning both the ambassador and his lady will hold press conferences at the Henry Grady hotel. This possibly may be made the occasion or "springboard" for a statement of vast importance, or it may bring forth nothing more than a "good morning" to the city.

Administration Auto Industry Plans Mammoth To Cut Output Tax Program 20 Per Cent

General Sales Levy Considered Possible in $3,500,000,000 Plan.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
WASHINGTON, April 17.—A tremendous new tax program designed to add $3,500,000,000 to the government's annual income, perhaps by increasing virtually all present tax rates and assessing new levies as well, was proposed by the administration today—with both Republican and Democratic leaders approving.

Details of the program remained to be worked out, but Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau was authoritatively reported to have advocated raising all present tax rates—income, excess profits, excise, etc.—from 25 to 50 per cent higher than existing levels. The present individual income tax rate is 4.4 per cent; the corporation income tax is 24 per cent.

New Taxes Suggested.
In addition to boosts, "all along the line," the Treasury plan was said also to include several additional excise taxes, such as levies on washing machines, radios and other so-called luxury objects not now taxed.

Whether the Treasury program is adopted in detail, most sources considered that a big jump in the income tax levies, possibly accompanied by a reduction in exemptions, was a foregone conclusion. Increases in the liquor and other excise taxes, in the excess profits tax and in the estate and gift taxes were considered likely too.

Although one source said the Treasury plan did not include a general sales tax, others indicated such a possibility could not be ruled out definitely, however much this method of taxation has been frowned upon by the administration in the past.

Approved by President.
Explaining that President Roosevelt had already approved the idea of raising $3,500,000,000 of new taxes, and would soon discuss the subject with the people, Secretary Morgenthau outlined the plan to leading members of the house and senate committees in charge of taxes at a comparatively early morning meeting in his Treasury office.

With the vast contemplated expenditures for defense and assistance to England, it was expected that the government would spend $19,000,000,000 in the fiscal year that begins on July 1. It was thought best that at least two-thirds of this amount be raised by taxes, in other words, that the levies should be revised upward to yield $12,667,000,000 instead of the present $9,223,000,000. To cover the $6,333,000,000 remainder, the government would resort to borrowing.

Check Upon Inflation.
Morgenthau said the program was desirable, not only from the point of view of diminishing the broad gap between income and outgo, but as a check on inflationary price tendencies.

The possibility of a general sales tax entered the scheme at that point. The administration has opposed it in the past because it believed it would cut into the available purchasing money, might seriously retard recovery from the depression. Whether a reversal of the economic situation had reversed administration thinking on that point remained, however, to be seen.

In addition to other means of revenue raising, there also has been talk of a pay roll levy, a system under which employers would withhold certain percentages of wages and turn the money over to the government.

After the congressional visitors had left the Treasury Morgenthau simply announced that "the combined Democratic and Republican leadership of the senate and the house gave unanimous approval to this program."

Knudsen Requests Move To Prevent Slow-Down in Defense.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
WASHINGTON, April 17.—The automobile industry agreed today to cut its production next year 20 per cent in order to increase its output of armaments.

William S. Knudsen, director of the Office of Production Management, announced the agreement in a terse, three-sentence statement. The action was taken at his request and will result in a limitation of about 4,160,000 on the number of passenger cars and trucks to be produced in the model year beginning August 1.

Knudsen said he called the representatives of the industry "to consider the growing defense production job that faces us" and they accepted the reduction "willingly."

Questions of the agreement's effect on automobile prices were raised immediately and officials of the office of price control said that study has been given to prices, costs and profit relations in the industry.

Interest in Materials.
It was learned, however, that price officials are not interested in automobile prices to the extent that they are in those of raw materials which enter into the defense program. Maximum price schedules already issued have dealt with steel, coal and other commodities which have a direct bearing on defense production. For this reason, in some quarters it was thought unlikely that any action would be taken immediately looking toward attempted control of automobile prices.

Latest available figures show that automobile production in 1939 totaled 3,732,718 units, of which 2,975,165 were passenger cars and 757,553 were trucks.

Estimated Figure.
Output for 1941 has been estimated at 5,200,000, a 20 per cent reduction of that figure would place the limit for next year at 4,160,000. Knudsen said that the reduction would amount to "approximately 1,000,000 units."

The automobile industry is the nation's largest consumer of steel, gasoline, rubber, plate glass, nickel and lead.

Prospective savings for the defense program are indicated by the fact that the industry uses 49 per cent of all strip steel produced in this country, 33 per cent of all steel bars, 44 per cent of all steel sheets, 51 per cent of all malleable iron and 55 per cent of all alloy steel.

Hundreds Captured By Allies in Fierce Encounter at Tobruk

Two of Hitler's Divisions Reported Annihilated When Australians Hold Firm to Their Positions.

German panzer units yesterday thundered southward of Mount Olympus, where the Allied right wing, composed of Australian veterans, held its own.

Greeks admitted their sectors were giving away before the Nazis, but said that the enemy had suffered heavy losses in mass attacks on the Allied line. On the Albanian front the tired and outnumbered Greek soldiers fell back before Axis armies.

In Berlin it was officially announced that Yugoslavia had surrendered after 12 days of blitz war, the latest victim of Hitler's machine.

The Army of the Nile appeared to be holding more than its own in Africa, announcing the capture of hundreds of Axis prisoners in desert fighting.

Tobruk Holds Against Axis

CAIRO, Egypt, April 17.—(AP)—Defenders of the British garrison at Tobruk, fighting bitterly against mechanized Axis forces, captured 25 officers and hundreds of men and destroyed 20 tanks while British naval units shelled Fort Capuzzo, near the Egyptian frontier, it was announced officially tonight.

The British Middle East headquarters said a British patrol had successfully penetrated enemy positions outside Tobruk and had captured seven Italian officers and 139 men in a single phase of yesterday's operations. Axis dead during the day were placed above 200.

Officers said that an Axis attack on Tobruk was repulsed by artillery fire, while patrol activity continued at a high pitch in the Salum, Egypt, area and further progress was made by troops pushing on in Ethiopia. In Addis Ababa, 5,000 Italians and 4,000 of their colonial troops already are prisoners.

The work of the Tobruk defenders, the British said, brought to at least 1,500 the number of German casualties, wounded and prisoners, in the desert campaign and increased the number of tanks destroyed to 3. The British losses were reported to be light.

Greek Army Falling Back

By The United Press.
ATHENS, Friday, April 18.—The Greek army has "undergone reverses" under the smashing German blitzkrieg and is falling back under a driving Nazi advance toward the heart of Greece, it was admitted today in an official statement appealing to the Greek people to avoid panic.

(British and Imperial troops, however, hurled back wave after wave of German infantry surging forward in almost non-stop attacks on Mount Olympus, the Associated Press said.)

"The Greek army along the Allied line, fighting under 'adverse conditions,'" was said in the official statement to be retiring under the blows of vastly reinforced German blitzkrieg forces.

"The enemy advance continues despite the stubborn resistance of our troops and the heroic efforts of the British forces," it was said.

(The statement indicated that the German Panzer forces might have cut through to the south toward Larissa in an encirclement drive to trap the British army.)

(A British-relayed Greek radio broadcast heard in New York said the Germans had advanced to within "several miles" of Larissa, 40 miles

ON THE ALLIED FRONT, IN GREECE, April 16. (10 p. m.) (Delayed). — Germany's crack blitzkrieg troops are being mowed down in a mass slaughter before the British-Greek lines which they are attempting a smash in great sledgehammer blows.

The battle is raging along the curving Allied front on a scale equaling in fury anything ever seen in last year's German blitzkrieg on the western front.

Into the gigantic struggle the German high command has thrown at least three "Panzer" divisions as well as picked Austrian Alpine mountain troops and brigades of youthful Hitler storm-troopers known as "blitzmen."

The Germans are being thrown into the battle without any apparent regard for the staggering losses inflicted upon them by the British and Greek armies.

It is the same German strategy of slashing, knife attacks which I observed on the western front in the Battle of France.

Battle-hardened British, Australian and New Zealand troops, sun-leathered veterans of the shattering of the Italian army in north Africa, are leaping into the struggle against the Germans with whooping enthusiasm.

They have inflicted tremendous casualties upon the Germans, holding all mountain passes protecting their section of the Allied line, according to my latest information.

A rectification of the Allied line is envisaged eventually, however, owing to the lightning German advance to south of Grevena. (This indicated that McMillan was with the British in or near the Mount Olympus sector on the eastern hinge of the Anglo-Greek line.

(The Greeks have announced the German push down through Grevena toward the key rail head of Kalabaka, which is 50 miles southwest of Mount Olympus.)

Club, Church Leader Dies In East Point

Mrs. Van Norden Was Mother of Atlanta Journal Press Foreman.

Mrs. Elizabeth Van Norden, pioneer citizen of East Point and mother of E. A. Van Norden, foreman of the Atlanta Journal press room, died Wednesday at her home, 109 Dunlap street, East Point. She was 63.

Born in Elberton, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Barfield, Mrs. Van Norden came to East Point in 1904. Her husband was the late Edwin H. Van Norden.

She was a charter member of St. John's Episcopal church, treasurer of the East Point Woman's Club for 15 years and mother matron of the Fulton Chapter, Order of Eastern Star.

Surviving in addition to her son are two sisters, Misses Lila and Dollie Barfield; a brother, Claude Barfield; three grandchildren, Marie Lois and Philip Van Norden, and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Isora Barfield.

Funeral services will be conducted at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon from St. John's church, with the Rev. Woolsey E. Couch officiating. Burial will be in West View cemetery, with H. M. Patterson & Son in charge.

'Just a Sample,' Nazis Boast Of Raid; RAF Bombs Berlin

BERLIN, Friday, April 18.—(UP)—The Royal Air Force raided Berlin during the night, 24 hours after the Germans had subjected London to the greatest aerial bombardment of the war in reprisal for an earlier attack on the German capital.

A communique said the British bombers caused fires in residential districts and again damaged "cultural objects"—the same accusation as that laid against Britain in connection with the previous assault on Berlin.

The official announcement of the British attack on Berlin said the "weak forces" of the Royal Air Force flew over north Germany and several planes penetrated Berlin's air raid defense.

It said five British planes were shot down.

Ex-East Point Proposed Site Deputy Goes For Moultrie On Trial Again Base Surveyed Herb Eidson Faces Flogging Charge After Mistrial.

Herb Eidson, former East Point deputy sheriff, went on trial a second time in Fulton superior court yesterday charged with three counts of flogging, or attempted flogging. First trial ended in a mistrial.

Chief state witness was S. W. Jones, of Forest Park, who testified he was taken to East Point by a gang of night riders and whipped with a pair of straps after members of the flogging crew had forced him to remove most of his clothing.

Other state witnesses included L. G. Rainwater, of a Washington street address, who said he was picked up by a gang, taken for a ride and warned to mend his ways. He claimed he talked his abductors out of whipping him.

James W. Wilks, of East Point, told the jury how he was kidnapped, fought off his abductors, ran and eluded them.

Engineers and a crew from the Southern Engineering & Architectural Company, of Jacksonville, yesterday began a topographical survey of the proposed site for an Army air base southeast of Moultrie.

Wylie W. Gillespie, engineer in charge, said six field parties would work on the project. The proposed base site includes 1,600 acres.

Findings of the survey are to be reported to Army engineers in Washington by May 1, Gillespie said.

Moultrie officials have made no announcement concerning definite location of the air base, declaring they were waiting further information from the Air Corps regional headquarters in Montgomery, Ala.

Georgia Negro Teachers Seek Higher Salaries

Campaign Will Begin at Meeting Here on May 4.

A campaign for higher state salary schedules for Negro teachers will be advanced in a meeting of Negro educators here May 4.

The drive began in Augusta at the annual convention of the Georgia Teachers' Education Association, which discussed at length a United States supreme court decision that a Norfolk (Va.) salary differential between white and Negro teachers was unconstitutional.

The May 4 meeting at Booker T. Washington High school will assemble executive directors of the GTEA, President C. L. Harper said, and lead to conferences with state school officials.

"We realize that all school salaries have been a matter of economics in recent years in Georgia," Harper said, "but feel that certainly there should be a beginning toward higher salaries for Negroes when the next school term opens."

The state differential is $80 top for white teachers and $60 top for Negro teachers, both of whom must have had four years' college training.

Harper said the GTEA would seek "the start of increases" by conferences with state officials and added "but if we can't get it in that way, it will be taken to the courts."

'Dead' Appear In Tobruk After Escaping Nazis

Unarmed Soldier Hid in Hut While Germans Searched It.

By JAN YINDRICH.
Copyright, 1941, by United Press.
TOBRUK, Libya, April 11.—(Via Cairo, Delayed) — Men thought dead or captured when the British forces withdrew from Benghazi across the Jebel Akhdar still were turning up here today with thrilling stories of their escapes and ordeals.
They told almost unbelievable stories of suffering and heroism, but each story was an example of the indomitable spirit of retreating men who kept fighting even in the face of an unexpected German breakthrough.
A 34-year-old former bus driver from Glasgow told me from his hospital bed today how he escaped—the only one of a party of 50 which left Derna to reach the British lines.

Forced to Burn Trucks.
"Fifty of us left Derna in trucks but ran into the Germans, who opened fire immediately," he said. "We made for the desert, hoping to circle and regain the road farther down the way. Gullies which we encountered, however, were too deep for us and we had to burn our trucks and continue afoot."

"Men kept dropping out from exhaustion or sickness caused by drinking brackish water. Soon only 19 of us were left."

"The first ray of help was an army co-operation plane which dropped us a map and a message directing us to a coastal rendezvous. We had no weapons, as all had been lost when the Germans bombed our trucks shortly before we abandoned them."

"After walking for two nights, and snatching a little sleep during the day, we found a hut near the coast and entered it seeking water. There was nothing to drink but we did find some tinned meat which had been left there by the Italians. While we were eating we saw an automobile coming down the path to the hut. The car carried a German officer wearing a sailor's hat and five other men. The officer had a revolver in his hand."

Hides in Hut.

"The automobile passed the hut but we took no chances and immediately made a dash for it. I saw a hole in the floor of the hut, which evidently had been made by former Italian occupants, and dropped down into it. It was an entrance into a tunnel but the tunnel was blocked. I sat in the hole, making myself as small as possible, and, as I had expected, the Germans soon returned to the hut. The officer looked down into the hole twice but did not see me. I could hear the other Germans chasing my comrades across the sand dunes, firing their revolvers."

"I crept out of the hole after a time and saw the German automobile still parked near the hut. There was no one in sight, however, and I crept out and reached the seashore taking an opposite direction from the flight of my comrades."

"After walking for some time I saw a naval vessel lights in the darkness. I lit matches and waved a burning cigaret as a signal. Soon a boat approached me and when I shouted in English a sailor answered: 'It's all right!' So I got to a British warship which brought me here. If I had only had a rifle I could have wiped out that party of Germans."

The former bus driver was suffering from neurosis and exhaustion but physicians said he soon would be fit for duty.

A curly-haired, 20-year-old former London truck driver told me how he trekked along the desert from 1 p. m. Monday until 8:30 a. m. Wednesday before he was picked up by a naval vessel.

"I was driving a 30-hundred-weight gasoline truck from Derna and had about 20 soldiers with me," he said. "When we got a mile and a half outside Derna we were dive-bombed by three German planes. We leaped from the truck and took shelter in an old house where we found a tank corps officer who said the Germans had broken through a little farther along the road."

"Go as fast as you can and you may get through," he said.

"We started again, but soon came to a stretch of road which was under shell fire. Most of the shells were hitting just short of the road. We tried to get across the desert between the road and the sea, and again encountered the tank corps officer we had seen in the old house. He had got started with some of his vehicles and we attached ourselves to his party. We hoped he would take a route we could follow, but instead he started for the coastal road over terrain impossible for our truck."

Knocked Unconscious.

"When we stopped another 30-hundred-weight truck joined us. It made a dash across country and got through."

"Some more British tank corps vehicles came up and an officer told me the infantry was coming and that we should turn our vehicles around and go along the road. My truck refused to start, so I put it out of action with a few bullets and climbed on another truck. The driver belted along the road so fast three of us were thrown off and I was knocked unconscious. When I woke up, I was lying beside a ravine."

"Some stray British soldiers came along and I joined them, but

Aged Cockatoo Cries 'Goodbye' As Veteran Trouper Bows Out

NEW YORK, April 17.—(AP)—This is the story of an old white cockatoo and an aged vaudeville headliner, "Mlle. Franzeska," who died today with the bird as lone mourner, stalking about the room crying, "Goodbye, mother."

For years, before hard times came and the bottom dropped out of vaudeville, they starred in Mlle. Franzeska's trained bird act. The bird, Jackie, never forgot it.

He retained an air of faded grandeur in the one-room tenement walkup where they lived. One by one, Made-moiselle had parted with the other birds in her act, to get money; but Jackie remained.

"Mother, I love you," he would say in raucous tones, perched on the arm of her chair with his head tilted.

Sometimes she responded, "Jackie, mother is very sick."

"Oh, poor mother, sick. What's the matter?" he would ask.

Tenants of the house said the bird's hoarse voice had a gentler note for Mlle. Franzeska.

She was 70. He was 13. Her real name was Frankie Law, and she retired seven years ago. She eked out a living with a tiny pension and an occasional "stake" from National Variety Artists, Inc.

Tenants who heard the cockatoo crying, "Goodbye, mother," for more than hour an hour today, came down and found the aged star dead.

fell out when my shoes, which were badly torn, dropped from my chap from a northeastern infantry regiment stayed with me and helped me bind my feet. Then we started out and waded across some swamps until we came to the coast and sighted a warship in the distance. It finally turned towards the coast and we attracted attention by waving a blanket. Soon a boat put off and picked us up."

Tanks Battle.

A tank-corps officer said tonight that during the afternoon 40 German and Italian tanks were seen astride the El Adem-Tobruk road and immediately were engaged by the British.

"Our tanks were going down our defense wire entanglements looking for the enemy," he said.

"We engaged him, although he had 30 tanks against our smaller force. It was a great fight, and we think we knocked out three of their machines. As the action progressed, we crossed the Bardia road and saw 10 enemy tanks about 1,000 yards off. They advanced and came within 300 yards of our outer defenses—right up to our wire. We formed in battle line on the inside perimeter, beside an antitank ditch. The enemy was on the other side. Then we went to it and for half an hour it was tank against tank. We knocked out one 30-ton German machine, three Italian medium tanks and one light one. At least, they remained when the enemy units withdrew."

"Meantime our artillery knocked out three truckloads of enemy infantry. One of his trucks went up in flames."

"Twenty-seven of the 30 enemy tanks which had started the general action withdrew to the southward."

Peanut Bread Makes Debut In Georgia

Flour Milled in Texas Is Baked at Albany.

ALBANY, Ga., April 17.—(AP)—Bread made from a new peanut flour had its world premiere here today, when samples were given attendees at a cooking school. Hundreds of loaves also were sold by a local bakery, which was compelled to make repeated bakings to meet the demand.

The new peanut bread was made from peanut flour milled in Fort Worth, Texas, under auspices of the United States Department of Agriculture, which furnished recipes for baking. The government is said to be sponsoring the new bread as a defense food because it is rich in vitamin B1 and other health-giving properties. It has a rich, nutty flavor, and Albany citizens who tried it were enthusiastic over its delectable taste. The new bread is especially good when toasted.

The demonstration here was sponsored by the Albany Herald and the Georgia, Florida, Alabama Peanut Association, Roy Parish, of Camilla, president.

County Upheld In Case Against Former Sheriff

Court Refuses To Enjoin Clayton Commissioners' Board.

The state supreme court yesterday refused to enjoin the Clayton county board of commissioners from issuing an execution against former Sheriff E. L. Adamson for alleged back fees collected by him.

Case records showed that the Clayton county board issued an execution against him for $9,295.68 and $2,529.81 interest and Adamson sought a restraining order which was denied by the Clayton county superior court. The supreme court affirmed this decision.

Adamson contended the county owed him more than the amount it was seeking to collect from him.

Revival Here Daily Gaining Momentum

1,500 Hear Bishop Moore at First Methodist Church.

By DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.

"We are on our way," said Bishop Arthur J. Moore at the First Methodist church noonday meeting yesterday, as he discussed the progress of the Greater Atlanta simultaneous evangelistic campaign, and asserted that daily the spiritual endeavor is gaining in momentum and depth.

The congregation of 1,500 people sang with enthusiasm "Palms of Victory," as they envisioned the triumph of religious faith.

Dr. Walt Holcomb, pastor of Wesley Memorial church, and Dr. Harry Denman reported further successes in meetings held in shops and on the downtown streets, with conversions daily. Pastors of individual churches throughout the city also reported increasing attendance and interest at services. The Rev. N. P. Manning, of Inman Park Methodist church, stated that his congregation Wednesday night was the largest he had known in the three years he had been at that church.

The Rev. L. V. Collins, of Gainesville, preaching at the Candler Memorial church, said the night congregation there has doubled, and that 25 persons were at the altar for prayer Wednesday night. Several pastors reported conversions of persons at their homes, as visitation committees called upon them. Dr. N. C. McPherson Jr., of the Peachtree road Methodist church, reports that 159 persons have united with that church so far this year, with the formal opening of his revival slated for next Sunday. Dr. B. C. Gamble, of the Marietta First Methodist church, told of the influence of the revival reaching the farthest he had known in the three years he had been at that church.

In the schedule of Methodist meetings for today, Bishop Moore again will preach at the First Methodist church at noon. His sermon subject will be, "How Shall We Escape If We Neglect So Great Salvation?"

The program for Dr. Harry Denman today is as follows: Friday, 12:01 a. m., he will preach in the assembly room at police headquarters; 7:45 a. m., prayer service at Wesley Memorial church; 10 o'clock at the Hapeville Methodist church; 12 o'clock, noon, preaching on Plaza Way at Whitehall street viaduct; 7:45 p. m., preaching at Wesley Memorial church.

In his fourth discourse for the week, Bishop Moore yesterday spoke of the "Tragedy of Spiritual Impoverishment," and named several things in modern life that effect such an unhappy spiritual life.

Bishop Moore said: "Too many of us are pitifully apologetic about our religion. So long as our religion asks nothing more than patience and pity, it will not receive anything more than that, but when devotion to Christ so completely fills life that we give ourselves with everything we possess to His service, then other men pause to hear our testimony. We desperately need to enter more deeply into our Christian heritage in order to more worthily commend it to others. Our age calls for a Christianity alive to the issues of the day, a Christianity that recognizes the contact with the problems of life that men cannot ignore it."

Fellowship. "The aim of religion is to bring us into fellowship with God and to prepare us for his service. God must not be crowded out of the experiences of daily life."

"There are forces and tendencies in our modern life which array themselves against spirituality. We are tempted to substitute the experience of religion for the experience of religion. Certainly there are many things God wants us to do, but first of all, he wants us to be. We live in an hour of strain and storm and hardly know where it is all leading to or where we will be when it is all over. The reading of great books, the building of Christian homes, the sacramental value of the family gathering, regular attendance upon church worship are all having to fight for a place in our crowded lives."

"Undoubtedly, we have been hurt spiritually by the exaggerated emphasis we place upon pleasure. I would not undertake to choose your pleasures. We always get in trouble when we say certain things are wholly good and other wholly bad. What we need is not a set of rules, but some great guiding principles. There is no conflict between happiness and piety, but duty must come ahead of pleasure. The revival of the church and the redemption of the world waits upon our irrevocable decision to Christ and the complete consecration of all we are to His redemptive purpose."

1940 U. S. Diners Leave $200,000,000 in Tips

CHICAGO, April 17.—(AP)—The National Restaurant Association reports that American diners left $200,000,000 under their plates and on the tables in tips last year.

Noting that many restaurants seek to discourage the practice, Miss Grace E. Smith, association president, commented that "there's nothing restaurants can do about tipping. Guests feel that it is a personal matter between them and the waitress."

The two brothers have served more than 100 years of deaconship between them.

Now Is Time To Have Faith, Says Dr. Truett

Overflow Crowd Hears Leader at First Baptist Church.

"This is exactly the time to have faith in God," said Dr. George W. Truett, addressing a congregation which overflowed the auditorium and sent many people into the balconies of the First Baptist church at noon yesterday.

Dr. Truett was discussing the dark situation of the world today, comparing it with the dangerous days following the other World War. "God did not start this war; it was man-made," declared Dr. Truett. "This is the best time to trust God to bring about world peace and fraternity."

"Christ is the bond between God and man. Christ is the bond between man and man. Let Christ bring God and man together and the men of the world will thereby be brought together."

Dr. Truett offered Christ as the one hope of the world, the one hope for preservation of modern home life, and the one hope of righteousness among men. "Christianity makes men brothers and Christianity makes men grow," declared the evangelist. Dr. Truett appealed to men in doubt and trouble and sin to put their faith in God. He declared that men cannot trust in appearances nor the arm of flesh and that they should not take counsel of their fears in such a time as this.

Dr. Truett will address this union noonday service each day this week and next except next Tuesday. He is speaking under the auspices of the Greater Atlanta Baptist Evangelistic Campaign. Many groups from surrounding cities were there to hear Dr. Truett. Delegations were present from Gainesville, Winder, Blue Ridge, Canton and other north Georgia cities.

The last breakfast of this week for the Baptist pastors is to be held this morning at the Baltimore hotel. The subject for discussion will be "How To Develop Soul-Winning Church Members."

4-Inch Snow Fall Blankets 5 States

Five states shivered yesterday under a four-inch blanket of snow which closed mountain roads, delayed air travel and buried blossoming fruit trees.

In the 20s, the surprise snowstorm was centered in northern Utah and extended over Montana, Nevada, Utah, Wyoming and western Colorado. Livingston, Mont., was covered to a depth of seven inches by the fall which started Wednesday night.

Around Portland, Me., the mercury also dropped to freezing as the area experienced a 24-degree dip in 24 hours. In other parts of the nation, however, springlike weather continued.

Although showers were indicated, no marked change in temperature was in sight for the southern states.

Fire-Fighting Equipment Of Town Lost In Blaze

WARTON, Tenn., April 17.—(AP)—The fire siren brought this town's volunteer firemen running from their homes last night.

They found a large storage garage, housing their fire-fighting equipment, ablaze. Chagrined, they stood by until firefighters arrived from a neighboring town. Adjoining buildings were saved, but Wartrace's fire truck and hose burned along with seven automobiles.

State Income Returns Show Gain This Year

State income taxes are running approximately $1,300,000 more than last year, although the fiscal year will not end until July 1, Allen Darden, director of the income tax division, reported yesterday.

He said collections from July 1, 1940, to April 17 of this year were $5,518,492 as compared with $4,203,654 for the corresponding period of the previous year.

Since the beginning of the Talmadge administration when Darden took over the income tax division, he said collections had totaled $3,444,913 as compared with $2,675,356 for the same period last year.

As a result of the heavy increases Darden said his division was flooded with 30 per cent more work, but was holding expenses 30 per cent lower than in 1936. Up to April 1 he said his department had handled several thousand more tax returns than for the entire previous fiscal year.

New Air Bases May Split Nazi Ship Blockade

Greenland May Open Aerial Highway to England.

By JOSEPH S. EDGERTON

For North American Newspaper Alliance. WASHINGTON, April 17.—Development of air bases in Greenland may result in the opening of an aerial highway to England for American-built airplanes, now subjected to the hazards of shipment in surface vessels through the Nazi blockade.

This would not only ease the burden on imperiled shipping, but convert inert, helpless fighting planes into deadly weapons for breaking the blockade by sea and air. It also would break one of the most serious potential bottlenecks in the delivery of pursuit aircraft to England—the lack of adequate shipping facilities. It was estimated recently that pursuit aircraft were piling up on piers in United States and Canadian harbors at a rate of 50 to 100 a month, waiting for ships to carry them through the blockade.

Makes Short Steps.

Although various types of bombers and patrol flying boats are being delivered by air from American factories to the British Royal Air Force in England, the transatlantic hop has been beyond the range of pursuit and other short-range aircraft.

Use of air bases in Greenland and Iceland, the latter now British-occupied, would reduce the overwater distances to a maximum of 525 miles by the most complete overland route from Labrador to Scotland. From Newfoundland, the longest overwater jump would be 850 miles.

Landplane bombers are now flying to England directly from Botwood, Newfoundland, over a route involving 1,800 miles of overwater operation. Pursuit aircraft, flying the shortest possible courses from Botwood by way of Greenland and Iceland, would face an over-water jump of 850 miles to the extreme southern tip of Greenland, 750 miles to Iceland, and 590 miles to the northern tip of Scotland.

Alternative Routes.

However, there are two alternative routes between Labrador and Greenland, requiring only 585 and 525 miles overwater; also two other routes between Greenland and Iceland, one requiring 650 miles and the other only 375 miles of overwater flying. There is a shorter overwater route of 525 miles between Iceland and Scotland.

Intensive meteorological and geographical studies made in Greenland and Iceland in the last few years will greatly simplify the task of establishing bases and flying routes.

Dr. William H. Hobbs, of the University of Michigan, one of the authorities on conditions in Greenland, has reported the finding of two big "holes" in the wind barriers which formerly were thought to stand in the way of flight over Greenland. They would make it possible to take advantage of Greenland's centrifugal storms to aid passage in either direction across the Atlantic.

Favoring Tailwinds.

By choosing the right altitude, Dr. Hobbs reported to the American Association for the Advancement of Science it should be possible most of the time to make a Greenland flight with a favoring tailwind. This is true particularly of the eastbound flight, which would facilitate air deliveries of short-range fighters to England, he said.

Dr. Hobbs named four possible bases in Greenland for landplanes and two for seaplanes. The land bases are in Arsuksfjord and Jamieson Land, on the north shore of Scoresby Sound, and two on the southwest coast. The Germans already have familiarized themselves with the Scoresby Sound area, where they had a meteorological station until shortly before the outbreak of the war. The seaplane bases are in the Cape Farewell region, one at Julianehaab, the other at Sangmisok.

Threat to German Ships.

The Germans already have shown a military interest in the "land bridge" route across the northern Atlantic, as was evidenced recently by an air attack on a British airdrome in Iceland. German bombers and patrol planes have been active for months over the northern or Great Circle shipping route, which passes not far south of Greenland and Iceland. The flying of pursuit airplanes might constitute a serious menace to the Nazi patrol activities.

Operation of longer-range patrol reconnaissance and bombardment planes from bases in Greenland and Iceland also would constitute a grave threat to German submarine and surface raiders operating along the strategic Great Circle route.

Naval and shipping authorities have pointed out that success in the lead-lease act may depend not so much upon the building of ships for transporting supplies as upon a means of breaking the Nazi blockade. Greenland and Iceland may prove keys to the solution of the anti-blockade problem.

Eleven Death Causes Drop To New Lows

Suicide Rate in Georgia Is Lowest in 10 Years.

Eleven causes of death established new low records in 1940 in Georgia over the previous year, it was reported yesterday by Dr. T. F. Abercrombie, director of the Georgia Department of Public Health, in his annual report to members of the Georgia State Board of Health. It was shown that fewer Georgians committed suicide than in the year before, the suicide rate of 8.9 per 100,000 for the year just concluded being the lowest in the past 10 years.

The eleven diseases and conditions establishing new low records included typhoid fever, malaria, diphtheria, tuberculosis, pellagra, pneumonia, diarrhea and enteritis (under two years), accidents and other violence (exclusive of motor vehicle accidents), infant mortality, maternal mortality, and stillbirths.

For seven additional causes, namely, typhus fever, scarlet fever, whooping cough, dysentery, influenza, suicide and homicide, the mortality rate improved in 1940, although the rates did not establish new minima.

Rate Improves.
Dr. Abercrombie reported improvement in tuberculosis fatalities. In 1920 the death rate from tuberculosis was 11.6 per 100,000, as against the 1940 rate of 4.1.

Robert F. Maddox, chairman of the Board of Health, announced that 194 beds are soon to be added to the present patient census at the State Tuberculosis Sanatorium, at Alto, raising the present bed capacity to 605 patients, probably by the middle of May.

Georgia, in 1940, showed a sharp decline in the mortality from pneumonia, with 65.8 deaths per 100,000, against 73.6 in 1939. The death rate from influenza in 1940 was 29.6 per 100,000, as compared with 30.4 in 1939.

Maternal Deaths Down.
Mortality from the principal communicable childhood diseases also showed a decline in minimum in 1940 over the previous year. Measles, scarlet fever, whooping cough, and diphtheria declined from the previous minimum of 3.1 per 100,000 to 2.2 in 1940.

The maternal mortality rate has fallen 43.2 per cent since 1920 to establish the lowest rate ever obtained, 5.3 per 1,000 in 1940.

High Levels.
Unfavorable records for diseases of later life were reported by the health director for 1940 in stating that "the increase in mortality which occurred last year was limited almost altogether to the chronic diseases characteristic of middle or later life."

The crude death rates from heart disease, cerebral hemorrhage (embolism and thrombosis), nephritis and cancer are at high levels. Heart diseases with a rate of 197.7 in 1940 are at the highest level ever recorded. Cerebral hemorrhage shows an increase from 46.1 in 1920 to 97.2 in 1940. Nephritis increased from 76.0 in 1920 to 107.2 in 1940. Cancer has increased from 38.8 in 1920 to 62.7 in 1940, he reported.

In commenting on this increase of the death rate from diseases of later life, Dr. Abercrombie explained that to a large degree the upward trend in mortality from these diseases reflects the increased proportion of people at the older ages.

The proposed increase was equivalent to about $26.50 for every man, woman and child in the country, and the overall federal tax bill of $12,667,000,000 would be equivalent to $96 per person. Although much heavier taxes were indicated for corporations and wealthy individuals, the size of the proposed increase convinced experts that the average person also would have to pay a big share.

Increases in income taxes would apply to 1941 incomes, while increases in excise levies, such as those on liquor, gasoline and tobacco, would apply to purchases made after enactment of the new tax measure.

There was some talk of a general sales tax, but without such a levy, it was believed that hundreds of items untaxed by the federal government at present would be reached under the new program. Soda pop was mentioned as a possible example.

The nearest thing to an official statement on the nature of the new taxes was a remark by Treasury Secretary Morgenthau that "an ideal would be for everyone to pay one-third more next year than he did in the last year."

Under such a formula, the experts said, the tax on liquor would be boosted from $3 to $4 per gallon. The federal gasoline tax would be raised from 1 1/2 to 2 cents. The tax on cigarettes jump from 6 1/2 to 8 2/3 cents per package of 20.

In the income tax, here are samples of what a one-third increase would mean. A single man earning just $29 a week or $1,500 a year would find his tax increased from $24 to $32. A married man with two children and earning $5,000 a year would pay $100 instead of $75.

Better Treatment Of Soldiers Asked

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP) Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, told the Daughters of the American Revolution tonight that members of some women's volunteer groups have shown "great zeal" in arranging community dances for soldiers on leave, but "refuse to allow their own daughters to attend."

In an address prepared for delivery at the 50th annual Continental Congress of the D. A. R., McNutt said: "It would seem that some of the so-called 'finer families' in some communities are very glad to have our young men give up their jobs and even risk their lives for their country, but these boys are not considered 'good enough' to mingle with the very families who receive the benefits of their military training."

McNutt, co-ordinator of health, welfare and related activities affecting the national defense, urged the D. A. R. chapters to assist in establishing recreational and educational projects for soldiers on leave.

Latin Nations and U. S. Study Alien Ship Policy

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP) The ambassadors of Argentina, Brazil and Colombia conferred at the State Department within the space of an hour today, and it was understood they received the views of this government on the Uruguayan proposal for a common policy toward war immobilized alien ships. Carlos Martins, Brazilian ambassador, told newsmen after a 25-minute conference with Undersecretary Welles, that he received the views of the United States toward the Uruguayan proposal transmitted to the various American governments earlier this week by Foreign Minister Guan.

Londoners Search Debris for Victims of Heaviest Raid

400 German Ships in Attack, British Report

Morgues Filled, Hospitals Crowded; Sirens Sound Again in Area.

LONDON, April 17.—(P)—Londoners dug for their dead and the entombed living tonight in the smoldering wreckage of the heaviest air raid of the war.

The overnight horror was produced by swarms of bombers, apparently as many as it was physically possible for the German high command to fling against the city.

Air-raid sirens sounded again in the London area late tonight. Nazi raiders earlier had sped across the English channel to assault a south coast town.

Second Attack Feared.

Weather over the straits was cold and the sea was calm. Low clouds afforded some protection at places, but Londoners recoiling from the overnight horror had expected a second straight night's attack on the capital.

One German bomber crashed and exploded in a rural area and presumably the crew was killed.

Bombs fell in many open areas near the coast, indicating the German airmen at times had to jettison their loads in the face of stubborn ground fire.

Authoritative British sources said at least 400 planes were continuously attacking for eight hours Wednesday night, declaring, "they just couldn't have had fields to fly from or room to fly in there had been any more."

Lord Stamp Dead.
Notables among the dead—the total still unknown—included Lord Stamp, government economic adviser, his lady and his eldest son, and Lord Auckland, prominent amateur wildfowl trainer well known in America.

All through the day weary air-raid precautionary workers toiled to free trapped victims of the bombs while groups of weeping women stood about, waiting for confirmation of their fears.

Throughout the night the skies were ruddy with fire. The scream of sirens, the blast of bombs and the interminable roar of anti-aircraft guns made sleep impossible for anyone. Screams of the injured were heard from time to time above the anarchy din.

Serious talk that this might be the forerunner of invasion gained increasing attention. Some well informed observers said this was just the sort of punning to be expected as the opening stroke of an invasion.

Accurate Count Impossible.
But most persons felt and hoped that the raid was only what the German high command called it: "Reprisal" for the lashing Britain gave Berlin April 9.

Accurate tallies of the dead, wounded and the gigantic property damage were impossible. The air and home security ministries announced tersely that casualties were "heavy" and damage "considerable."

Behind that announcement lay this picture:

A pall of smoke still hung over all London. Hosielines twined through miles of wrecked and charred buildings.

Eight Hospitals Hit.
Morgues were filled with the dead, and hospitals with the injured. At least eight hospitals were smashed by direct hits of the Nazi "super" bombs.

There were streets and lanes

OUT OF THE NIGHT—Disaster and tears almost too poignant for a people to bear lay in the ashes of London yesterday morning after the Nazi raid of "reprisal." Rescue workers, some of whom numbly await a quick, wartime burial of their families, move through black ruins, the flaming scenes Wednesday night of a thousand insane dramas, accompanied by the whine of dive-bombers and the shriek of terror bombs.

blanketed from end to end with broken bricks, shattered glass and the splintered bits of buildings.

At one of the bombed hospitals, a surgeon had just completed a delicate operation, extracting a piece of glass from a man's eye, when a bomb tore down the door of the operating room and scattered instruments over the floors. Oddly, no one was hurt there.

Of the numerous churches destroyed, one dated from the fourteenth century.

The remains of a stately ornamental iron fence around what had been an ancient church lay scattered over the street. Across the way a flock of sheep drowsed quietly on the green grass of a fenced park.

At another spot, two men were dug unhurt from the wreckage of a shelter where they had been buried for 12 hours.

"What time is it?" asked one. "Complains About Pubs." When told, he remarked that the pubs were closed.

"Blimey, it's too late for a drink," he complained.

On post where a German bomber was shot down—one of the six bagged during the night—a policeman rescued a German flyer who was dangling by his parachute from the roof of a tall building. This airman and his three companions were hustled off to jail, but had to be moved to another almost immediately when a time bomb fell close by.

A number of overseas troops were in a club damaged by a direct hit. Some were entombed, others thrown into the street. One

Winant and Wife in Narrow Escape

LONDON, April 17.—(P)—At the height of last night's German air raid, United States Ambassador John G. Winant and his wife went to the embassy roof to watch. They had one narrow escape when a high explosive fell nearby, and Mrs. Winant, who said she had been practicing falls, had a chance to put the theory to a practical test.

Speaking for both of them, Winant said, "We know now what 'London can take it' really means."

Canadian who fell 40 feet was unhurt.

A husband and wife, asleep when a bomb hit their house, were blown into the street—still snugly tucked into bed.

A "number" of ambulance drivers were killed when their first-aid depot was hit.

The fashionable West End was bomb-blasted and burned extensively. Mansions and rich apartment houses and stores were shattered.

Barmains Killed.
Two barmains and a barman were killed in a public house.

Nuns in gleaming white head-dresses and long blue robes fled out of their convent during the height of the raid to help fight fires in the neighborhood and care for the wounded.

Through it all, some buses continued to operate, but taxis were practically non-existent.

In a suburban district near where a German bomber fell, killing its crew of four, a demolished building trapped persons in a basement. Some were rescued, but others were still buried alive.

Bomber Falls.
One of the raiders shot down during the night fell into a residential garden, setting three houses afire when its burden of bombs exploded.

Everywhere, sleepy-eyed Londoners declared, "It was worse than last September."

Observers agreed that more and heavier bombs were used. Some were so heavy that they twisted out of shape buildings some distance from the point of explosion.

The raid was admittedly as intense as that on Coventry last November, and covered a far wider area.

It was confined almost entirely to great, sprawling London and the home counties.

UNEMPLOYMENT FUND.

SPARTA, Ga., April 17.—According to Ben T. Huie, commissioner of labor, 56 unemployed workers in Hancock county received $410.66 in compensation from the state and federal government for March.

CLINIC AT SPARTA.

SPARTA, Ga., April 17.—A tuberculosis clinic was held here today with the "healthmobile" from the State Board of Health present to give X-ray tests. Dr. I. H. Moore, director of the clinic and Hancock commissioner of health, expects to hold clinics regularly during the year.

About two billion coffee trees grow in the state of Sao Paulo, Brazil.

Lord Stamp, Wife and Heir Killed in Raid

Britain Loses One of Foremost Business Brains in Death.

LONDON, April 17.—(P)—Direct hits by German bombs on a pleasant Kentish country home have killed Lord Stamp, perhaps the most valuable business brain of the British empire, his wife and their heir, the Honorable Wilfred Carlyle Stamp.

In all, six members of the household died when the Stamp home at Shortlands, on the southern outskirts of London, burst apart under the impact of high explosive bombs at the height of London's greatest raid and collapsed on a shelter.

The 60-year-old economist was killed instantly, physicians said. The bodies of Lord and Lady Stamp were the only ones recovered tonight. Those of their eldest son and three maids of the Stamp household lay under a heap of debris.

The only survivor was another maid, who was dug from the wreckage alive.

Death of Lord Stamp was a blow to the economic leadership of the Empire. Since the start of the war he had been a principal adviser to the government on the economic problems of its struggle and had headed an inter-departmental committee on co-ordination.

His keen knowledge of American economics made him especially valuable with the growing dependency of Britain on the United States war supplies.

For years he had traveled frequently in the United States, in Canada and in Australia. He was better known as Sir Josiah Stamp, for he was elevated to the peerage less than three years ago, becoming the first Baron Stamp of Shortlands.

From a clerkship, he became in half a century the head of the Great London, Midlands and Scottish Railway, a director of the Bank of England, and a leading figure in many of the British industries of war and peace.

The world outside Britain knew him chiefly as economist, author and lecturer.

He was rugged, plain and affable and, to the American ear, his accent didn't sound British.

LORD STAMP ONCE VISITED ATLANTA
Lord Stamp—then only a knight and known throughout the world as Sir Josiah Stamp—was in Atlanta in June of 1937. The bomb which took his life, and the circumstances which produced the bomb, then seemed distant indeed. Sir Josiah talked easily and confidently of world peace.

He sat in the private car of his American host, Fitzgerald Hall, president of the N. C. & St. L. railroad, which he occupied as a fellow railroader, the president of the London Midland and Scottish railway.

It is ironic that he was en route to Vanderbilt University to deliver the baccalaureate address and that taxation was uppermost in his mind.

It seemed that British business was objecting to some forms of taxation for defense purposes.

"Neville Chamberlain, the new premier," said Sir Josiah, "will succeed in winning popular support for the new taxes made necessary by the heavy defense budget. But there must be some adjustments."

"Business generally has objected to the excess profits tax, and Chamberlain probably will substitute some other revenue-raising plan. The English people have accepted the new tax burden cheerfully, realizing it is necessary for the safety of the country and as a road to continued peace."

There had been no Munich then, no Poland.

But in the same issue of The Constitution, there appeared on the first page a news story quoting a letter written to Hitler by Charles S. McFarland, general secretary emeritus of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, which said:

"I have waited four years before passing judgment. You have violated every promise you made in 1933."

England Defeated Now—Lindbergh

CHICAGO, April 17.—(P)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh asserted tonight that "it will be a tragedy to the world—a tragedy even to Germany—if the British empire collapses" but he opined that the "war was lost" by the Allies "even before it was declared."

He called for unity among people opposed to United States intervention and, in an address prepared for a rally in the Chicago Arena sponsored by the America First Committee, declared that "it is not yet too late for us to save our own country from the chaos and failure of this war," but added, "it is not within our power in America today to win the war for England even though we throw the entire resources of our nation into the conflict."

Windsors Are on Way To U. S. Second Time

NASSAU, Bahamas, April 17.—(P)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor sailed aboard the steamer Berkshire today on their second trip to the United States together since he abdicated the British throne to marry the American-born woman.

The Berkshire is scheduled to dock in Miami at 8 a. m. (E. S. T.), from where the Windsors will motor to Palm Beach. Edward has described this as a business visit.

F. D. R. Sees No Control of Free Speech

Press, Radio, Movies Are Free To 'Talk' as They Please.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(P) Asserting that free speech was "in undisputed possession" of the press, the radio and motion pictures, President Roosevelt told the American Society of Newspaper Editors today that there would be "no government control of news unless it be of vital military information."

In a letter read to the opening meeting of the society's annual convention, Mr. Roosevelt said that "those who disagree with what is being done, and with the manner in which it is being done, are free to use their freedom of speech."

After saying that free speech was "in undisputed possession" of publishers, editors, reporters, magazines, motion pictures and of radio, President Roosevelt added that so far as he was concerned "it will remain there for that is where it belongs."

"It is important that it should remain there," he continued, "for suppression of opinion and censorship of news are among the mortal weapons that dictatorships direct against their own peoples and direct against the world."

SCENE OF BATTLE—British and Greek forces were at grips with German mechanized units in the Kalabaka region (vertical shading) yesterday and Italians said the whole Greek front was collapsing. R. S. Lazenby, Dinner Marks 27th Year for Writers' Group Who Created Dr. Pepper, Dies

74-Year-Old Chemist Aided U. S. To Develop Vitamins in Fruit.

DALLAS, Texas, April 17.—(P) Robert Sherman Lazenby, 74, eminent chemist, originator of the formula for the carbonated drink, Dr. Pepper, and for nearly 40 years president of the Dr. Pepper Company, died today.

He recently completed successfully an experiment for the government in the Rio Grande valley, after five years of work, whereby certain important vitamins were developed in grapefruit.

British experiments have shown that pasteurizing milk does not affect its vitamin A and causes only a small loss of vitamins B and C.

Principal Address Given by Christine Park Hankinson.

The Atlanta Writers' Club, membership of which lists many names well known in American letters, marked its 27th anniversary last night with a dinner at the Atlanta Woman's Club.

Mrs. Charles P. King, daughter of Mrs. Lollie Belle Wylie, second president of the club, prepared a paper discussing her mother's interest in the organization, while Mrs. Gordon Mitchell, charter member of the club, spoke briefly, and Walter McElreath discussed the reorganization of the club in 1923.

Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, president of Oglethorpe University, spoke in memory of Ernest Hartsock, late Atlanta poet, and of Harry E. Hamman, a charter member of the club.

Mrs. Dudley Cowles, of New York, represented her husband, first president of the reorganized club, and two former presidents, Mrs. C. Gainer Turner and Dr. Anderson M. Scruggs, spoke briefly.

The principal address, on "Atlanta as a Literary Center," was given by Christine Park Hankinson, of McDonough, and letters were read from former members and Officers Dudley Cowles, John Temple Graves II, Margaret Mitchell, Louise Dooley, Ellen Peters and Nan Bagby Stephens.

Dr. Wightman F. Melton, head of the organization from 1925 to 1927 and since 1933 to date, presided.

Miss Marchman has been enrolled in the Women's Missionary Union training school in Louisville, and has had additional training in kindergarten work at Bridgeport, Conn.

Troup Man Is Charged With Brother's Death
LAGRANGE, Ga., April 17.—(P)—Troup County Sheriff E. V. Hilyer said a sawmill worker had been charged with shooting and beating his brother to death in an argument.

He said A. C. Pierson, 30, admitted killing J. M. Pierson but asserted he did so in self-defense. The slaying took place near here late yesterday, J. M. Pierson also was a sawmill worker.

The man was shot in the stomach and severely beaten on the head. The sheriff said a Negro told officers he saw A. C. Pierson shoot his brother then sit upon him and beat him over the head with a pistol.

Deputy Sheriff M. J. Lester swore to a warrant charging murder, the sheriff said, and Pierson was lodged in the county jail.

Greeks Forced Back by German Blows, But British Hold Out

south of Mount Olympus, but had not occupied the bomb-shattered city.)

In Albania, at the western end of the Allied line, the Greek army still is "fighting to its utmost" against an Italian push down upon Argyrocastro, which is about 50 miles north of Janina.

The Greek high command announced the evacuation of Kuisura and Erseka, above Argyrocastro.

Fall of City Denied.
Rumors that Larissa had fallen were officially denied and the Germans actually are "far north" of the city, it was stated.

Today's official announcement advised the Greek people to remain calm and avoid panic in the face of the new "reverses" and shopkeepers were ordered to keep their places open. Workers were told to stay at their jobs.

"Tank for tank, we are better than the Germans," the officer of a well-known British mechanized regiment said in commenting on the savage fighting, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

"Not one of our tanks has been put out of action by gunfire. Our shells go through the Nazi tanks like cheese."

"Numerically they have the upper hand, advancing in swarms with motorcycle infantry in support."

Regardless of heavy losses the Germans kept up a relentless less surge of attacking thousands, it was said.

100-Mile Front.

The battle of Greece raged with mounting fury along a 100-mile front.

Two German divisions—22,000 to 30,000 men—have been wiped out in casualties by Australians in the past 10 days during mass Nazi attacks with infantry and tanks.

Meanwhile, Berlin announced officially that Yugoslavia has surrendered after 12 days of blitzkrieg.

In western Macedonia no essential changes in the situation have taken place, a communique said.

British Lines Hold.

British lines at the eastern end of the Allied front were said semi-officially to be "holding firm" against terrible assaults by German tanks, troops and swarming planes, with Australian troops throwing back waves of tank attacks only a few miles west and north of Mount Olympus.

It was at Kalabaka that the Allied defense line appeared in gravest danger a few hours before, creating what a Greek spokesman called a "serious situation," which threatens to slice the Allies' railroad lines of supply and encircle the British Empire forces fighting desperately to hold the Mount Olympus sector.

Meanwhile the Royal Air Force struck back, blasting deep behind the German lines and fighting air battles over the mountains and plateaus of central and northern Greece.

Some of the fiercest fighting was at the entrance of Sarandaporon pass, barely 10 miles west of Mount Olympus, below the Vitsitsa river, in the sector where the Germans smashed across the river and took Servia.

Another furious battle appeared to be under way on the coast road near Katerine, 15 miles north of Mount Olympus.

The Germans sent tanks smashing time and again at the British line in the Katerine sector, but without breaking through, persons arriving from the front said. They said Australian troops were inflicting heavy casualties on the Germans on the Sarandaporon front.

Swarms of German planes were said to be sweeping over highways leading south to Athens, bombing and machinegunning traffic.

"But the Germans are catching hell from the RAF, too," the travelers said.

General Motors Threatened With Stoppage by CIO.

By The Associated Press. The policy committee of the United Mine Workers of America (CIO) voted early last night not to send miners back into the nation's soft coal mines until wage disputes with southern Appalachian coal operators could be settled, while R. J. Thomas, president of the United Automobile Workers (CIO), announced that his union, which only Saturday concluded a 10-day strike at the Ford Motor Company, was filing a five-day notice of intention to strike against General Motors Corporation.

Wants United Front.

Although the mine workers' committee approved a contract negotiated Wednesday and ready for signature by the union and northern Appalachian operators, John L. Lewis, union president, said that the committee "deemed it inadvisable for the mine workers to divide their forces and expose our membership in the south to economic sanctions that would be imposed upon them by the coal operators in the southern districts."

Lewis also announced that he had replied to the southern group, who set up a separate negotiating conference in Washington after bolting the joint conference here last week, that the union would resume negotiations with them but "without stipulations or without prior commitments."

Contract Suggested.

The southern group, earlier, had suggested that the union negotiate a separate contract on the basis of the southern group's proposal to increase wages 11 per cent.

A one-year union-corporation agreement on wages and working conditions at General Motors expires Sunday, and Thomas said that a strike, "if necessary," would be carried out to enforce UAW-CIO demands for a new proposed agreement.

Asked if strikes would follow in all GM plants in the country if one were called in Michigan, the union president said, "it (the strike) will probably be called in all of them."

Thomas said "I don't know" to a question whether he felt that a strike was unavoidable.

"We haven't got any place yet in the negotiations," he said.

F. D. R. Still Hopes To Visit Georgia

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. WASHINGTON, April 17.—President Roosevelt still hopes to be able to go to Warm Springs next week, contingent on the clearing up of the measles outbreak at the Infantile Paralysis Foundation there and on the pressure of government business here, Stephen Early, of the White House secretariat, told newspapermen today.

Mr. Roosevelt had made earlier plans for departing for Georgia Tuesday, but delayed the trip because of the measles epidemic.

As a substitute for the Warm Springs visit, Secretary Early revealed that the President may go to his Hyde Park home over the weekend. If the measles have disappeared from the Georgia health resort sufficiently next week and the international situation permits the President may still go to Georgia.

"If your job is tough get help from S.S.S. Tonic"

YOU will be surprised how often you can generate new power to make you "feel like yourself again," by doing two simple things:

- 1—build rich, red blood
- 2—improve digestion

S.S.S. Tonic may be just what you need, in the absence of an organic trouble or focal infection. It stimulates the appetite, improves assimilation, thus helping to better digest food. Further, it contains vital mineral elements so necessary to rebuild red blood. Two important steps back to health, a trial will convince you.

Thousands know of the amazing benefits of S.S.S. . . . scientists have proved it, too. Try it yourself to build sturdy health . . . the kind that will give you new zest to enjoy work and play. At all drug stores in two sizes. Ask for the big 20 cc. size . . . at a saving in the purchase price.

Vinson Labor Bill Approved By Committee

New Provision Requires Discharge of Communists and Bundists.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(UP) The first major step toward enactment of legislation to prevent labor disputes from interfering with defense production crystallized today when the House Naval Affairs Committee approved the Vinson compulsory mediation bill.

As originally drafted, the measure would have applied only to plants working on Navy contracts, but the committee amended it to embrace all defense industries.

The bill calls for a 30-day "cooling-off" period before defense project workers may go out on strike. During this interim conciliation and mediation agencies would attempt to settle the disputes and thus avert a work stoppage. Employers meantime would be barred from closing their plants or reducing wages.

The committee wrote in a provision to require all defense industry workers to furnish, within 30 days after enactment of the measure, affidavits that they are not Communists or Bundists or members of any subversive organization. Employers would be required to discharge members of such organizations.

President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, sent identical letters to all AFL affiliates tonight urging them to adhere to a strict no-strike rule during the current emergency.

"By giving service, by avoiding strikes, by making such sacrifices as the exigencies of the situation require now, you may avoid making greater sacrifices in the future," he said.

Stiles Martin Back With Constitution

Stiles A. Martin this week became state editor of The Atlanta Constitution, a post he held six years before a recent four-year tenure as statistician for the State Department of Agriculture.

Jack Tubbs, state editor for the past four years and a member of The Constitution staff for more than 10 years, was appointed a member of the publicity staff of the AAA in state headquarters at Athens, he began work there April 15.

F. D. R. Praises Welfare Workers

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP) President Roosevelt sent word today to welfare workers assisting the defense program that "in times of emergency like the present, complacency is a luxury which we must cast aside."

Mr. Roosevelt's message was read by Paul V. McNutt, defense co-ordinator of health and welfare, to the united service organizations, a group of agencies which will operate recreation facilities for men in the Army and Navy.

If You Get Up Nights How Are Your Kidneys?

Most people never think of their kidneys although these vital organs contain about 9 million tiny tubes and sacs which filter out waste and poisons from the blood. Because they never get a real rest it's easy to see that as you grow older the kidneys may get tired and slow down. These excess acids and wastes may accumulate and poison your system because of functional rather than organic or systemic kidney and bladder trouble. So if you have to get up nights, or suffer from burning, scanty or frequent passages, backaches and groin pains, due to non-organic and non-systemic kidney or bladder weakness, you'll make no mistake in trying the prescription called Cystex. Over ten million packages of Cystex have been sold in 13 countries and have given such joyous, happy relief to so many thousands of people that it is now sold under a positive guarantee of money back on return of empty package unless completely satisfactory to you. Cystex now costs you 35¢ at drug stores and the guarantee protects you—adv.

Joseph Schenck And Moskowitz Are Convicted

Twentieth Century-Fox Chairman Faces Possible 10-Year Term.

NEW YORK, April 17.—(AP)—Multimillionaire Joseph M. Schenck was convicted early today of income tax evasion in 1935 and 1936 and faces possible imprisonment for 10 years and fines of $20,000.

A federal court jury deliberated 10 hours to find the movie magnate guilty on two of four counts, but acquitted him of tax evasion charges for 1937 and of conspiracy to defraud the government.

Codefendant Joseph Moskowitz, Schenck's eastern representative, was convicted of the 1936 tax charge and acquitted on the other three counts.

Schenck, board chairman of the Twentieth Century-Fox film corporation, was accused of evading $412,000 in taxes during 1935-36-37, while his defense was he had overpaid by $165,000.

A jury foreman, Emerson Hempstead, read the verdict at 2:33 a. m. (E. S. T.). The film-land pioneer slumped back in his chair and, although his face was red, shrugged his shoulders.

Moskowitz, who faces a possible five-year prison sentence and a $10,000 fine, also was red-faced and teary as he was led to his cell.

and by two brothers, LeRoy and D. M. Webb.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by Sam R. Greenberg Company.

Higher Steel Price May Be Sought

NEW YORK, April 17.—(AP)—Washington can look forward to a pilgrimage next week of steel men anxious to show their products should bring higher prices, authoritative sources here intimated today.

Long conferences now are in progress between the economists and production men of the steel manufacturers, directed toward determining exactly what effect the industry's new 10-cents-an-hour wage increases will have on finished products.

The activity follows the "freezing" at present prices of steel products by Leon Henderson, government price administrator, who announced he intended to forestall needless rises in costs with their attendant price inflations.

The stock market reacted immediately to Henderson's pronouncement with declines of a few cents to more than $1 each among the steel companies' common stock shares.

RED CROSS AIDS MEXICO.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP) The American Red Cross announced today it had cabled $10,000 to the Mexican Red Cross for relief of victims of the recent earthquake.

Fort Capuzzo apparently was carried out by the same naval units which yesterday were credited with destroying an eight-ship convoy in an attack on the Axis-African supply line.

While the ships shelled the fort, which has changed hands several times in the current conflict, British aircraft attacked a motorized column near by and claimed destruction of a number of vehicles.

An admiralty communiqué called the Fort Capuzzo attack "an extremely successful naval bombardment," and said that shells were seen to burst on a concentration of about 100 Axis tanks. The airdrome at Ain El Gazala and its supply dump also were bombed from the sea. Air and naval units were said to have recently shot down at least two Junkers dive bombers and to have damaged two others.

British columns were reported operating along all main roads in northern Ethiopia, taking prisoners as they moved, while in the southern section of the country they said they were joined by native troops who have deserted from Fascist forces.

Walter Blanchard Addresses 100 State Members Here.

Hal Smith, of Atlanta, was elected president of the Georgia Automobile Dealers' Association yesterday at the meeting here attended by more than 100 delegates.

Walter Blanchard, of Detroit, general manager of the National Automobile Dealers' Association, discussed "What's Ahead for the Automobile Dealer" and conducted a quiz on the federal wage and hour law.

Mayor Roy LeCraw gave the address of welcome and Henry Darling, of Augusta, retiring president, presided. L. L. Austin, secretary, made financial and legislative reports. Other speakers included Leo Huckabee, of Macon, past president, and Wayne Hearn, automotive sales counselor.

Twenty-five women, who attended, were entertained at luncheon and a garden tour with Mrs. Theo Chopin, of Atlanta, chairman of the entertainment committee. At the dinner meeting, John Smith presided and introduced Ellis Arnall, attorney general of Georgia, who spoke.

Other new officers elected were: Fred S. Morton, of Waycross, first vice president; Frank Graham, of Atlanta, second vice president; R. L. Wade, of Atlanta, treasurer, and the following directors: A. K. Dearing, of Savannah; J. E. Gunn, of Bainbridge; J. J. McFurria, of Columbus; C. D. Randall, of Griffin; George Couch, of Atlanta; R. C. Dunlap, of Macon; Jack Tuggle, of Rome; John Williams, of Valdosta; Dan Jacobs, of Gainesville, and Mr. Darling.

Beer Permit Lost
By Hunter's Buffet

Beer and wine license for Hunter's Buffet at 74 Forsyth street, N. E., held in the name of Roy Young, was revoked last night by the police committee. Young was given 30 days in which to dispose of his business, during which time he may continue to sell beer and wine. He was also given the privilege of continuing his business as a restaurant only.

The license was revoked on an accusation by officers that punchboards were found in the establishment. The committee postponed the election of a captain to succeed the late Captain Jack Malcom.

TOP LIVESTOCK PRICES. LAGRANGE, Ga., April 17.—Top prices were paid for cattle here this week at the regular monthly sale of the Troup County Livestock Association, when sales reached $3,065 for 140 head of cattle. Majority of cattle offered were Hereford and Angus, with a few scrubs, and prices ranged from $5.35 to $10.05 per hundredweight. This total topped the monthly sales for 1941.

inevitable dive-bombers which, with fighter planes, telephone wires and communications generally.

"From in between the enemy tanks armored motorcycle units would shoot out now and then."

"We faced every kind of warfare the mind of man can imagine. Without losing a single tank to the enemy. Many of the enemy's tanks were smashed by our fire."

In this terrific battle now under way the Germans are using dive-bombers as artillery, spreading them out in great waves just as in France the Nazis employed armadas of planes night and day.

Savage Fighting. It was reminiscent of the western front in Flanders, this aerial assault.

I watched the tracer bullets of fighter planes slashing through the sky throughout the night, trying to prevent the British imperial troops from obtaining any rest and to wear down their nerves.

"The bombing and machine-gunning has been awful," a brawny Australian soldier told me, "but we have held the enemy."

At Servia pass, just south of the Vistritsa river and about 15 miles west of Mount Olympus, fighting of almost unprecedented savagery has been under way. The Australians have smashed waves of German infantry jamming Servia pass in attacks from dawn to darkness until the ground is choked with dead.

Then the German tanks try to smash through but are blown up by mines or stopped by antitank guns while their crews are caught in the murderous fire of British Bren guns.

On the flanks of the Servia pass sector the Austrian Alpine chas-seurs have been constantly scaling like goats the mountain peaks which to me seemed impassable.

Bombardment Used in Fight Against Cancer

Power of Millions of Volts Hurls Atomic Cannon Balls.

By THOMAS R. HENRY.
WASHINGTON, April 17.—On the frontier of man's war against his third most deadly enemy, cancer, is a new kind of radiation, neutron bombardment.

It has been made possible by the gigantic cyclotrons, hurling atomic cannon balls with energies of millions of volts, into cancerous tissue.

Compared to it, X-rays and radium are like machine guns compared with field artillery. Many hopes have been aroused. Some may be justified.

Such is the verdict of the American Society for the Control of Cancer in a statement prepared for the National Association of Science Writers after a thorough study of the present status of the treatment. However, some of the most difficult problems remain unanswered.

The principle of neutron treatment, the statement points out, is the same as that for X-rays and radium. Neutrons undoubtedly will kill cancerous tissue as effectively as the older methods of bombardment. Also, in the same way, they will kill healthy tissue and, used to excess, might cure the disease, but kill the patient.

Concentration Vital.

The problem is to get them to expend the greater part of their energy on cancer alone. Ways of doing this seem just over the horizon, it was explained by Dr. G. Failla, of Memorial hospital, New York, who is a leader in the field.

For some time it has been recognized that the killing effect of the atomic cannon balls per se is not what counts. When they hit flesh or bone they transmute some of the atoms found there into radioactive elements—that is, they make something akin to radium, but much shorter-lived in the body itself.

Some elements, such as baron and lithium, are quite easy to transmute under neutron bombardment and form powerful radioactive substances. There is very little of them either in normal tissue or cancer tissue. The essential for any degree of success in the treatment is first to get a concentration of these elements into tissue which it is desired to kill.

One way of doing it, Dr. Failla explained, is by deliberately infecting these elements into the tumor. This is considered highly objectionable and is apt to do more hurt than good.

Blood Dye Sought.

In very recent experiments, he said, it has been possible by injecting lithium into the blood streams of mice to get a double concentration of it in mouse tumors compared to that in the vital organ of the animal. This means that the bombardment probably would be 40 per cent more effective in killing cancer than surrounding tissues. Experiments now are in progress, he said, to find some dye which can be injected into the blood stream which will concentrate in abnormal tissue and avoid normal tissue. If this could be done atoms of boron or lithium might be attached to the dye. A stable, non-toxic compound of lithium and phosphorus now is being used. If successful it may also be possible to use phosphorus previously made radioactive and thus still further increase the effect.

All this, Dr. Failla stressed, is highly experimental and none of the methods ever have been used with human patients. They merely indicate the farthest advances which may become practical in a few years.

Cancer remains, the society's statement stressed, man's third deadliest enemy, and some forms of it appear undoubtedly on the increase. The latest statistics show that in the past six months it has killed more persons in Great Britain than have all the causes directly associated with the war, such as German bombing.

Drawbridge Case Decided by Court

The tender of a drawbridge over a navigable stream is performing a highway function and not a maritime act, and his accidental death while on duty would not come under federal jurisdiction, the Georgia supreme court ruled yesterday. The tribunal gave this answer to the state court of appeals which had asked whether the death of Fletcher King, at Brunswick, should come under the state industrial board which awards damages for accidental deaths, or under the federal courts.

The ruling is binding upon the appellate court to which the city of Brunswick appealed an Industrial Board award of damages to King's widow amounting to $893 cents a week for 300 weeks. The board award also asked the city to pay $100 on the funeral bill and all reasonable medical and hospital bills attendant upon the accident.

Pretexting the Industrial Board award, the city of Brunswick contended King was performing a maritime act while tending the drawbridge and operating it to permit passage of ships on Back river, a stream crossing the Brunswick-St. Simons highway, admittedly under jurisdiction of the admiralty.

SEMINOLE COURT.
DONALSONVILLE, Ga., April 17.—(P)—April term of Seminole superior court opens here Monday with Judge C. W. Worrill on the bench. R. A. Patterson is solicitor. The docket is not large. The session should last not more than five days.

State May Put 2-Way Radios In Patrol Cars

A new type two-way radio transmitter that will enable Georgia state patrol cars to send as well as receive messages as far as 200 miles from headquarters has been designed by Kirk Simmons, radio engineer for the patrol, and probably will be installed in at least 10 cars, Captain J. J. Elliott said yesterday.

The new unit already has been assigned a license as an experimental broadcasting unit by the Federal Communications Commission.

Its call letters are WBMV. It will be on 1666 kilocycles, the same as the patrol station WGSP. Instead of the usual metal antenna used by other police cars, the new unit has an antenna fashioned from five pounds of insulated copper wire wound about a 10-foot bamboo pole. Same results are obtained as from a 275-foot tower, it was said.

With ordinary police radio equipment, officers in other states rarely are able to communicate two ways more than 40 miles apart. With the new set Captain Elliott said officers already have talked from Atlanta to Swainsboro and from Gainesville to Albany.

The patrol now has radio stations in Atlanta, Albany and Swainsboro.

Cost of the sets will be only about $110, it is estimated, as compared with $500 charged for most manufactured sets.

Simmons, designer of the set, for nine years was radio engineer for the Atlanta police department and designed the Atlanta police radio system.

ATLANTA, GA., APRIL 18, 1941.

The Choice

It is becoming more and more apparent that the final, definite choice in regard to the war must be made by the United States very soon. The situation on all fronts, particularly on the Atlantic, is so critical that the fate of the whole world now depends upon this vital decision by the United States.

Either this country must formally enter the war, at least with her naval forces, or see Britain, in all probability, go down in defeat. It is unnecessary to recapitulate what British defeat would mean to this country. Either the people know that, by now, or they are too blind to self-evident facts to be able to understand. They have been told, repeatedly, by informed leaders from President Roosevelt down, they have heard the truth from the speaking platform and over the air, they have read it time and again in newspapers, magazines and books.

They have been told, brutally and directly, by German leaders who have indulged in prophetic gloating, of what a world-dominant Germany will do to America and her vast wealth of money and of resources. Germany, by hook or by crook, intends to wrest indemnity for her war costs out of the pockets of the people of America. Once she has crushed Britain, she will be able to do this because of her grip on all the encircling world, and this nation will be powerless to prevent.

It is no use pretending, in ostrich-like fatuity, that this nation, in so far as German views are concerned, is not already at war, a full-fledged enemy. If it served the German purpose a formal declaration of that fact would have come from Berlin long ago. It will come, the moment the Nazi leaders consider it to their advantage to list the United States among their official foes. Perhaps when Hitler, flushed with victories, decides a formal declaration of a state of war between the two nations would be advantageous to him in demanding post-war reparations.

On the other hand, if this country formally entered the war, the aid the American navy would be able to render would be incalculable. Regardless of the war on land, in the Balkans, in Africa, it is the situation at sea that will decide the ultimate victor and it is that naval situation which is making the position of Britain so critical at this time.

The simple truth is the British navy is stretched out too thin, the areas to be guarded and patrolled are too wide for even Britain to fully safeguard.

It is lack of sufficient defensive forces on the Atlantic sea lanes that is bringing the problem of transport between America and Britain to such critical stage. Sinkings of cargo vessels are at twice the rate they can be replaced, even by British and American combined building facilities. And with each ton of cargo capacity, a ton of material, of food or guns or munitions, urgently needed in Britain, goes to the bottom of the Atlantic.

It was because Britain was unable to maintain a complete patrol of the Mediterranean, that Germany was able to send a sufficient force to North Africa to wipe out the winter victories of General Wavell there and bring new danger to the vital Suez canal.

If the United States Navy was taking full and formal part in the war, it could provide, either directly or indirectly, for a tremendous increase of convoy protection in the Atlantic. It could, by protecting the shores of Greenland and, possibly, Iceland, greatly shorten the distance for British convoy duty.

It could take over the defense of Singapore and thus release the large British naval forces there for use in the Atlantic or the Mediterranean. It could convey American merchant vessels, with cargoes of vital war material, around Africa and through the Red Sea.

The question that will decide the fate of the world for a century or more to come can only be answered by the American people. That question is, shall this nation sit helplessly by while Hitler wins the final victory, or shall the United States, promptly, throw its full weight into the scales of freedom and fight with the same courage and faith in the democratic cause with which she has fought since the days of the nation's birth.

To begin with, says a progressive educator, the modern child won't believe fairy tales. Some of the shrewder tots have stopped swallowing statistics.

An Old Light Shines Anew

To its long and enviable literary record, Atlanta now may add one more achievement. Not an addition to the list but rather a revised continuation. The publication of "Writing and Thinking," of which Professor John M. Steadman, of Emory University, is co-author with Norman Foerster, marks a revision of one of the most popular books ever published by an Atlantan. This is said in full knowledge that most Atlantans probably never even heard of the book, for as the title indicates it is not intended for general consumption. With the exception of the incomparable work of Margaret Mitchell, Professor Steadman's book has probably had more readers than any other book ever published by an Atlantan. Since 1923, when the first slender efforts appeared under the title of "Sentences and Thinking," it has been a nationally standard text for college freshmen in composition classes. College students from Seattle to Miami have conjugated its verbs, unsplit its infinitives, and de-tangled its participles for 18 years.

Great thanks are due Professor Steadman for putting down in black and white permission for the less erudite among us to relax from the rigid formality of learned prose. Authoritative permission to use either as a plural, to split an infinitive here and there, and to luxuriate in colloquialisms without a tremble are balm to the soul. Professor Steadman would have us talk like men and not like books. For this we will all be grateful.

In the learned tome as well as in the mystery and the romance of fiction, Atlanta has a proud record. Professor Steadman's text may not titillate the fancies of gum-chewers and strap-hangers, and it may not even make him a millionaire, but it greatly adds to the stature of our literary reputation. Atlanta and the south are fortunate in having so able a teacher and writer.

For the duration of the Far Eastern crisis, it is thought unlikely that the Filipinos would care to grant us our independence.

Costs of Living

Much has been made, in demands by organized labor, of the argument that the costs of living are mounting upward and that the purchasing power of the wage earner's dollar is thereby decreased.

Inasmuch as general increases in wage rates will, inevitably, result in ultimate increases in the cost of the products made, thereby involving an upward spiral in wages and costs of living both, it might be well to look into the actual increase in living costs over recent months.

The National Industrial Conference Board, Inc., of New York, compiles these figures, taking the data from numerous sources and thereby arriving at an accurate estimate of the actual costs of the necessities of life to wage earners' families.

It is shown by these figures that the actual cost of living in March last, increased 0.2 per cent (one-fifth of one per cent) over that of the preceding month, February. This is the average for 56 cities included in the national survey. Atlanta was somewhat above the average, showing an increase of 0.5 per cent, (half of one per cent).

For four months there have been fractional increases, though for the entire twelve-month period, from March, 1940, to March, 1941, the average increase is only 1.8, less than two per cent.

Compared to March, 1929, when living costs were at their peak, present costs are still 23.6 per cent down. Though they are 20.4 per cent above what they were in April, 1933.

Based upon the purchasing power of the dollar in 1923, that same dollar today is worth 115.9 cents. It was worth 116.1 cents in February last; 117.9 cents in March, 1940.

Thus it is seen that, despite claims, the actual cost of living in the average American city has advanced only a fraction of a cent on the dollar in recent weeks. However, it is probable this rate of increase will accelerate during the months to come, as higher costs of production, including higher wage rates, force prices up.

Georgia Editors Say:

FAT CATTLE

(From The Elberton Star)

The growing interest in fat cattle in Elbert county should be encouraged by every business interest. Georgia consumes great quantities of western meats which could be supplied by the counties of the state, but a higher and better grade must take the place of the local grade.

It is gratifying to know that gradually better cattle are filling our pastures, and each sale at the livestock barn increases interest in more and better stock.

The way to greatest success is for the people of the county to work in unison, work systematically, and under successful leadership. It is every one's interest to do this, and by so doing it won't be long before our hills and meadows will be dotted with pastures containing large herds of the best grade of cattle.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

TIME-TABLE CONTRACTS WASHINGTON, April 17.—In times like these, when all goes badly, Washington is commonly pervaded with an odd feeling of deadness and futility. There is a simple cause for this phenomenon. A really critical situation, such as that created by the Russo-Japanese pact and the recent events in the Mediterranean, can only be met with really big measures. Little measures, such as the departmental officials can prepare and take, are not good enough. Everything depends on the White House, and for this very reason the White House seems more than ever secluded and impenetrable, until the measures to be taken are finally revealed.

Behind the White House facade, however, activity is reported to be both intense and incessant at the moment. According to men who have the opportunity to judge, the President is no longer in the do-nothing mood which seized upon him in the weeks before his vacation. Moreover, probably because his vacation did not give him all the rest he hoped for, he seems at least to have steered himself to letting routine matters be handled by others. Freed from the daily pressure of governmental trivia, he is spending most of his time and energy on the major problems now confronting him and the country.

Interpreting the atmosphere of the White House is a little like auguring the future from the flight of birds. Yet it seems fairly safe to predict that the President's continuous concentration on major war problems means the bad news from abroad has shortened his time table. Before the Russo-Japanese pact and the tragedy in the Mediterranean, no one who saw him doubted he would let public opinion mature a little longer before following the lease-lead act with another big measure. Now, judging both by the "feel" of the air and the opinions prevalent in White House circles, another big measure, or several at once, may be taken very soon.

TYPE OF PROBLEM This would be hardly worth reporting if the time table of American action were not the most crucial factor in the war. For it is impossible to tell precisely what the big measures will be.

Take, for example, the problem which now receives far more of the President's time than any other—the problem of delivering safely American war materials in Britain and at the Mediterranean front. The British government has warned the President that, unless this problem is solved, their resistance will be broken, by the most optimistic estimate, in nine months' time. Although reluctant to send convoys, the President is determined to discover a solution.

According to a member of the small group participating in the anxious deliberations on the subject, more than a dozen alternative methods are under consideration, involving every possible combination of air and naval protection for shipping and controlled shipping use. Being the man he is, and perhaps remembering the success in putting through the last war's North sea mine blockade despite the doubts of the British admiralty, the President is examining all the alternatives with an open mind. Thus it is clear that no one can predict exactly what will be done, but it is also clear that something is likely to be done soon.

Nor is this the only problem before the President. Participation in economic warfare has been made much more likely by the Russo-Japanese pact, but the nature of our role must first be settled. Morale, propaganda abroad and volunteer home defense are also much to the fore. Action in all these fields may be anticipated before long.

CENTRAL STAFF One reason for the current blankness of the White House is the extremely small number of people now working with the President. His chief assistant is Harry L. Hopkins, in whose White House bedroom questions of every kind and size are predigested for the President's consumption. Working with Hopkins, quietly but very influentially, is the small "central staff" previously mentioned in this space. The two former Treasury officials, Philip Young and Oscar Cox, and the War Department supply expert, Major General James H. Burns, still come most important members of the central staff. Some degree of coherence has been conferred on the staff, however, by Young's appointment as lease-lead bill administrator.

Then, besides this little, strictly White House group, there are the heads of the State, Treasury, War and Navy Departments, and a number of the British officials in Washington, among whom Arthur Purvis, head of the purchasing commission, is probably the most important. The joint strategy committee, composed of both British and American officers and civilians, which was also lately mentioned here, has been informally set up. This committee works with Hopkins. And, finally, the President is in daily consultation with Winston Churchill.

In these arrangements there is a want of system, a certain amateurishness, which cannot help but be disconcerting. But the time table is the important thing. If the signs are not deceptive in suggesting that the time table of American action has been greatly contracted, then there is still ample room for hope.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

Why Write It Over.

On morning this week, included in the bundle of publicity material that comes to this desk, was a press release from the National Board of Fire Underwriters. Something in the first sentence caught my eye and I read it through. With a suspicion that here, perhaps, was a subject for Silhouettes, I read it again.

And, when I reached the end, I knew I was right. Here was material. But why rewrite it? It was already in excellent form, better than I could do, without doubt. So, with the pressure of other things that had to be done, why not adopt a lazy man's short cut and just steal that copy for the column? Easy. So, here it is:

How to Win A War.

John Thomas Cain is a London costerboy. Over here, we would say that he peddled vegetables. He is 15 years old, just the age when thousands of our American boys are in high school. He has been given the George medal, one of the highest awards for gallantry that his country can give a civilian, and he is the youngest Briton to wear it.

This is how he got his medal. One night he heard the crash of a bomb, looked out the window and saw a paint factory down the street start to go up in a roar of flames. John didn't lose any time. With the help of four policemen, he dug through into the basement of the paint factory, waded through a four-foot flood of paint, managing to dodge electric light wires. Then he and the policemen hauled 10 workmen into the street, six alive. As they were carrying the last one away, the building collapsed. John went home and went to bed and was surprised to wake up in the morning and find himself a hero.

Every Briton On Watch.

It is John Thomas Cain, and people like him, who will win the war for Britain. Months ago, when incendiary bombs started dropping on Britain, cities were severely damaged, because British citizens had not yet been aroused to their individual responsibility. A nation-wide fire prevention campaign was started. The British were made to feel that every incendiary bomb was a challenge to them, as individuals. They learned, not just to sit and take it, but to stand up and do something about it—in particular to be trained and prepared to be watchful and to act effectively.

The result is that damage from incendiary bombs has been greatly reduced. Every Briton is on the watch. America would do well to take this example to heart. Great Britain, in the midst of total war, is fighting fire by means of the intelligent co-operation of all her citizens. Why cannot we Americans, in time of peace, do the same? Our annual fire bill is nearly 1-3 of a billion dollars. This is money tragically wasted, since most fire could be prevented by the exercise of care and thoughtfulness. At this time of national defense emergency, 1-3 of a billion dollars would give us 15 or more light cruisers. It would give us destroyers, airplanes, and anti-aircraft guns.

Must Follow Example.

During the 75 years since its founding the National Board of Fire Underwriters, an organization of 200 leading capital stock fire insurance companies, has led the way in fire prevention activities and now sees the need for America to follow Britain's example. It has seen that if we wish to win our battle for national defense, we must have the intelligent co-operation of all American citizens. That is why the National Board has instituted its nation-wide fire prevention program. Fire prevention is a vital part of national defense. Just as it is in Britain. Incendiary bombs are not falling on our homes, but the replacement of property destroyed by fire requires the use of resources that might be vital to defense purposes.

The success of this program depends on every American citizen. Fortunately, our men and women do not need to take the risks that John Thomas Cain took. But they, like him, can be watchful. They, like him, can feel a sense of individual responsibility for every fire that may occur in their homes or communities.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Tuesday, April 18, 1916: "Germany must yield to the United States or a break is certain. No room for debate left in the communication which has been drafted in regard to submarine warfare."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Saturday, April 18, 1891: "The two stoves which are to be raffled for poor McHaffey, the paralyzed drummer, now in the county almshouse, will be disposed of tonight at Legge & Peacock's drug store."

Fly Sprays Hit.

Fly spray production in Africa is crowding our own profitable markets and a boom for the industry is predicted in Johannesburg. East Africa has greatly increased its output of pyrethrum, from which it is made, and is selling large quantities in South Africa, where many centers produce insect powders and fly poison. Formerly, Japan, and to a lesser extent, Yugoslavia, grew a large part of the world's output of pyrethrum.

IMPRESSIONS

By ERNIE PYLE.

One Night In Plane

DANA, Ind., April 17.—One winter night a few years ago I was sitting in the dark cabin of a westbound airplane high over the rolling hills of southern Ohio.

Word had come that afternoon that my mother had had a second stroke, and they said over the telephone that she might not live. I had taken the first plane from Washington that went toward Indiana.

I had flown many thousands of miles before, but never had I flown in emergency. And for the first time I felt the full significance of what aviation science had given me and others like me suddenly faced with the need for desperate hurry.

Perhaps I felt it too much, for my flight through the night to my mother's bedside took on a touch of drama to me, and I built up the scene of my homecoming in my own mind somewhat as though I was seeing them on a screen.

They had said my mother might not live, but somehow I felt that she would live till I got there. For I felt that she wanted to live to tell me something.

I was proud of myself in those days. I don't mean that I was big-headed, or thought I was better than anyone else. I was looking at myself more by the standards of those who stay at home in the neighborhood, than by any specific accomplishments.

Only you who have come from the intimate confines of a mid-western farm community can know in what fear parents live of their children bringing shame and disgrace upon them.

Never a Disgrace

All that my parents had wanted was for me to be a success. I was young when I went away. They sacrificed to send me to school. I had gone from there on into the world, and my visits home, though regular, were brief and far apart.

In 20 years my mother had not seen me a total of two months. But I had been good about writing, in later years I had been able to send a little money, but best of all I had never brought disgrace upon my parents. They had never seen me in a job, or loafing, or they had never had to swallow the bitter pill of gossip that their son was worthless, I had never been in jail or mixed up in scandal.

And so, thinking of these things, I pictured in my mind my return to my mother's bedside. I saw her lying there, I saw myself rush in and take her hand. I could hear her whisper, just in her last moments, "I am proud of you."

And dreaming thus, I felt the warm self-glorification of "good" people who have forced the gratitude of others.

A car met me at Indianapolis that dramatic night, and rushed the 75 miles through the night to the maple-hidden farmhouse where I spent my youth.

My mother was conscious, but the stroke had wounded her tongue and she could not speak. I did not know until later that she didn't realize who I was.

Nursing At Night

I stayed on and nursed her for many days. I took the night shift so that my father and Aunt Mary could get their sleep. For long hours, after the routine sickbed duties were attended to, I would sit on the edge of her bed, and sometimes she would reach out for my hand with her one good hand, and she would hold it tight, but she could not speak.

My father and Aunt Mary were usually up at 5 in the morning, and then I would turn in. I had been there almost a week, and one cold morning had been in bed barely an hour when Aunt Mary came in and awakened me. She was excited.

So I jumped out, threw on my bathrobe, and went to her room. Her worn face went into a small smile as I came in, and her eyes shone. She reached out for my hand for miles. For long hours, after the routine sickbed duties were attended to, I would sit on the edge of her bed, and sometimes she would reach out for my hand with her one good hand, and she would hold it tight, but she could not speak.

It was a long time before she could say anything. Her words came with great effort, and I had to lean over and listen closely to her. And what my mother said, there so white in her bed, laboring to produce each word, was this:

"Are you—proud—of—me?"

In that one blinding moment, I knew that I had come too late. I knew that I had always been too late. A great choking hatred of myself swept over me, and I could only squeeze her hand, give her a slap on the knee, and say, "You bet I'm proud of you."

And then I ran to my own room and I think for the first time in more than 20 years, lay on my bed and wept.

Always Too Late

I went alone yesterday to the graveyard, and stood in the sharp wind over my mother's grave, with its flowers put there on a recent day when I was across the ocean. And as I stood there it seemed to me that she and I were all alone in the world, and I could speak to her, and there was only one thing I could say to her, and that was: "Too late, Mother. You waited a lifetime for it, and I couldn't tell you. But I was, always. You know I was."

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

THE ADAMANT SPARROW For no reason that I can explain I suddenly thought of Sparrow Robertson.

So, I wired the Herald Tribune in New York and the foreign editor wired back that The Sparrow still was in Paris. The last they had heard from him was that he was feeling poorly but intended to remain. The Sparrow must be about 80 years of age, but his heart is young.

Who is Sparrow Robertson? Well, "The Sparrow" was sports editor of the Paris edition of the Herald Tribune. When the Germans came, Sparrow Robertson did not flee. He remained. He is more Parisian than the oldest family of Paris. He belongs in Paris.

The Sparrow went over, I blush to say, with the Y. M. C. A. during the first World War. He was a product of New York. I doubt if even The Sparrow knew where he was born. He just grew up, like Topsy. He got into the athletic fringe in old New York. He was, so the story goes, an amateur athlete for a while, competing briskly when the prizes were $50 bills hidden in a handsome gold watch. The $50 bill was the works of the watch, and the winner always was supposed to return the case. Later on, as the years caught up with him, he was a timer in the old walking and running races which the A. A. U. held. He was a character around New York when the war came along. He was small, thin, and terribly undernourished, as one might guess from his nickname. But he got into the Y. M. C. A. recreation department and went to Paris. He has been there ever since.

The young men came and went on the Paris edition of the Herald Tribune. It was a sort of refuge for jobless men. They always could catch on there for a few weeks and eat, if nothing else. Some did well there. A great many writers of well-known books had their start there.

But The Sparrow was a fixture.

THE GRAND STYLE The Sparrow had a permanent job. Ogden Reid issued orders that The Sparrow's job was his as long as he lived.

There was a time when one of the young reporters, with too little to do, tried to introduce The Sparrow to the lowly comma. This led to trouble and to orders from New York that no one was to touch The Sparrow's copy. He already had given up, however, the use of the comma. He said, and very sensibly, too: "To hell wit 'em. Guys what know commas can put 'em in as they read."

The Sparrow had a great capacity for brandy. In the lush days, leading up to 1923, The Sparrow was much sought after by the great from New York and for that matter, from other cities, especially the Hollywood great.

He was the central figure of each group which stayed up the night to catch the boat train in the morning. They would get aboard, happy and plastered. They were pretty much human wrecks when they went away.

Few, if any, of them ever stopped to think that as they were taking bromides and aspirin or calling loudly for a doctor, The Sparrow was then was helping another group wait up for the boat train. He saw them all off in those daffy days when every American who had the price of a boat trip was going to Paris to buy a drink and have a fling. The Sparrow helped most of them.

The New York bar, on the Rue Daunou, was the headquarters in those days. It was the scene of the beer-drinking championships. I went there with The Sparrow three summers ago. I did not compete. A Princeton man had consumed the liter and a half of beer in so few seconds the record seemed safe for all time. There were American college pennants on the wall and pictures of old fighters and celebrities. I found W. L. Striding pictured on the wall. I was able to tell The Sparrow about Bill McGeehan's last days and his quiet grave at Brunswick, Ga. The Sparrow wrote a piece about it.

"NEVER AGAIN" The Sparrow would stay up all night, night after night, and each morning his column would come out. He would tell about being with his "old pals" and what a party they had had, and he would end up with one line, "Never again."

Before the ink would be dry on the paper, The Sparrow would be off again. He never showed he had been imbibing. The visiting firemen would be helped out to their hotels or trains, weeping, singing or out. The Sparrow, whose forte was double brandies, would take many as 17 at a sitting and never raise his voice. He outlasted them all. Everyone The Sparrow put into his column was his "old pal." But his real old pals all have gone to their reward. The Sparrow has outlasted them all. His greatest pals were the late W. O. (Bill) McGeehan, the greatest sports writer of all time, and the late Colonel T. L. Huston, of Butler Island, Ga.

It was McGeehan who discovered and publicized the remarkable staying power of The Sparrow. Robertson worshiped McGeehan. They were the two who invented that most hilarious of all characters, "Itchy Guck." The Eskimo channel swimmer. This was in the days when Gertrude Ederle and others were training and trying to swim the English channel.

When the water, always cold, kept the swimmers indoors, "Itchy Guck" would go stick his toe into the channel and come hastily away because the water was too warm.

Well, all the "old pals" are gone and The Sparrow still is in Paris. The Germans have the city. But I hope The Sparrow has enough reichmarks to buy his quota of double brandies. And that he lives through it to see Paris once again the Paris he knew and of which he was a part. No Frenchman ever fitted Paris as did the little man from the East Side of New York City who went over with the Y. M. C. A. and stayed.

RURAL CARRIER SERVICE COMMENDED

Editor Constitution: In reply to the letter of Mr. Stone, of Stone Mountain, Ga., in which he berates those "pets of the government," the rural letter carriers. If he has only a personal grievance against his individual carrier, then I am sorry for him. But if he has a real grievance then he is not without recourse, for the inspection service is maintained for his benefit. I am of the opinion that his real grievance is against his board of commissioners of roads and revenues.

As past president of the Second District Rural Letter Carriers' Association, it is my privilege to know personally a great number of Georgia rural carriers, none of whom is satisfied to render only that required service but willingly and gladly give those extra services which make them so popular with their patrons. Surely their record of service showing that during the past fiscal year, of the 33,000 carriers in the postal service, there were only 10 dismissals for cause, is a mark to be striven for by any other organizations of like size and contacts.

Surely publishers of newspapers should feel safe to leave their delivery in their capable hands and Mr. Stone can have no constructive criticism of a service whose only cost to him is the erection of a dollar mail box and the affixing of a very, very cheap stamp.

Folk I'm sorry for: Poverty-stricken and bedraggled women—"poor whites" they used to call them—who tramp the lesser streets with babies in their arms. And perhaps a couple of older babies tugging at their skirts.

You'll see them on certain corners. Not in the better-class shopping district of Peachtree. But where the street cars start for the "mill districts."

They are not fat babies. But even the lightest must be rather heavy after the mother has lugged it for many a weary block. Babies should be left at home, of course. Not exposed to the dust and germs and microbes of city streets.

Oh, yes? Left at home with whom? A nurse or a governess? Or shall the mother condemn herself to perpetual imprisonment in the shack she calls home—as long as her husband can pay the rent?

More Parades.

Sometimes I wish we had more parades. Circus parades with clowns and lovely ladies on snow-white palfreys. Or military parades, with brass bands.

Because a parade is a free show. "Give them bread and circuses," said an ancient Roman.

If you're not too busy or too bored get out of your office and watch the next parade, if we have one. Rather, stroll up the street behind the crowd lined at the curb and take a look at the people.

Mothers with babies. A few fathers, perhaps, unlucky enough to have leisure.

Some of those mothers have stood there for hours. With their babies. Babies growing heavier, hour by hour. Babies nursing at the breast.

But the mothers see the parade—after a while. And then they go home. On foot or by trolley—depending on how they weighed the balance between carfare and a bag of popcorn and an all-day sucker for the little fellows sitting on the curb. And almost any destinuation is a long, long walk with a baby in your arms.

Mother With Babies; Even Thin Babies Grow Pretty Heavy

The answer, of course, is that such people shouldn't have babies. But, believe it or not, they love them. How silly!

Perhaps, Lincoln's mother shouldn't have had Abe.

Tongue Twisters.

Filler for a dull day: Remember the dear old tongue-twister about Peter Piper and his peck of peppers? Well, try this one just before you insert your latch-key in the front door. If you're game:

"Betty Botter bought a bit of butter. But she said this butter's bitter. If I put this bitter butter in my batter 'twill make my batter bitter. But she said this butter's better. If I put it in the bitter batter, 'twill make the bitter batter better. So Betty Botter bought a bit of better butter and put it in the bitter batter, which made the bitter batter better."

One Little Word.

Raymond Duncan, of the Ellaville Sun, is confounded by typographical errors which creep into newspapers no matter what care may be taken by typesetter, proofreader and editor.

Only too true! You can go over a proof with a microscope and discover no error. That stuff is as clean as a freshly shaven chin.

But when the presses have rolled and the papers been delivered and you settle down with your early coffee to read what swell stuff you'd written—then a miscarriage of typography rises up and slaps you in the face. It sticks out like a white tombstone on a stygian night. If you don't know what "stygian" means look it up. I don't, either, except the best writers use it, so why should I hesitate?

But I have, after baffling experiences, learned not to seek the composing room with a six-shooter in one hand and an axe in the other.

Because the printers have an exasperating habit of saying: "That's the way you wrote it," and digging back into some pigeonhole for the original copy as it came from your typewriter—and proving it on you. So what?

Most important word in our language is a three-letter one. "Not." And it's a most elusive one.

There's a vast difference between writing: "John J. Jimson was found not guilty" and the same sentence with that little "not" omitted. But "nots" seem to have a habit of hiding down rabbit holes. Our efficient city editor some time ago promulgated an edict that "acquitted" should be used instead. It's hard to go wrong on that.

SHE WROTE ABOUT CITIZENSHIP

Mary Anne Rose, Girls High senior, wrote an essay about "American Citizenship" for the annual American Legion contest and hit the jack-pot on prizes. First she won in her high school, then in the fifth congressional district, then the state and now her work has been entered in the national contest. She was awarded two checks and two medals yesterday and now she's trying for a four-year college scholarship. She's shown above looking over the medals with members of the Legion and Auxiliary. They are, left to right, Mrs. L. H. Straube, Mary Anne Rose, and, standing, Hugh Howell and Virginia Lee Brown, president of Girls High student government.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

In the spring of 1815, William Cullen Bryant, then a young man of 21, went to Plainsfield, Mass., on a dreary day to begin his practice of law, having been compelled to abandon his university studies for lack of money. Discouraged, he walked along in the twilight, absorbed in despondent thought.

His attention was attracted by the flight of a water-fowl in northward migration from southern lakes. Moved by the thought of God's care for this bird, Bryant went to his room and composed his familiar poem, "To a Water-fowl":

Whither, midst falling dew,
While glow the heavens with the last steps of day,
Far through their rosy depths dost thou pursue
Thy solitary way?

Vainly the fowler's eye
Might mark thy distant flight to do these wrongs.
As, darkly painted on a crimson sky,
Thy figure floats along.

He who comes zone to zone
Guides through the sky thy boundless flight,
In the long way that I must tread alone
Shall guide my steps aright.

In the above lines Bryant expressed the implicit trust of countless hearts across the centuries. Poets are not always possessed of such conquering faith. One recalls how Matthew Arnold, in his "Dover Beach," confessed:

The sea of faith
Was once, to the full, and round earth's shore,
Lay like the folds of a bright gir-
le, die furled.

But now I only hear
It melancholy, long withdrawing roar,
Retreating to the breath
Of the night-wind, down the vast edges drear
And naked shingles of the world.

But I am enheartened, through constant touch with young people today who are facing the sudden and unexpected challenges of a world upturned by war, to believe that the majority of them are sustained by an implicit trust in the goodness and mercy of the Lord—that come what may, He shall guide our steps aright. With George Keith they sing:

Fear not, I am with thee,
O be not dismayed!
I, I, am thy God,
And will still give thee aid . . .

WEIRTON, W. Va., April 17.—(AP)—Heavy, armor-sheathed tanks resembling box-like tanks have been placed at the gates of the Weirton Steel Company plants here, but their purpose was disputed today by the management and a CIO union leader.

Joe Timko, sub-regional director of the CIO's Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, which is waging an organization drive at the plant, charged the vehicles were "just another case of intimidation."

T. E. Millsop, company president, asserted there were reports "outsiders" would attempt to close the plant and that the trucks were stationed at the gates in response to inquiries from employees as to whether the gates would be kept open.

Aide's Fast Work Saves Employer

John Culpepper, Negro helper to G. R. Foster, chief engineer of the Wineoff hotel, yesterday emerged as the hero of the explosion of a gasoline wallpaper remover which sent Foster to the hospital and four huge pumps and three aerial ladders to the hotel to extinguish the flames.

L. O. Moseley, manager of the Wineoff, said Foster was pumping air into the burning paper remover when it exploded, covering him with flaming gasoline. Culpepper quickly appraised the danger to his employer, wrapped

Foster in a canvas floor covering and then rushed into the hall to obtain a fire extinguisher, which he emptied on the flames.

Foster's face and body were burned, and his clothes were practically burned off, but quick action by the Negro undoubtedly saved his life, Moseley said.

Damage to the hotel was negligible.

All lighting is automatic—in top burners, oven and broiler. 2-in-1 top burners give you time-saving speed for quick starting, with any speed in between—down to the exact and unvarying simmer flame needed for waterless cooking. Automatic ovens let you spend hours away from your kitchen . . . while an entire meal cooks. Large smokeless broilers allow you to serve complete broiled meals . . . done in just a little time.

During our Spring Sale your old stove is worth from $20 to $30 on a new CP gas range—depending on the model you select. Find the way to new cooking freedom—by changing to a CP gas range now.

66¢ a month will add gas cooking in the average Atlanta home now using as much as $3.70 a month in gas service.

Quints Find Out About Dr. Dafeo's Operation

CALLANDER, Ont., April 17.—The Dionne quintuplets found out today that Dr. Allan Roy Dafeo, the man who brought them into the world, has had a serious operation.

"Did he cry?" asked Cecile. "Did they hurt him a lot?"

Told he had had an anesthetic, Emilie commented: "I'd want to stay awake and see everything that was going on."

Finally the 6-year-olds calmed down enough to send Dr. Dafeo a bouquet. He is in a Toronto hospital, where his progress today was described as satisfactory.

Georgia Cattle Is Improving, Group Reports

More Than 500 Head Auctioned at Sale Here.

The Atlanta Fat Cattle Show, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and the Cherokee Livestock Association, proved Georgia-raised cattle is on the upgrade both in quality and number of head produced, it was announced yesterday by the sponsors.

The grand champion and the reserve grand champion were both raised at Alpharetta, the grand champion by Roger Brumbelow and the reserve grand champion by Raymond Collett, both Fulton county boys.

The United States government upgrade for the cattle shown gave more than 200 classifications of prime, choice and good on the show cattle alone.

Following is the list of successful bidders, including the purchase of the grand champion by the Big Star-Rogers and the reserve grand champion purchased by Kroger-

Piggly-Wiggly at $22 and $16.50, respectively, per 100 pounds:

Big Star-Rogers, Kroger-Piggly-Wiggly, White Provision, Wood & Allen, R. J. Meckle, Barrett & Leach, R. M. Moon, of East Point; Cudahy Packing Company, S. N. Forrester, C. J. Kamper, Y. D. Maddox, Armour, Swift, D. E. Blackwell Commission Company, A. L. Lovorn, R. R. Walker, A. & F. L. G. Baldwin, Gene Meinhardt, John Powell, Coker Brothers, of Tucker; R. C. Clark, of Acworth; Beavers Packing Company, of Newnan; Echols & Perry, I. Gilner, Tom Crowe, Henry Beadle, Biltmore hotel, J. Zimmerman, Star Provision, C. A. Hunt, H. L. Camp, T. L. Lyle, A. Farkas and Charlie Herrin's Supper Club.

Show cattle and other cattle sold through the ring was the largest in its history, with more than 500 head of cattle being auctioned. The total of 283,560 pounds of show cattle brought $30,275.

Trailer Schools Suggested for Crowded Areas

The trailer may find a new use in Georgia—that of a schoolhouse. Confronted with a shortage of school facilities in some sections, state educators are looking to the trailer as a means of solving the problem of educating children of defense workers living in trailer cities.

Because of the influx of workers, a serious shortage in school facilities has arisen in the vicinity of Fort Benning, Camp Stewart and Fort Oglethorpe, Dr. M. D. Collins, state school superintendent, said. He added that one small school district near Savannah had an enrollment increase of 600 within a few weeks.

The idea of establishing trailer schools originated in Washington. Commenting on the proposal, Dr. H. F. Alves, senior specialist in the state school administration of the United States Office of Education, said:

"Defense agencies right now are building trailers by the hundreds to provide quick, adequate housing for thousands of skilled craftsmen being moved to defense project sites. And trailer schools may be the answer to the problem of providing proper educational facilities for their children."

are expected soon on legislation authorizing federal aid to states whose educational problems have been complicated by national defense.

Tracy, Rooney Shift to Rhodes

Spencer Tracy and Mickey Rooney step back into roles that won them Academy Awards, with Tracy again as Father J. Flanagan and Mickey Rooney as Whitey Marsh, Mayor of Boys Town, in "Men of Boys Town," which opens today at the Rhodes theater for a holdover.

The work of making good, respectable citizens of homeless and unwanted boys, to which Father Flanagan has devoted his life, constantly produces new dramatic stories, which have been woven into another fascinating motion picture. It deals with the timely subject of Father Flanagan's two-fisted fight against brutality in corrective treatment of youth.

Women Democrats To Attend Meeting

JUST RIGHT FOR TOURNAMENT—When Druid Hills was naming the dates for its Dogwood Invitation Golf tournament there was some doubt about the weather bringing out the blossoms at the proper time. With the meet slated this coming week, though, there is no room for worry now. "It's just right," tournament officials decided before going out for a friendly round. Left to right, among the blossoms, are Pro Harry Stephens, Slim Bowden, Hubert Surratt and Dr. Julius Hughes.

Jacket Nine Wins 8th Straight Game

AUBURN, Ala., April 17.—Smokey Fernandez, a sophomore who has aspirations to hurl for Brooklyn, pitched and batted the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets to a 7-4 victory over Auburn here Thursday in the final of a two-game series. The win was Tech's eighth straight in the Southeastern Conference without any losses.

With three for four, Fernandez, who held the Tigers to eight hits, seven singles and a double, drove in three runs and was his team's leader with the bat. The Tigers, who open a two-game league series with Georgia on the local diamond Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, hit in the clutch only twice to score.

The Tigers bunched their knocks off Fernandez in the two games in which they denied him. In the fifth, but poor base running cost them a tally in this frame. Only Captain Ralph Frazier, with a double and two singles, and Lloyd Cheatham, with two for four, gave the Tech chunker any trouble at the plate. Tech was donated two runs in the first and added to this gift with one-run outbursts in each of five more innings. Every Tech player save Buck Stevens, who walked twice, touched Tommie Mastin for at least one hit and in only two stanzas were the Engineers retired in order.

Crackers

FIVE-RUN RALLY.

The Crackers staged a five-run uprising after two were out in the first inning. Bates led off with a single, but Mailho and Ryan grounded out. Then there were five successive hits. Marshall slugged a single off the screen, scoring Bates. Burge singled to right. Glock singled to center. Marshall scored on the hit and Burge went to third when Tatum booted the ball. Gerlach singled to right, scoring Burge. Richards doubled up the center field bank, sending Glock and Gerlach home. Burgess grounded out to end the inning.

Marshall, whose first-inning single just missed clearing the wire barrier, hit one out of the park in the third inning to add to the Crackers' advantage.

The Vols hopped on Burgess in the fourth, scoring two runs. Hockett doubled and scored on Dugas' single. Bates made a great leaping catch of Tatum's drive up the right center park. Fleming walked. Felderman doubled up the left field, scoring Dugas.

MIGHTY HOMER.

Burge connected for a 400-foot homer in the fifth. His blow cleared the right center screen. Bates made another great catch in the fifth, racing up the bank and leaping into the air to spear Mihalich's smash against the fence. In the sixth inning, who had been weakening steadily, departed. He walked Tatum and Fleming followed with a home run. Nowak replaced Burgess. Felderman singled, but a snappy double play ended the rally.

The Crackers had another big inning in the seventh, scoring three runs. Mailho walked and Ryan singled. Marshall popped to right. Burge singled, scoring Mailho. Ryan scored on Glock's single, and Gerlach's single drove in Burge. Travis replaced Sain and retired the side.

NOWAK WILD.

Nowak was extremely ineffective and the Vols scored four runs in the seventh to draw within two runs of the lead. Rogers was safe on Gerlach's error after Mihalich grounded out. Hockett singled. Dugas fled to center. Tatum singled, scoring Rogers. Fleming came up and hit another homer, scoring Hockett and Tatum ahead of him.

Marshall erred on an easy grounder to contribute to Nowak's downfall in the eighth. With one out, Nowak walked Mihalich. Then Rogers singled to left. Marshall let the ball get through him, and Mihalich scored. Poindexter replaced Nowak. Hockett doubled to left center, scoring Rogers and tying up the game. Poindexter fanned Tatum for the third out.

Jeffcoat took the mound for the Vols in the ninth. With two away, he walked Glock and Gerlach singled. However, Tatum caught Richards' line drive.

In the ninth Poindexter's wild throw gave the Vols the ball game. He walked Fleming. Felderman bunted and Fleming beat Poindexter's throw to second. Then Culler bunted and Poindexter threw the ball away at first. Fleming scored the winning run from second.

Keller Homers; Bagby Slated To Face Tigers for Tribe Today.

CLEVELAND, April 17.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians' southpaw strategy worked effectively again today as Al Smith handed the Chicago White Sox their second consecutive shutout, 2 to 0, in a tight pitching duel with Thornton Lee.

The 32-year-old veteran scattered six hits, batted in one of his own runs and never was in serious trouble in the southpaw pitching battle as he helped the Tribe capture the inaugural series, two games to one.

Smith, who became the Indians' No. 3 pitcher with 15 victories last season after the National League thought he was "washed up" and waived him to the minors, allowed two blows in only one inning. That was the second—after two men went out in the first—when he pitched.

Lee allowed seven hits, but two were bunched in each of the first and fourth innings to give the Tribe its runs.

Ken Keltner lined one of his two doubles against League park's right field wall and scored on Hal Trosky's single for the first tally. Beau Bell opened the fourth with a double high against the screen in right center and came home as Smith, with two out, singled off Dario Lodigiani's glove.

Smith's performance yesterday in strikeouts and bases on balls, fanning one and walking one. His shutout ran the Chisox's scoreless inning to 21. The Sox got two runs off Bob Feller in the sixth inning of Tuesday's opener and haven't threatened since.

The Tribe opens a three-game series at Detroit tomorrow with Jim Bagby Jr. slated to make his Cleveland American debut against Tommy Bridges for the Champion Tigers. The Indians landed Bagby from the Boston Red Sox last winter.

Americus Winner Without Manager

AMERICUS, Ga., April 17.—(AP)—While the Americus skipper, Dick Luckey, remained at the bedside of his two seriously ill children, the Pioneers opened the home season today by defeating Albany, 8 to 7, before some 1,500 fans.

Americus overcame a 6-to-1 lead taken by Albany, and finally won out in the 10th inning.

Illness of Luckey's children, an 18-month-old son and a nine-year-old daughter, prevented him from playing in yesterday's contest in Albany, but at the last minute he sped there and saw his team lose from the stands.

Russ Leach, of the Albany Cardinals, slammed a homer with the bases loaded in the third. Pat Riley, who acted as manager, Jimmy Kroll and Ed Fahan paced the Americus rally.

Cuban Dancer Sues Van Mungo For $20,000 in Assault Case

NEW YORK, April 17.—(AP)—Van Lingle Mungo, Brooklyn Dodgers pitcher, was served with an arrest order today in a $20,000 personal damage suit brought by Francisco Collada Carreno, professional dancer, who charged that the ball player assaulted him in the National Hotel in Havana last March 10.

Carreno claimed that Mungo beat him after he found his wife and the pitcher in the room of a hostess.

The dancer said he had been unable to dance and had been estranged from his wife since the episode. The couple danced professionally as Gonzalo and Christiana.

The arrest order was served on Mungo at Ebbets Field by Kings County Sheriff James V. Mangano. Dodgers' officials posted $500 bond and Mungo was given 20 days to answer the charges.

ALL IN THE GAME

The improvement in the plate performances of Buddy Bates. He still is hitting left-handers better than the orthodox flingers, but he seems to be getting in the groove better on both kinds. As a center-fielder, he remains tops in the Southern League.

The Atlanta team may fool a lot of people ere long. Already it has astonished no small number by winging off to such an impressive start.

Fences In a little piece entitled, "Troy of Helling," Raymond Johnson (Tennessean) says: "Some folks certainly are hard to please."

"Take Jack Troy. The Atlanta Constitution sports editor. Jack complains about the short right field fence every time he visits Sulphur Dell. He has even howled this time, although it played a major role in two Cracker wins.

"Back home in the Georgia metropolis. Troy is waging a campaign to have the fences in Ponce de Leon shortened. He says they are too long, that the Cracker fans want more home runs.

"How do you figure a guy like that?" What Johnson carefully avoids explaining is the fact that right field here is so short it would go into Atlanta's center field twice and with plenty of room left over.

Meyer Balser, Atlanta fan, thinks all Southern League parks should be standardized. Which is a very fine thought, although impractical under present arrangements.

There really is no reason why batters should shoot at "impossible" distances in one park and clout homers at mashie nible distances in others.

Medalist Advances At Agnes Scott

Medalist Mary Olive Thomas, of Auburn, Ala., won the first round match in the Agnes Scott College golf tournament yesterday with a 5-and-4 victory over Marcia Shuffelt at the Forrest Hills course. Other results:

Laura Cummings defeated Gentry Burkes, 2 up; Charity Crocker, bye; Mary Ann Brewer defeated Tat Perry, 1 up; Gwen Hill, default; Wanda Hamby defeated Frances White, 3 and 1; Ann Hillman defeated Mary Davis, 2 and 1; Mae King defeated Martha O'Nan, 2 up.

worm and cane pole, she took this 15-inch brook trout and the five-inch brookie, hanging from its mouth. This was the first double-catch of the season, scored on the first day of the opening of streams in management areas.

Brook Trout Catches Break State Records

Rock Creek and Lake Yield Many Fine Specimens as Season Opens in Management Waters.

By JOHN MARTIN.
ROCK CREEK LAKE, Ga., April 17.—Salvatore Fontinalis wouldn't keep his mouth shut here today and Georgia fishermen creel what was regarded by competent observers a record catch of this native species of brook trout. That is, a record for the present era of fishing, when big ones are scarcer than scales on an eel.

Shortly after sunrise the brookies started slashing into tackle and by noon an army of 47 anglers, which included two from Alabama, had taken enough to feed that many more. But strange to say, they were too excited to eat much—and mantles and trophies were the general subject instead of frying pans and corn pone.

WORMS PRODUCE.
That's what 15 and 16-inch brook trout will do to fishermen, who celebrated this opening day on the waters in the management areas with an assault fronted by red wigglers. Flies were of little use, even when doctored with spinners or "garden hackles." Plain hooks, with and without leaders and tied to the end of a cane pole were more effective than feathered ornaments floating from the tips of $50 flyrods.

Jack Hogg, Atlanta angler, was the first to show a whopper. He took—with a flyrod—a 15-inch specimen from the upper edge of Rock Creek lake. Shortly afterward, Charlie Cox, pumping a cane pole, bounced four beauties from the blue chill. His partner, Stanley Hemp, also from Marietta, got two in a hurry and had his sights on eight more. So did everyone else, as they tackled the waters from the banks, from boats and buried in hip boots.

It was a typical opening day scene. Some were catching and others were missing. Then there was the gradual nudging of elbows toward productive waters. And swaying the other way when somebody connected with a keeper.

Mrs. Remley Brumby did her share to make it a Marietta day. She hooked a one-pound brook. The fish had a fingerling brookie in its mouth. Two at one jerk was all right with Mrs. Brumby, who accepted the small fish in her pocket, as it was already suffocated.

ONE-TWO PUNCH.
A group of fishermen competing with a team composed of Clint Davis, Sev Ulmer, Art Schilling and Kenneth Rogers, landed two beauties with a trophy-number brook and Rogers gave another speck, almost as large, a curveball and then repeated the cast on a 13-inch rainbow.

He quit at this score and called it a success, as well as a conservation gesture.

Many fine specimens were in the lake and down Rock Creek from the Mill Creek Rearing Station. Reports from other areas were not available, but it was safe to say that the largest average catch in both size and number came from the heavily stocked lake, where both men and women battled big brooks from sunrise to sunset.

This perhaps was the best day these waters will offer this season, and it was the first since Ranger Arthur Woody put on shoes that produced a succession of "nearly-a-pound" catches.

Bold Irishman May Miss 'Tucky Derby
NEW YORK, April 17.—(P)—Bold Irishman, one of the favorites for the Kentucky Derby, today was listed as a doubtful starter in the May 3 race at Churchill Downs by Trainer James Fitzsimmons.

"He hurt himself in the hind quarters about a week ago," said Fitzsimmons, "and I had to let up on his training for a few days. He is all right now but I am doubtful if he'll be ready to run in the Derby."

N. Georgia Lakes To Remain Open

The 45-day state-wide closed season on fishing has been lifted from lakes in Habersham, Stephens and Rabun counties. It was announced yesterday by the office of Zach Cravey, state wildlife director.

Blue Ridge lake will be closed during the spawning season along with the rest of the state, but conditions in the other "power lakes," plus the fact that the severe winter more than offset the short summer fishing season in the opinion of the wildlife department, accounts for the opening this chain of streams. Jackson Lake has no closed season.

'We're in War,' Banker Tells State Group

Floridan, at Macon Session, Sees Gradual Debt Reduction.

MACON, Ga., April 17.—(AP)—Declaring that "we are in the war," Dr. Harold Stonier, executive manager of the American Bankers' Association, asserted here today that the nation must demand a firm leadership in this, "its darkest hour."

Addressing 50 Georgia bankers attending the Georgia Bankers' Association convention, Stonier contended that financing is far ahead of production in the current defense program and said:

"I have waited for two months to hear some high official declare that strikes in defense industries are as un-American as Hitler."

The banker warned against political talk of easy victory in the war and said the American people must be aroused to their danger.

He declared more than 91 per cent of defense loans so far have been made by banks and said American banks are now ready to undertake their biggest job in serving the government, the distribution of government bonds and stamps to finance the defense program beginning May 1.

Speaking on "Looking Forward 50 Years," Edward W. Lane, of Jacksonville, Fla., chairman of the board of the Atlanta National Bank, said he foresaw a hopeful future for America and predicted that within 50 years the current trend toward government debt will be reversed and the debt steadily reduced.

Predicting changes that will call for a progressive banking policy, the Florida banker said he looks for higher income and inheritance taxes, "all of which will definitely be a process of leveling off the wealth of every country."

Committee reports delivered to the convention called for the promotion of livestock development by lending farmers money for fences, and urged immediate promotion of forest development in the state.

Birthday Dinner.
Highlight of a golden anniversary dinner party was an address by P. D. Houston, of Nashville, Tenn., chairman of the American National Bank and president of the American Bankers' Association. He discussed Georgia's jubilee and national defense.

Georgia AFL Charges CIO With Strikes

Savannah Convention Urges Americans To Do 'Full Part.'

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 17.—(AP)—The Georgia Federation of Labor adopted a lengthy resolution today in which it pledged unstinted support for "the preservation of our republic and its free democratic form of free government."

Rival CIO Blamed.
Current strikes in defense industries were charged to the rival CIO and to Communists and "their fellow-travelers and sympathizers in key positions within our federal government."

The labor group, state organization of the American Federation of Labor, called on President Roosevelt to issue instructions that "the Mediation Board and the Office of Production Management . . . shall not be used again for the purpose of promoting organizational strikes in defense industry, as is now being done."

The resolution declared "it to be detrimental to our defense program and destructive to our free government for the CIO to call a strike of a small minority in defense industry, create civil war at the plant gates, and then call upon the Office of Production Management or the Mediation Board to step in and force an agreement upon the majority of workers therein, a majority that may not want to be in the CIO."

The federation said that because of the assaults of "brutal forces" on "freedom and democracy," every American must "do his full part at once, at whatever cost or sacrifice that the safety of the nation may require of him."

The resolution authorized the federation president to appoint a committee to present a copy of the resolution to President Roosevelt personally.

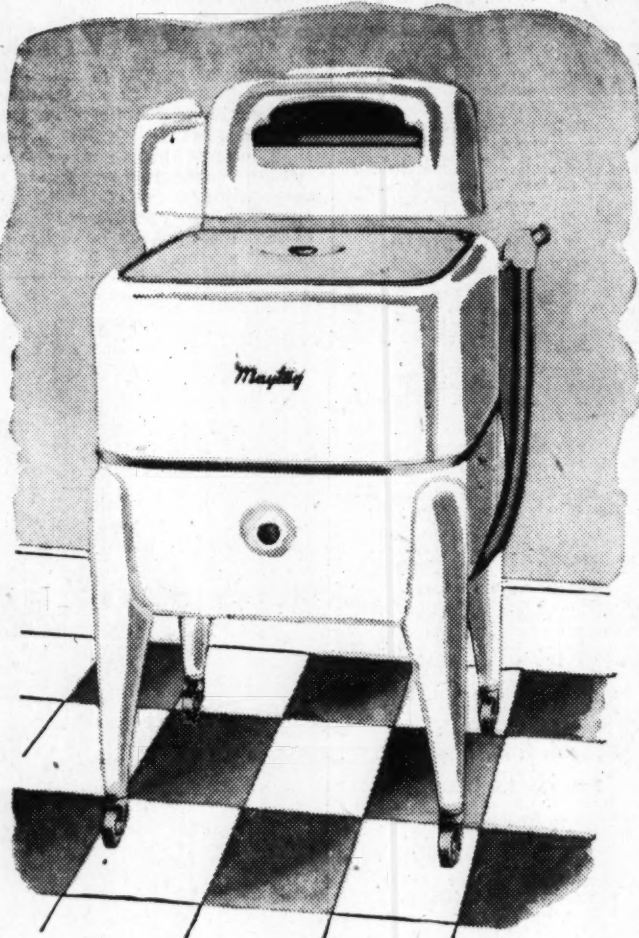

Mayor Speaks.
Belief beyond question in the loyalty of the American Federation of Labor to American principles was expressed by Mayor Gamble in his welcoming address to the convention this morning.

The mayor expressed the hope labor's organization in Savannah and Georgia "will continue under the auspices" of the AFL.

Governor Buys 9 Cows At Hawkinsville Sale
HAWKINSVILLE, Ga., April 17.—(AP)—When Governor Talmadge came visiting the Hawkinsville Rotary Club yesterday, accompanied by his colonels and other guests, he wasn't planning to return home with nine cows. He counted on dining, speaking and touring the city. It was the last item on the program that caught him. The party stopped at the Pulaski stock yard. The weekly stock sale was in progress. The Governor could not resist. He bought nine head and ordered them sent to his Telfair county farm.

Colquitt U. D. C. Members To Be Feted at Pinebloom

◆◆◆ PINEBLOOM, the Preston Arkwrights' lovely Druid Hills home, will be the scene of one of the most interesting events of the spring season when Mrs. Arkwright and her daughter, Dorothy Arkwright (Mrs. Glenville) Giddings, entertain at tea Sunday afternoon. The affair, which will take place at 5 o'clock, will assemble only members of the Alfred Holt Colquitt Chapter, U. D. C. The chapter is named for Mrs. Arkwright's late distinguished father, whose birthday falls on Sunday, the day chosen to honor his memory. As you probably are aware, Pinebloom bears the same name as the old Colquitt home, one of the show places between the States.

General Colquitt's great-granddaughters will assist the hostesses in receiving the members of the chapter. They include Ellen Newell (Mrs. Wright) Bryan, Ann Lane Newell (Mrs. Robert) Whitley, of Presque Isle, Maine; Julia Colquitt (Mrs. Russell) J. Bridges, and Ann and Martha Arkwright. Another great-granddaughter, Dorothy Giddings, is away at school and so will not be present.

Assisting in entertaining will be the officers of the chapter, who are: Mrs. John T. Moon, president; Mrs. Zodie Smith, first vice president; Miss Maude Colquitt, second vice president; Mrs. S. A. Mayo, third vice president; Mrs. W. A. Dedmon, secretary; Mrs. S. H. Wilson, treasurer, and Miss Sara Henderson, historian.

The home will be beautifully decorated with flowers culled from Mrs. Arkwright's famous garden, which, incidentally, is open for the enjoyment of the public. Noted for her generosity and hospitality, flower lovers are always welcome to visit her garden at any time.

Russet, yellow and brown are the colors to be combined in the floral decorations of the hall, and a profusion of white flowers will transform the living room into a bower of spring loveliness. In the handsome dining room a color motif of pink and white will prevail in the flowers to be used.

The members of the chapter are eagerly anticipating this event, for any social gathering at Pinebloom is always one to be long remembered by those fortunate enough to be in attendance.

The chapter plans to especially observe the anniversary of the birth of General Colquitt on Sunday, when Colonel Thomas Spencer will make an address on "Colquitt—Rock of South Mountain," over station WAGA. Through an error in listing, the time of Colonel Spencer's talk was announced for 11 o'clock, and has now been changed to 2:30 o'clock.

◆◆◆ AMONG interesting and distinguished visitors in the city are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Huntington Barrington, of Philadelphia, who are visiting the former's sister, Mrs. Alexis Dolinoff de Wells, at her home on Baltimore block. Mr. Barrington is a noted pianist and he was guest artist yesterday afternoon at the meeting of the Alliance Française at the home of Mrs. St. Elmo Massengale on Muscogee avenue.

The Barringtons have a vast estate near Philadelphia and the bird sanctuary which they have developed is one of the largest in that section of the country. Mr. Barrington owns one of the most beautiful collections of butterflies in the country, part of which he keeps here in Atlanta in Mrs. de Wells' home.

Mr. Barrington is a direct descendant of Samuel Barrington, who was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, and with his sister, Mrs. de Wells, owns a number of treasured relics which belonged to this noted statesman. Mrs. de Wells' collection includes the diary written by her great-grandmother in 1823, in which Lord Byron wrote a few lines.

During their visit here the Philadelphians will be honored at a number of parties. Today Mrs. Paul Seydel entertains in their honor, and tomorrow evening Mrs. de Wells will be hostess at a musicale and buffet supper at her apartment in Baltimore block. Sunday will find the visitors motoring toward Roswell, where they will visit Barrington Hall, which was named for their family. Later in the day they will be honored by Mr. and Mrs. Devaux Lippitt at a supper party at their home near Sandy Springs. On Monday evening Mrs. St. Elmo Massengale entertains at a barbecue at her home on Muscogee for the visitors. Among those who have already honored the visitors are Mr. and Mrs. Joe A. Brown, who gave a supper party on Wednesday.

◆◆◆ AMONG the handsome wedding gifts received by bride-elect Lilla Farrell and Herbert Hoefler, of Columbia, S. C., is a handsome antique silver service of the colonial pattern. The silver is a gift of Herbert's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Hoefler, of Columbia, S. C., and it will be a valued part of the furnishings of their future home in Columbia, into which they will move after their return from their wedding trip. Their wedding, you know, takes place Saturday at the Cathedral of Christ the King.

For their wedding trip, Lilla and Herbert will go to romantic Natchez, then to Biloxi and Gulfport, and finally to New Orleans. Later they will sail for Vera Cruz and will also visit

Advertising Head Will Be Honored

Among distinguished visitors who will be in the city next week is Elon G. Borton, of Chicago, Ill., president of the Advertising Federation of America and director of advertising at LaSalle Extension University. Mr. Borton will arrive Wednesday morning and will speak at the luncheon meeting of the Atlanta Advertising Club to be held at 12:30 o'clock at the Piedmont hotel.

Later that same afternoon Mr. Borton will be honored at the cocktail party to be given by members of the Atlanta Advertising Club at 5 o'clock at the Piedmont Driving Club.

This affair will be followed by a stag dinner for the visitor at 7 o'clock at the Capital City Club, the guests to include only the officers and directors of the local ad club.

"Thine Eyes" and "The Lord Is a Mighty God."

A large attendance is expected, and tickets can be obtained at the door.

◆◆◆ IF YOU are not familiar with your operas, if you do not know the various and tuneful arias, you should attend the instructive and interesting lecture to be given this morning at 9:30 o'clock at Davidson's by Mrs. William M. Dunn, under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Fulton County Medical Society.

The lecture is one of the series of eight being given as a means of familiarizing Atlantans with the great operas as well as making them more appreciative of the musical scores. This morning that favorite, "Faust," will be presented, and making the program more realistic will be the stage setting, which will be the garden scene from "Faust." The opera will be given by Mrs. Dunn in story form and she will use the newest recording as illustrations.

This series of opera lectures is proving a great benefit to busy Atlantans who have planned to attend opera, but who have not had the time to learn or study the music.

MRS. WINGATE BATTLE.

Miss Sarah Feeney Marries Mr. Battle at Church Rites

Miss Sarah Barnett Feeney became the bride of Wingate Battle at an interesting ceremony taking place yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock at St. Philip's Cathedral, with Dr. Theodore S. Will officiating in the presence of the families and close friends. The couple chose their wedding date for reasons of sentiment since it was the anniversary of their first meeting.

The handsome altar of the church was banked with palms and placed on the altar at artistic intervals were vases of white gladioli and snapdragons and candelabra holding lighted white tapers. A musical program was presented by Tom Brumby, cathedral organist. Escorting the guests to their places were Charles E. Sheppard, Kendall Weisiger, Delaney Sledge and George W. Sciple.

There were no attendants and the lovely bride was given in marriage by her cousin, Jack W. Eakin, of Nashville, Tenn. They were met at the altar by the groom and James B. Swanson, who served as best man.

The bride was becomingly attired in a three-piece suit of beige English basket weave, an original model with which she wore a blouse of beige lace. Her off-the-face hat of brown rough straw was trimmed with a matching face veil and her other accessories were brown alligator. A scarf of handsome Russian sables completed the ensemble. A cluster of deep purple orchids adorned her left shoulder.

Mrs. Albert Wright Feeney chose for her daughter's wedding a model of navy lace with matching hat trimmed with white flowers. Mrs. Margaret Lowman Battle, mother of the groom, wore a dress of navy, figured with white polka dots, over which she wore a white linen jacket. Her white hat was trimmed in navy blue. Both wore shoulder sprays of gardenias.

Immediately after the ceremony the couple left by plane for a wedding trip to the west, after which they will make their home in St. Joseph, Mo.

Among the out-of-town guests present were Miss Lillie Barnett, Mrs. A. T. Ray, of Sharon, J. W. Eakin, of Fayetteville, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. Jack W. Eakin, of Nashville, Tenn., and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wylie, of Sparta.

Friendship Club Is Entertained.

Mrs. Lewis Cottongim entertained the Friendship Club at a buffet luncheon recently at her home, Azalea Hills, on Sheridan road.

Dr. J. R. Van Pelt, of Hartford, Conn., outstanding educator, on a lecture tour of the south, was a special guest, with Dr. F. W. Clelland.

Present were Mesdames L. L. Cox, E. C. Hille, Durand Page, E. J. Hammond, Roger Guptill, F. W. Clelland, A. G. Scott, C. E. Ashmore and Lucille White.

Mr. and Mrs. Stamm Feted During Visit to Atlanta

Among popular and attractive visitors in the city are Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stamm, of New London, Conn., who arrived Tuesday to visit Mr. and Mrs. Robert Adamson, on Arden road. Mrs. Adamson and Mrs. W. W. McManus made a South American cruise several years ago in the same party with Mr. and Mrs. Stamm, and following their stay with the Adamsons, the visitors will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. McManus at their home on Westover drive.

Last evening Mr. and Mrs. McManus were hosts at dinner in compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Stamm, inviting 14 members of the married contingent to meet them. Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lewis will be hosts at dinner this evening at their Clifton road residence in compliment to the visitors, and this morning Mrs. Bernard Shackelford has invited a group of friends for coffee at her home on Arden road to meet Mrs. Stamm.

Mr. and Mrs. Adamson and Mr. and Mrs. Stamm will leave Saturday morning for a motor trip which will include Warm Springs and LaGrange. At the latter place they will visit the Fuller Callaway gardens, which will be opened to the public for the benefit of the LaGrange garden clubs. On their return the foursome will be guests for dinner of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Sewell at their home, the Hettie

Jane Dunaway Gardens, near Newnan. On Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Griffin will be hosts at dinner in the Mirador Room of the Capital City Club, with Mr. and Mrs. Stamm as central figures.

Mr. and Mrs. Adamson kept open house for their guests at the cocktail hour on Tuesday at their home, inviting 50 friends to meet them. Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. Russell Bridges, Mrs. W. W. McManus and Mrs. Harry Lange.

The beautifully appointed table in the dining room was covered with an imported cloth of yellow marquisette applied in yellow and blue flowers. Forming a lovely centerpiece was an arrangement of yellow roses, yellow snapdragons and blue delphinium.

Others who have entertained for Mr. and Mrs. Stamm are Mr. and Mrs. Earl Cone, who gave a dinner Wednesday evening.

Alumnae Luncheon.

The Girls' High school class of 1919 will hold a luncheon in the Lanier room at Davison's tearoom Saturday at 1:15 o'clock. Members are requested to make reservations with Mrs. George P. Jordan, Dearborn 1051; Mrs. M. F. Hall, Hemlock 5120-W, or Mrs. Roy Owen, Dearborn 7509.

Biltmore Plans Smorgasbord To Highlight Opera Parties

A brilliant highlight of the social festivities attendant upon the three days of grand opera, scheduled for April 28, 29 and 30, will be the Swedish smorgasbord to be held Wednesday, April 30, at the luncheon hour of 1 o'clock at the Biltmore hotel. Honor guests on this occasion will be the scintillating galaxy of Metropolitan Opera stars who will appear in the three performances.

The affair will be held on the beautiful terrace of the Biltmore overlooking the picturesque garden, which will be a riot of colorful bloom with its flowering trees and formal beds of gay blossoms.

The occasion will be reminiscent of past opera seasons when the Biltmore was always the scene of brilliant parties when society en masse gathered to pay homage to famed opera stars of the day.

Besides the stars, members of fashionable Atlanta society, prominent visitors, as well as members of the Atlanta Music Club, will assemble at the smorgasbord, which will be open to the public.

Mrs. Frank Dean Will Give Supper For Miss Lewis

A highlight of this evening's social calendar will be the buffet supper to be given by Mrs. Frank Dean at her home on Ponce de Leon avenue.

The affair will honor Mrs. Dean's niece, Miss Sarah Spalding Lewis, and her fiancé, Ward Wight Jr., whose marriage will be a social event of importance taking place tomorrow afternoon at All Saints' Episcopal church at 5:30 o'clock.

This evening's party will follow the wedding rehearsal at the church and will be limited to members of the wedding party and the family.

Due to a bereavement in the bride-elect's family, there have been no prenuptial parties given for the young couple, and this evening's party is the only social event given preceding the marriage.

Tea Is Planned For Mrs. Graham.

Lambda Chapter of Tau Phi sorority will entertain at a tea on Sunday afternoon in honor of a recent bride, Mrs. Gerald Graham, the former Miss Ruth Layfield, who is national president of the sorority. The affair will be held at the home of Miss Dorothy Hunt on Peachtree drive.

Members to be present are Misses Jane Bair, Lucille Benson, Jewell Campbell, Nelle Cheek, Jane Coffin, Louise Davis, Ernestine Egart, Geneva Howard, Dorothy Hunt, Henrietta Jones, Blanche Knapp, Sarah Laney, Mrs. Eugene Crocker and Mrs. James Rushin.

Garden Club of America To Hold Zone Meeting Here Next Week

Peachtree Garden Club Acts As Hostess Organization

By ANNIE LOU HARDY.

Scarcely less important to Atlanta's social and cultural circles than the annual season of grand opera is the southern zone meeting of the Garden Club of America which will be held here next week. The southern zone, which comprises eight states, is headed by Mrs. Frank Crowninshield, of Wilmington, Del., as chairman, and she will preside over the meetings to be held at the Georgian Terrace hotel which will serve as headquarters for the meeting. A company of 40 visitors, who include leaders in social and horticultural circles of the south, will arrive Tuesday morning for the three-day session as guests of the Peachtree Garden Club, of which Mrs. James D. Robinson is president.

Long recognized as second to none among women's organizations of the nation, the Garden Club of America is made up of representative women from every section who seek pleasure and the advancement of culture through the development of one of nature's most gracious gifts.

A brilliant program of social affairs will intersperse the meetings which open on Tuesday morning and will continue through Thursday afternoon. Greeting the important guests upon their arrival at the Terrace will be a member of the hospitality committee, headed by Mrs. Robert L. Cooney as chairman, and including Mrs. Samuel M. Inman, Mrs. Valeria Manley, Mrs. Laurie D. Webster, Mrs. Andrew Calhoun and Miss Nellie Hightower. Mrs. C. C. Case will serve as traffic chairman, and Mrs. Valeria Manley as information chairman.

Social Program.

Initiating the series of interesting parties planned by Peachtree Garden Club members is the luncheon at which Mrs. James S. Floyd will be hostess on Tuesday in the garden at her home, Boxwood House, on The Prado. Mrs. Floyd's dinner will complement the visitors with a tea at 4 o'clock on Tuesday at her Andrews Drive residence, and on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, they will be guests of Mrs. James D. Robinson who has planned a buffet supper at her home in Druid Hills.

Wednesday's program of events will begin with a zone meeting at 10 o'clock at the Georgian Terrace, which will be followed by a luncheon to be given by Mrs. Frank Neely at her lovely country place near Norcross. On their return from the Neely farm, the visitors will be taken for a drive through the beautiful dogwood section of Atlanta, for the dogwood will be at the height of its exquisite bloom. The remainder of the afternoon will be spent at the spring flower show to be held at the city auditorium under the auspices of the Atlanta Flower Show Association.

Wednesday evening the visitors will gather at Woodhaven, the Pace's Ferry road home of Mrs. Robert F. Maddox, where supper will be served, and a zone meeting will follow.

A drive through a series of beautiful Atlanta gardens is scheduled for Thursday morning, and the elaborate social program will be concluded with a luncheon held at the Piedmont Driving Club with Mrs. Albert Thornton as hostess. Optional trips to the Cyclorama, the city's many antique shops, and other lovely gardens will round out the three days of entertainment planned for the visitors.

States in Southern Zone.

The eight states comprising the southern zone include Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, Kentucky, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas. The only garden club in the state belonging to the Garden Club of America, in addition to the Peachtree Garden Club, is the Sand Hills Garden Club of Augusta, of which Mrs. Alfred S. Bourne is president. Atlanta's Mrs. Robert L. Cooney, who is a former president of the Peachtree Garden Club and is an outstanding figure in national garden club circles, is a member of the nominating committee of the Garden Club of America.

Among the prominent women who will attend the zone meeting as presidents of their garden clubs are Mrs. George H. Aldredge, of the Dallas Garden Club, Dallas, Texas; Mrs. Peter L. Atherton, of the Glenview Garden Club, Kentucky; Mrs. E. M. Armstrong, of the Houston Garden Club, Houston, Texas; Mrs. H. W. McElvaine, of the Knoxville Garden Club, Knoxville, Tenn.; Mrs.

W. Hillenmeyer, of the Lexington Garden Club, of Lexington, Ky.; Mrs. M. C. Morrison, of the Look-out Mountain Garden Club, Look-out Mountain, Tenn.; Mrs. C. M. Gooch, of the Memphis Garden Club, Memphis, Tenn.; Mrs. Robert M. Jackson, of the Nashville Garden Club, Nashville, Tenn.; Mrs. Esmond Phelps, of the New Orleans Garden Club, New Orleans, La.; Mrs. James Wheeler, of the Wheeler Garden Club, Wheeler, Ala.; Mrs. Joseph S. Gunster, of the Palm Beach Garden Club, Palm Beach, Fla.; Mrs. J. C. McEster, of the Red Mountain Garden Club, Birmingham, Ala.; Mrs. H. K. Armstrong, of the River Oaks Garden Club, Houston, Texas; Mrs. Alfred S. Bourne, of the Sand Hills Garden Club, Augusta, Ga.

Members-at-Large.

Other guests at the meeting will be the members-at-large who are not members of clubs belonging to the Garden Club of America, but who have been honored with membership because of some outstanding work along garden lines. This group includes Miss Annie Wheeler, of Wheeler, Ala., who by the way, is the daughter of the great Confederate leader, General Joe Wheeler; Mrs. W. D. Bellin-grath, who helped to create the famous Bellin-grath Gardens in Mobile, Ala.; Miss Martha Berry, of Rome, whose ante-bellum home and gardens comprise one of the show places of Georgia; Mrs. Arthur G. Cummer, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Mrs. Andrew Stewart, whose home at Bacherie is one of the show places of Louisiana; Mrs. Frank R. Gilchrist, of Laurel, Miss.; and Mrs. Charles W. Kittleman, of Greenville, Miss.

Additional guests who will come as delegates or representatives of their garden clubs are Mrs. Tom Berry, of Rome; Mrs. Leo Burthe, of New Orleans; Mrs. W. W. De Renne, of Athens; Mrs. George Flournoy, of Paducah, Ky.; Mrs. Tom Moore, of Lookout Mountain, Tenn.; Mrs. Jesse Overton, Mrs. Rufus Fort and Mrs. Guilford Dudley, all of Nashville, Tenn.; Mrs. Edgar Padgett, of Dallas, Texas; and Mrs. J. W. Canada, of Memphis, Tenn.

This meeting is the second zone meeting of the Garden Club of America to be held in Atlanta, the first having been held at the Biltmore hotel in 1933, when Mrs. Richard H. Wilmer, of Washington, D. C., the former Margaret Grant, of Atlanta, was zone chairman. The choice of the city again as a meeting place for the south-

Barbecue To Feature Events Planned for Horse Show

An incidental feature of the forthcoming horse show scheduled for May 9-11 at North Fulton park will be the barbecue to precede the ring events Saturday afternoon, May 10.

Mrs. Crawford Barnett is chairman of the committee handling the barbecue. Assisting her will be a large group from the Young Matrons' Circle of Tallulah Falls School, who for the 12th consecutive season are co-operating with the Atlanta Horse Show Association. Service at the park's barbecue pits will start at 11:30 o'clock. Tickets may be obtained in advance by calling Mrs. Barnett at VE 2498.

The program of events is brilliant and diversified, including saddle classes, military classes, walking horses, exhibition classes and an exhibition by a selected group from the military department of the University of Georgia under the supervision of Lieutenant B. H. Juhan.

Reservations for box seats are now being received at headquarters—JA 5622. Prospective exhibitors wishing to make entries should telephone

Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Etheridge announce the birth of a daughter, Kathryn Fox, at Piedmont hospital on April 3. Mrs. Etheridge is the former Miss Bertha Warren.

Dr. Gardner To Speak At Musicales Tonight.

Rev. William V. Gardner, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will speak on "Music—The Universal Language," this evening at the musicale to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Frederic de Bray at their home, 606 Willard avenue, in honor of the Aida B. Sharp Music Club, the Attic Playhouse Group and the Petite Performers.

Other honor guests are Miss Mary Kingsbery, Mrs. William V. Gardner, Mrs. J. De Bruyn Kops, vocal director of Joe Brown Junior High; Miss Helen Knox Spain, first vice president Georgia Federation of Music Clubs; Mrs. Hugh Couch, Georgia composer, research chairman of the Georgia Federation of Music Clubs, and Senator Hugh Couch.

Beta Sigma Chi.

The members of Beta Gamma chapter of the Beta Sigma Chi sorority held a personality meeting at the Biltmore hotel recently. Miss Christine Coleman, president, presided.

Mrs. Louise Carson, who was introduced by Miss Gertrude Young, program chairman, gave a talk on the "Use and Abuse of Cosmetics." She illustrated on members of the chapter the proper and improper methods of applying makeup, and the use of the right shade of the makeup items on various facial features to obtain the most charming and natural results.

This was the first of the series of lectures on the chapter's program for the year on clothes, body, speech, mind and environment. Final plans for the benefit bridge party scheduled for May 6 were discussed, aided by suggestions of the regional director, Mrs. P. Crum and field secretary, Miss Jaqueline Crum.

Interesting Social Affairs Honor Popular Bride-Elect

Yesterday's social calendar was marked with several interesting parties given in compliment to popular brides-elect of the season, among these events being the cocktail party given by Miss Barbara Green and DeWitt Wilcox at the Atlanta Athletic Club for Miss Lilla Farrell, who shared honors with her fiancé, Herbert Hoefler, of Columbia, S. C.

A profusion of spring flowers adorned the private room of the club where the affair was held, and the guests included the members of the honor couple's wedding party and a few additional close friends.

Another pre-nuptial event of yesterday was the luncheon and surprise linen shower at which Miss Helen Aycock entertained at her home on Pine Valley road for Miss Rosemary Wrigley.

The handsomely appointed luncheon table was centered with a graceful arrangement of pink and white gladioli. Covers were laid for 15 close friends of the bride-elect.

Colorful spring flowers comprised the floral decorations and the guests included Misses Perkinson, Emma Hardman, of Commerce; Lib Fowler, of Marietta; Marion Walker, Charlotte Selman, Bessie Peach, and Mesdames Henry Heinz Jr., Robert Miles, John McClelland, Marvin Day, English Solomon and the hostess.

Miss Clifford Hardisty, whose marriage to John Howard Carnes will be an event of today, was complimented yesterday at the shower at which Miss Mildred Reese was hostess at her home on Fifth street.

The bridal motif of white and green was carried out in the decorations of the reception rooms and invited were a small group of the honoree's friends.

Miss Betty Burks entertained last evening at a dinner party at a downtown tearoom for Miss Emily Busha, of Atlanta and Buford, another popular bride-elect, covers having been laid for a small group of friends.

Salmagundi Party.

The Service Club of Mary E. La Rocca grove, Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle, will sponsor a Salmagundi party Saturday evening at 8 o'clock in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Cotton in East Point. Mrs. Kate Thompson is chairman of the club and Mrs. Edna Pyron is co-chairman. Friends are invited.

Cleansing Is First Beauty Step

By Winifred Ware.

Miss Mary Anderson, Warner Brothers' star, illustrates how she uses her cleansing cream on face, neck and throat to keep her complexion young and fresh.

Each time you do a less than perfect job of cleansing your skin you are inviting trouble. Enlarged pores, blackheads, pimples, all begin with improper cleansing. Since these are the really tough skin problems it's far better to work toward prevention than to try a "pound of cure."

The selection of your cleansing cream should be made with care. Consider your skin type and be sure that the cream is suitable—that it will do for your skin what you want it to do. If your time is limited and you can't give yourself a complete facial every day, select a cream which has some softening as well as cleansing qualities.

I know of a cleansing cream which softens the skin and at the same time removes rough, dry skin and dirt. It's rich, well-blended, and about the color and consistency of double cream. The manufacturer, realizing that many skins are either too oily or too dry, has made two variations to suit these individual needs. One is for oily or normal skins, the other, richer in oils and toning properties, is for drier types.

Using a cream properly is as important as using the right cream. Take time to apply it with circular motions of the finger tips, always working outward and upward. Be sure to get down into the crevices around your nose and to work the cream right up to the hair line. Don't neglect your ears and throat. If you make a point of giving your throat and neck the same daily treatment as your face, you'll find yourself well rewarded. Crepey throat and neck wrinkles will be staved off much longer.

Because of this cream's softening qualities I like to apply it before I take my bath, whether in the morning or night, and let it remain on until I get out of the tub, then I remove it with tissue and finish with a refreshing skin tonic to take away the last traces of cream. It takes no more time, and gives my face a soft, clean feeling as if I had given myself a complete facial.

I'll be glad to give you further information about these creams, who makes them, where they can be bought, and how much they cost. Just call Winifred Ware at The Constitution, Walnut 6565, or write me in care of The Constitution, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Today's Charm Tip

Better to remain silent in that lull in conversation that occurs in gatherings than to rush in heedlessly with a controversial remark, or even with an inconsequential one.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edyth Thomas Wallace.

Mother (firmly but without anger): "I've given you the reasons for my decision, daughter, and you've presented your case. There is nothing to be gained by going over it again. I must go down town."

Daughter: "But Mother, I still don't see why I can't go."

Mother: "Then sit down here and I'll explain it to you again. This is at least the sixth time I've tried to make you understand."

Parents who are over-anxious to be reasonable or in danger of becoming the type of parent who talks and talks but never gets anywhere.

A Fragment of Tonsil May Be Better Than None at All

By Dr. William Brady.

A preacher 67 years old talked before a large audience for two hours and kept a clear voice throughout the lecture without once having taken a sip of water. When questioned he said that many years ago a doctor had endeavored to shrink his large tonsils with the electric cautery (which should not be confused with diathermy, for the diathermy instrument or applicator is not hot at all, whereas the electric cautery instrument or applicator is red or white hot), but after a few seances the doctor had succumbed to some illness, so the preacher never had any further treatment.

This is not to imply that the electro-cauterization is good treatment for enlarged tonsils. What it does imply is that it is generally best not to remove the tonsils completely. In the case of the preacher, for instance, it was the tonsils and throat, mucous follicles or glands lying just above and just below the tonsils, were not destroyed by the cautery. These mucous glands secrete sufficient mucus to lubricate the throat and prevent dryness, hoarseness and irritation from developing after a short period of speaking or singing.

Sometimes doctors whose knowledge is not very broad betray their belief that it is important to remove all of the tonsil and that if any portion of tonsil tissue is left in the throat, the treatment has failed. This is a childish and unscientific notion. In the ill advised effort to "get all of the tonsil" many a half-baked throat specialist or surgeon has damaged the patient's throat unnecessarily. There is sound reason in removing enlarged tonsils when the patient suffers from obstruction of breathing or from obstruction of the eustachian tubes (deafness, middle ear trouble). There is no reason at all for removing tonsils that are merely large, if the patient has no such obstruction of breathing or tendency to ear trouble or deafness. Doctors too often forget that large tonsils are natural or normal in childhood, and that the size of the tonsils naturally varies from season to season or with changing conditions of health and nutrition.

Again, many doctors whose training has been limited or doctors who have not kept abreast of progress in medicine—and this category includes plenty of throat specialists—betray their ineptitude by inspecting the throat of a patient who has had his tonsils removed, noticing that some tonsil tissue is present and pronouncing the treatment, whatever it may have been, a failure, without regard for the results the patient experienced. These incompetents commit the error partly because of their desire for damning the work and reputation of the doctor or specialist who removed the tonsils. The ideal in the treatment of infected tonsils is to remove, destroy, eradicate, sterilize or infect the septic focus, the area of infection, and avoid interference with normal surrounding tonsil tissue.

Arranging to Meet Girl Before Leaving for Air Corps Stumps Young Man

By DIXIE GEORGE.

(An Atlanta woman conducts this column of friendly counsel. Her cheerful, sympathetic and logical advice is available to any reader of The Constitution in helping to solve bothersome problems of heart and home. Another person's opinion is valuable and often necessary as the guide to a sensible decision. Dixie George offers the real service of a real friend. Send your letters to her and she will give her advice in this column. Your name will be held in confidence. Write Dixie George, care The Constitution.)

Dear Dixie:

How can I go about meeting a certain young lady?

The situation is that we both live in the city of Atlanta, and work only a few buildings apart in the downtown section, but since I have only been living in Atlanta six months, I cannot find a mutual friend to make the necessary introduction.

For three of the six months, our jobs necessitated that we cross each other's path daily in dispensing our duties, but now that I have been promoted to another job, I only see her occasionally. "Occasionally" is not often enough, for to my eye, she is very attractive and has a pleasing personality.

I would chance upon finding a mutual friend sooner or later to introduce us, but my time in Atlanta is very limited now, for Uncle Sam has issued his clarion call, and I will be leaving in a month or two for the Army Air Corps. During this limited time, I must cultivate her friendship.

I know her name, her home address and her business address, now, can you advise the next step to take? As a last resort, would you, Dixie, consider acting as mistress of ceremonies yourself in bringing us together for an introduction.

Dear B. C. G.:

Well, young man, faint heart never won fair lady, so I think you better snap into a little action and get to work in a hurry if Uncle Sam has his eye on you. Surely in the three months that your paths crossed, there has been some opportunity for you to have given her a casual nod or smile. There is a certain informality in office buildings, which if not carried to extreme, can assume the standing of acquaintance. I do not understand why, when you saw this girl every day, that you did not have one of your business associates introduce you. There are several, I am sure, that you know well.

You say she has a pleasing personality. You have no doubt observed that when she talks with others. Now that you see her only occasionally, make it a point to test that personality of hers, by giving her a friendly smile, speaking to her, or maybe go so far as to walk alongside of her, calling her by name, and telling her that you wanted her to know you had been transferred to another department. Don't tell her you have been promoted. Let her find it out. Of course you could go so far as sending her some flowers with a note attached telling her that you are a prospective draftee and would she consider giving you a little of her time before you answered the call to colors. This is a step which may work, for it has been known to in other cases, so I am passing it along to you for what it is worth. I think your best bet would be to have an introduction arranged by one of your business associates.

As for me acting as mistress of ceremonies, I cannot say if that could be arranged. I give only advice to the lovelorn. I am not Cupid, and even at that I do not know either you nor the girl, so I do not think I would be the proper person. I will say this, however, if you cannot arrange to meet her, write me again, telling me your name, which will be kept in confidence, and I will see what can be done. Also tell me who the girl is. Maybe you could meet "accidentally on purpose" as the song says.

Nerves Cause Voice Harshness

By Ida Jean Kain.

What infuriates a man about back-seat driving is the tone of the little woman's voice, which sounds to him as if she is fault-finding. Naturally, he resents it. So the next time your husband makes you so nervous you are almost ready to hop out and walk, just say to him, in a sweetly reasonable tone:

"I seem to be a little nervous today, dear. Would you just as soon drive slowly?"

He'll slow right down. For awhile, anyway. Of course, you don't mean to adopt a nagging tone of voice. But when you are nervous, you get tense, the tension tightens your vocal chords, and what comes out is a voice about as musical as the twang of rubber bands. No wonder your better half snaps right back at you! To do away with this, we're including the voice in our spring program.

You can get a much better idea of the way you sound to others by standing in a corner, with the face close to the walls, and talking to yourself in a conversational tone. The two walls throw your voice back at you and you have a fairly accurate gauge of the tonal quality.

The best way to appraise your voice is to have a record made. Only don't put your best tone forward. Just let yourself go and criticize your husband, or scold your children, and throw in a sharp remark or two for good measure. Then play the record back and see how you like listening to yourself. You'll probably be surprised at the fault you can find with the sound of your own voice.

The most common faults in voices are in tonal quality, which may be monotonous, harsh, shrill or corrosive; in hesitancy of speech, or in talking through the teeth. You can do quite a lot about remedying those defects yourself. Practice reading aloud and listen to yourself. And instead of singing in the bathtub, repeat the vowels, letting your voice rise and fall. To eliminate the "ohs" and "ahs" think first what you are going to say, then take your time about saying it.

Simple Lines Flatter Stouter Figure

By Lillian Mae.

If you love to hear those "how SLIM you've become!" remarks, choose this Lillian Mae style for your next sewing venture! It's a gay deceiver, Pattern 4742, for it accents your charms and plays down your pounds at the same time. A full-length panel at the front gives you up-and-down lines. And that popular longer-waisted line is introduced in low-pointed seams at either side of the panel and a hipline seam in back. Notice the double skirt panels at either side-front—they're smart, flattering and comfortable, too, for they give nice walking freedom. Bustline softness is held in place by decorative gathers at the bodice seams. You might notch the neckline and the short sleeves and add vivid little bows for extra gaiety.

Pattern 4742 is available in women's sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 takes 3 1/2 yards 35-inch fabric.

Nylon dresses have come to Atlanta! This exquisite new material is being used by famous designers for strikingly styled evening and street dresses. Among the first few being shown is the soft evening gown, above, modeled by Miss Alice Richbourg. The material is as sheer as your hose and much like chiffon in weave. The color of this gown is a glowing hibiscus pink. These new dresses are not inexpensive, but this fabric has many remarkable qualities.

MY DAY: Housing Projects Seem Pleasant

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday.—We arrived in Greensboro, N. C., on time yesterday. A plane sent over by the Charlotte News Publishing Company, which was sponsoring my lecture, was waiting on the field. The College for Women at Greensboro had sent a few representatives to greet me with a box of flowers, and the local radio man was also there with a microphone so I could say a few words of greeting before starting on the other plane for Charlotte.

All this was done very rapidly, and then we climbed into the smaller plane with a delightful young pilot and reporter from the News who acted as one of our hostesses during the day. We were soon looking down on the fields and woods of North Carolina.

It seemed more like summer than spring. The flowers were all out and the dogwood was in full bloom. Somehow or other, this "little" trip to southern California and then to North Carolina seems to have robbed me of that first feeling of spring creeping over the landscape.

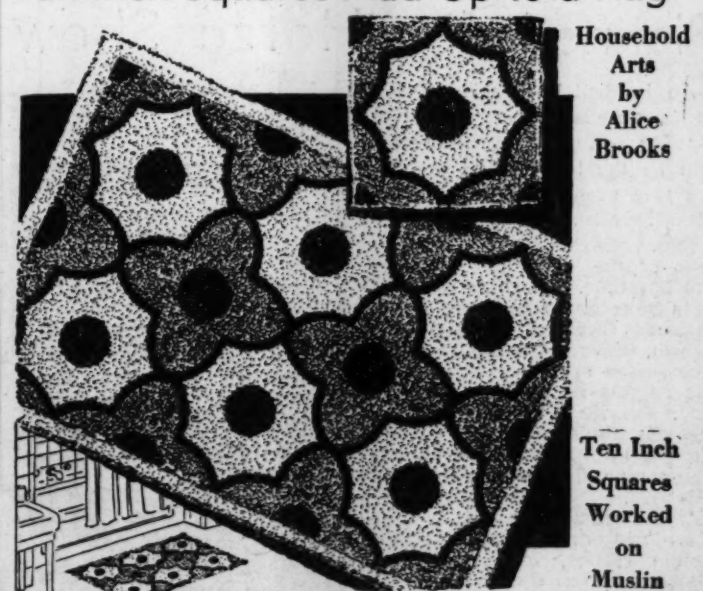

There was no sign of spring the last time I was in Hyde Park and suddenly, when I was back in Washington, everything was out—magnolias, forsythias, daffodils; everything seemed in full bloom overnight! Perhaps, when I get back to Hyde Park in early May, I shall get that first sense of life awakening again the trees, fields and marshes.

As we came through Virginia this morning, one hillside seemed to me particularly beautiful. The leaves on the trees were pale green and a soft reddish brown. In between, some kind of white blossom glistened and the purple of the Judas tree was everywhere in sight.

Yesterday afternoon we visited two housing projects on the outskirts of Charlotte; one for colored people and one for white people in the low-income group. They were nice houses and very much appreciated by the tenants, who are already in them. The rents are reasonable and everyone seems happy.

There is a big playground for the children near both projects and a good deal of equipment had already been placed. In the project for Negroes there was very little equipment, but I hope that this is only temporary and that it is going to be possible to give the colored children a similar opportunity for recreation. It seemed to me that in both projects there were a great many children and anything that can be done to make life pleasanter for them is valuable in making the projects a success.

OVERCOATS FOR SOLDIERS

—Orders have been placed with 21 different clothing manufacturers to make 920,000 overcoats which will fill next winter's requirements under the present expansion program.

The contracts total $3,583,274 on the basis of lowest bids submitted. Cloth from which these overcoats are to be manufactured will be from stocks already purchased by the Quartermaster Corps.

REFRIGERATORS MOVING

—Herndon Thomas, manager of the Crosley products department of Beck & Gregg, who have been general distributors for Crosley refrigerators for the past 10 years, is quite enthusiastic over the first increase shown for the sale of Crosley refrigerators. He states that an announcement from Robert L. Pettie, vice president and general manager of the parent corporation, states that shipments of Crosley refrigerators during March, 1941, were greater than the total of all refrigerators during the entire first quarter of 1940.

"While the refrigeration industry, as a whole, showed an increase of 42 per cent in shipments during the first two months of 1941 as compared to the same period in 1940, the increase in shipments of Crosley refrigerators during the same period was 102 per cent as compared with the same period in 1940," announced Mr. Pettie.

100 NEW BUILDINGS

—General Walter R. Weaver, commanding officer of the southern flying corps, stated in Columbus recently that about 100 buildings and five concrete airways would be built at the Albany Advanced Air Corps Flying School. General Weaver said that the buildings would house about 500 cadets, 250 officers and 2,500 enlisted men. He stated further that the buildings would include 37 barracks, 100 day rooms, five mess halls, a hospital with 100 beds, the usual exchange and a buildings, post office and a theater.

General Weaver reported from Washington that advanced training in the use of two-engine planes would be given at the Albany Air School, and that as soon as more would be available $800,000 would be spent on construction there.

MADE VICE PRESIDENT

—William Candler Jr. was elected vice president of the Baltimore Hotel Corporation at a meeting of the board of directors held Wednesday.

Mr. Candler is the son of Mr. Howell Ross Hanson and the late William Candler, and spent on construction there.

The Army IN GEORGIA

General George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the United States Army, announced at Washington yesterday that the Army would give officer training to approximately 10,000 selective service soldiers annually, with one of the 10 training schools to be at Fort Benning, Ga.

Candidates will be selected primarily on the basis of leadership actually demonstrated in the ranks, General Marshall told his press conference, adding, "They ought to make the finest group of officers obtainable."

Fort Benning will train 600 students in infantry beginning July 5, it was said.

RESERVE OFFICERS TO BE PROMOTED

All Reserve officers who on May 1 have completed the required time in their grade and have been awarded certificates of capacity for the completion of required training will automatically move up one grade, the Georgia Reserve Officers' Association has been informed.

Lieutenant Colonel P. S. Moses, president of the state association, said the announcement came from the army chief of staff office in Washington. About 4,000 officers in all parts of the nation will be affected, Colonel Moses said. Of these, about 3,000 are captains and the rest lieutenants or of higher rank.

The Georgia Reserve Officers' Association convention will be held at Camp Wheeler, Macon, May 17-18, and the national convention of the organization will be in New Orleans May 25-28.

OFFICERS ASSIGNED TO ATLANTA DUTIES

The following transfers were announced yesterday by the War Department at Washington: Colonel Edward S. Brees, Corps of Engineers, Reserve, New Orleans, to Atlanta; Lieutenant Colonel Milo V. Buchanan, Infantry, Boston, to Atlanta; and Captain Henry S. Carroll, D. C., Fort Adams, to Atlanta.

PURCHASE OF PERISHABLE FARM PRODUCE BEGINS

Purchase of perishable farm produce for use in Army camps through a central purchasing agency in the Quartermaster Corps began in Atlanta this week, with Second Lieutenant John M. Fain, of Atlanta, in charge of the work for the Atlanta area.

Lieutenant Fain will buy produce for Camp McClellan, Annapolis, Ala., and Camp Wheeler, Macon, Ga., under a system whereby the Army accepts bids for specific lots of produce from commission merchants, brokers of farm co-operatives to supply needs at Army camps.

WATER TANK CONTRACT GOES TO NEWMAN FIRM

Contract for $22,445 for construction of an elevated steel water tank at Fort Benning has been awarded by the War Department to R. D. Cole Manufacturing Company, of Newman, it was announced yesterday at Fourth Corps Area headquarters.

ACTIVE DUTY CONTINUES FOR ATLANTA OFFICERS

A number of Army officers from Atlanta, now on extended active duty at Fort Benning, and whose present tour of active duty expires June 30, 1941, have been continued on active duty for a year, effective July 1, 1941, it was announced yesterday at Fourth Corps Area headquarters.

They are First Lieutenants C. D. Barton, L. M. Yeatts, E. G. Lambright, and Second Lieutenants S. F. Anderson, B. K. Armstrong Jr.,

FUND ALLOCATED FOR CAMP GORDON BUILDING

Allocation of $249,000 for construction of the hangar-administration building for the 128th Observation Squadron of the Georgia National Guard has been made at Washington by the Works Progress Administration, it was learned yesterday.

The buildings will be four stories high, of concrete and steel, and will be situated at the eastern end of the east-west runway at Camp Gordon. The administration building will be 58 feet wide and 200 feet long. The hangar will be 254 feet long and 144 feet wide.

Plans of the War Department to purchase its own railroad to be used for testing military railway operations under assumed field service conditions were described yesterday at Fourth Corps Area headquarters.

The Army will buy 60 miles of the Red River & Gulf Railway in Louisiana, and 17 1-2 miles of additional lines constructed to connect Camp Claiborne and Camp Polk, it was said.

Specially constructed light-weight railway equipment, 20-ton cars and 30-ton locomotives will be used in training the men, and a special railway operations battalion of engineers will be formed.

QUARTERMASTERS PLAN NINE MILLION MEALS

If some of the outfits miss a meal now and then during the Second Army's June maneuvers, the Quartermaster Corps' brass hats will look upon it as an "interesting situation."

That's because the Fourth Corps Area quartermaster plans to use the maneuvers to simulate actual field supply conditions.

"If an outfit finds itself without food because the supplies got crossed up and went to the wrong place," Brigadier General James L. Frink observed yesterday, "that will be an interesting situation."

General Frink announced an advance base depot would be established at Chattanooga, Tenn., to supply the Army maneuver with food.

During the period of the maneuver some 3,000,000 rations (which means 9,000,000 meals) will be funneled through this depot, General Frink said.

TWO RESERVE NURSES ORDERED TO DUTY

Two Georgia reserve nurses have been ordered to a year's active duty, effective May 1, it was announced yesterday at Fourth Corps Area headquarters.

They are Sarah E. Gaines, of 1053 West Peachtree street, Atlanta, to Camp Blanding, Fla., and Mary E. Smith, of Stonewall, to Camp Livingston, La.

NEWMAN, DOUGLAS MEN GET COMMISSIONS

Second Lieutenant David M. Carson, of Newman, infantry reserve, and Second Lieutenant Charles H. Elder, of Douglas, infantry reserve, have accepted appointment in the Officers Reserve Corps, it was announced yesterday at Fourth Corps Area headquarters.

CAMP WHEELER TO HOLD OPEN HOUSE WEEKLY

MACON, Ga., April 17.—(P)—Starting April 20, each Sunday will be "open house" for civilian visitors at Camp Wheeler, the $10,000,000 army training center near here.

Brigadier General John H. Hester, commandant, made the announcement last night, stating guides will escort visitors to points of interest in the area.

A typical regimental area, the mess hall, a barracks and several other buildings will be open for inspection.

More Turkey Raising In Georgia Is Urged

Thanksgiving isn't here yet and already there is a scarcity of turkeys.

Advocating the raising of turkeys as a means of increasing farm income, J. C. Bell, acting head of the poultry department at the University of Georgia College of Agriculture, informed the State Board of Regents yesterday that turkey production in Georgia should be at least doubled.

He pointed out that last year Georgia produced approximately 120,000 turkeys and consumed more than twice that number.

Fulton R.O.T.C. Students To Visit Benning Today

Eighty-three members of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps of Fulton county high schools will spend today at Fort Benning, Ga., as guests of the post and will be taken on an observation tour of the Army base.

Captain L. L. Deck, professor of military science and tactics of Fulton county schools, will accompany the students as will the instructors of military in the Fulton, West Fulton, North Fulton and Richardson High schools.

NOON CLOSINGS.

CARROLLTON, Ga., April 17.—Noon closings on Wednesdays through the spring and summer will be inaugurated here by 37 business houses on May 7, according to an agreement signed today.

Molasses Jug Holds Food Iron

To this day any mention of molasses recalls the memory of our big kitchen as we piled in after school almost any day of the year and found waiting for us on the kitchen table big glasses of milk and the molasses jug, a loaf of fresh bread and a pile of clean saucers. The procedure was to pour out as much molasses as you wanted, cut off slices of bread and dunk the bread into the molasses to your heart's content. No need to tell us what molasses was for—we knew! In those days we did not realize that the molasses and the homemade wholewheat bread supplied us with plenty of iron and vitamins and the milk added to this protein and calcium—we just knew we liked it, it filled the void between lunch and dinner and we could have as much as we wanted!

Today experts tell us that dark molasses is almost as rich in iron as beef liver and suggest that such an excellent source of food iron should be included in the children's diet. Fortunately children generally like the molasses flavor and molasses cookies, gingerbread or molasses candy are popular with them. These, however, cannot be served all the time, so we have selected a few other good things made with molasses for you to add to your list. For example, there is a delicious molasses ice cream and the ever popular brownies made with molasses and pecan meats. And a recipe for those good old-fashioned molasses drops that are so delicious covered with chocolate, orange or white icing, or put together in pairs with currant, raspberry or cranberry jelly.

A little molasses added to a pot roast while it is cooking is a good trick borrowed from the Swedish school of cookery—try a tablespoonful in the next pot roast you cook. Or mix a tablespoon molasses with one-third cup hot water and baste a meat loaf with it twice during the cooking period.

Here is the recipe for the molasses drops mentioned above: Mix together three-fourths cup shortening and three-fourths cup soft brown sugar until the mixture is creamy. Then add three-fourths cup dark molasses, two well-beaten eggs, three-fourths cup sour cream mixed with one tablespoon baking soda. Sift three cups flour with one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon cinnamon and one-half teaspoon nutmeg and add gradually to the mixture, making a dough that can be rolled on a floured board or shaped in small balls between the palms of the hands, depending on whether you want the thick, old-fashioned cookies or the thin, equally old-fashioned drops. For the latter roll little bits of the dough between the palms of the hands to form balls the size of large marbles. Place these two inches apart on a greased baking sheet and bake in a very moderate oven—325 to 350 degrees—for about 15 minutes. When done, ice or put two together with jelly between. For the cookies, roll the dough to one-half inch thickness, shape with a round cutter and bake in a moderate oven on a greased cookie sheet.

Molasses Ice Cream With Chocolate: Mix yolks of eight eggs with one-half pint of pure molasses. Add slowly one pint of boiling milk. Put in a double boiler and cook, stirring with a wooden spoon slowly. Do not let it boil. When the mixture begins to thicken, remove from the fire and let it cool. Keep stirring. When cool, add one pint of heavy cream and two ounces of fresh chopped roasted almonds. Freeze. When ready to serve sprinkle with grated bitter chocolate.

Molasses Peppermint Ice Cream: Equally good and just a bit different. Roll or crush molasses peppermint candies to make one-half cupful of the crushed crumbs. Scald one cup milk, add one-half cup sugar and a few grains of salt and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Then cool and when cold add two well-beaten egg yolks and then whip in the stiffly beaten egg whites and the fourths cup cream whipped until thick but not too stiff. Pour into the freezing tray of the refrigerator and freeze for 30 minutes or until half stiff. Scrape out of the pan, mash with a spoon to make it smooth, stir in the crushed peppermint candy, pour back into the pan and finish freezing.

Pecan Molasses Brownies will make a hit with afternoon tea or coffee or served with ice cream, fresh fruit—especially pineapple.

Sift seven-eighths cup flour, measure and sift twice with one-fourth teaspoon salt; lightly mix in one cup broken pecan meats, reserving a few whole nuts for decoration. Cream one-third cup butter and one-third cup powdered sugar thoroughly. Blend in one-third cup pure molasses and one well-beaten egg. Add dry ingredients and mix well. Place dough in a greased eight-inch square pan and arrange pecans in rows on top of dough. Bake in a moderate oven—350 degrees.

Spring and summer, bringing sunshine and flowers, are enjoyed more fully if the family can spend many hours out of doors. An outdoor dining room should be planned right now, using furniture that can stand the weather. That shown above is wrought iron, table with glass top, chairs with removable washable cushions. Mrs. E. S. Byrd Jr. is seen arranging a service for four. Note the flower holder beneath the table, center.

Salad Dressings

Fresh fruits in almost any combination make wonderful salads. They can be as beautiful as a picture and masterpieces of flavor through exercise of imagination and taste in choice of fruits and arrangement, and in right dressing. Interesting and different dressings add much to the enjoyment of all salads. Here are some salad dressing recipes which will greatly increase the popularity of your salads with family and friends.

Fruit Salad Dressing.
1-4 cup sugar.
1-4 teaspoon paprika.
1-2 teaspoon dry mustard.
1-4 cup cider, malt or tarragon vinegar.

1-2 cup salad or olive oil.
1 tablespoon tomato catsup.
Combine salt, sugar, paprika and mustard. Add remaining ingredients and beat thoroughly.

Cream French Dressing.
3 ounces cream cheese.
1-3 cup vinegar.
4 teaspoons powdered sugar.
1-2 teaspoon cinnamon.
1 teaspoon paprika.
1 teaspoon salt.
1-4 cup salad oil.
Soften cheese and add vinegar gradually, beating continually. When thoroughly blended add dry ingredients and mix well. Whip in the oil. A good dressing for fruit salads.

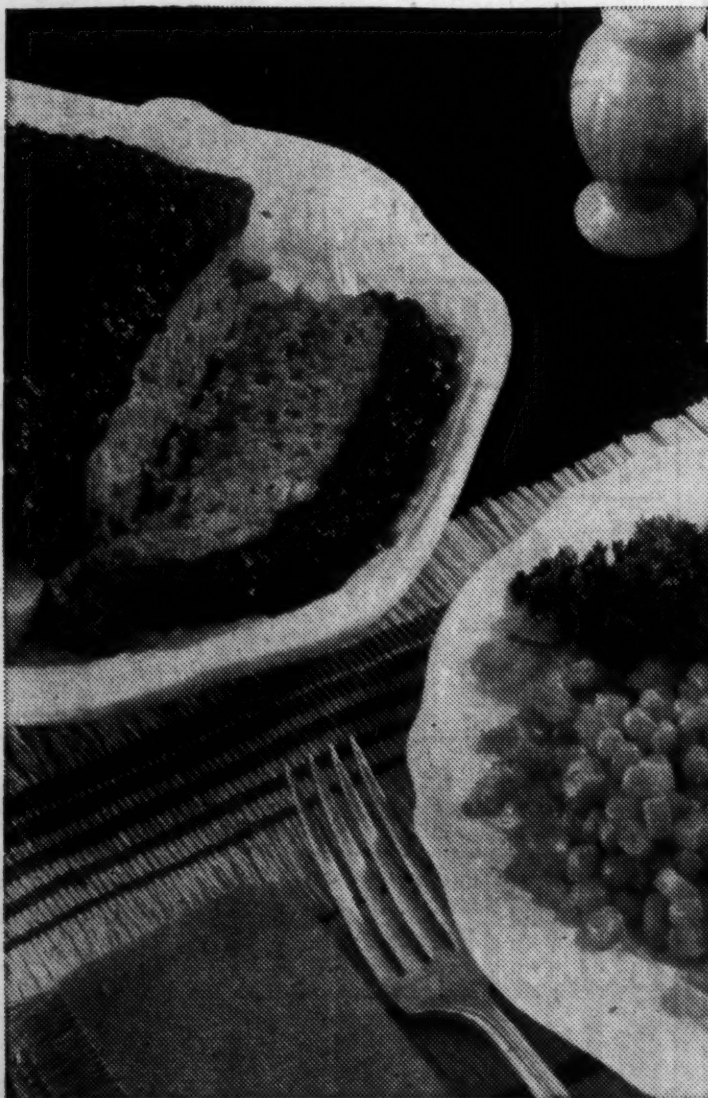

Cooked Salad Dressing.
1 teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon prepared mustard.
1-2 tablespoons flour.
1 egg.
3-4 cup milk.
4 tablespoons vinegar.
1 tablespoon butter or margarine.

Combine all ingredients except butter and blend thoroughly after addition of each. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly until thick. Add butter and blend thoroughly. Cool. Good with fruit or vegetable salads. Particularly good with cole slaw or potato salad.

Salad Dressing With Fruit Juice.
1-2 cup sugar
1 cup pineapple or other fruit juice
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon flour
2 eggs
1-2 cup cream, whipped
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Blend the butter and flour, add the fruit juice which has been heated. Place in the top of a double boiler and heat. Mix egg yolks and sugar and add to above mixture. Cook until thickened, then pour into the stiffly beaten whites of eggs. Cool. Add lemon juice to whipped cream and combine with cooked dressing.

Below: Ham loaf with corn and baked potatoes.

Fresh fruits make succulent salads. Fresh pineapple and strawberries here are combined.

Ham Loaf With Cranberry Sauce

Left-over cold baked ham blossoms anew when made into a savory loaf covered with a topping of red cranberry sauce.

Ham Loaf With Cranberry Sauce.

1 or 2 eggs.
2 tablespoons minced parsley.
2 tablespoons minced onion.
1 cup bread crumbs.
1 cup milk.
Salt and pepper.
1 can jellied cranberry sauce.

Mix ingredients thoroughly, except cranberry sauce. Crush cranberry sauce with a fork and spread over bottom of well-greased loaf pan. Arrange meat mixture over cranberry sauce, pressing down firmly. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 F. 30 to 40 minutes. The hot cranberry sauce may be put on the loaf after baking, if desired. Serves six.

Ideas From a Cook's Notebook

Claret Salad Mold.

(Picture Above.)
2 tablespoons unflavored gelatin.
1/2 cup cold water.
3 cups broth.
Salt to taste.
1/2 cup claret wine.
2 cups cooked veal, chicken or ham, cured.
1 cup green peas cooked.
Mint leaves.
Mayonnaise.

Soak gelatin in cold water. Dissolve in hot broth, and add salt. Cool. Add wine. Place in refrigerator until mixture thickens slightly. Pour half of this mixture into ring mold, which has been rinsed with cold water. Chill until this begins to congeal, then arrange a layer of meat cubes and green peas on the gelatin layer. Add remaining peas and meat to remaining gelatin and pour over. Chill until firm. Unmold and serve garnished with mint leaves. Packaged salad gelatin may be used instead of unflavored gelatin, and if substituted use 2 packages salad gelatin, omitting salt and broth. Dissolve salad gelatin in 3/4 cups hot water and when cool add wine and proceed with recipe as given for plain gelatin.

Ever try serving thin, rather large pancakes rolled around hot well seasoned asparagus tips? Add a little cream sauce and there's another grand meatless luncheon dish.

Cottage Cheese Souffle.

1-4 cup butter
1-2 cup flour
1-2 cup milk
2 cups cottage cheese
1 teaspoon grated onion
Salt and pepper
4 eggs.

Melt the butter in a double boiler, add flour and mix well. Add milk gradually and cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Add cottage cheese, onion and salt and pepper to taste and mix well. If cottage cheese is in large curds press through a sieve. Remove from heat and add slowly to the well beaten egg yolks. Fold in

Prize Winning Recipes For This Week

Asparagus Loaf

Submitted by Mrs. Ivan J. Lester, 315 Smith St., Dublin, Ga.
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
3 cups cooked asparagus tips
Paprika
4 eggs, well beaten
1 cup cream

Combine butter and flour. Add cream slowly, stirring constantly. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Add salt. Mix thoroughly. Add eggs and 1 cup asparagus tips. Line a well-oiled mold with remainder of asparagus tips. Cover with sauce mixture. Set in pan of warm water. Bake in moderate oven (375 F.) 1 hour. Serve with a white sauce. Garnish with parsley and paprika.

Stuffed Sweet Potatoes

Submitted by Mrs. H. A. Metcalf Jr., 1433 Hartford Ave., S. W., Atlanta.
2 medium sweet potatoes
2 tablespoons melted butter
1 teaspoon salt
1-4 cup orange juice
1-4 cup chopped pecans
No. 1 can crushed pineapple
6 marshmallows, cut into halves

Bake potatoes until done in a moderately hot oven (400 F.).

While hot cut in halves lengthwise, scoop out center, mash well and add butter, salt, orange juice, nut meats and pineapple. Refill potato shells with this mixture, cover tops with marshmallow halves and brown in moderate (350 F.) oven. Serves 6.

Creole Chicken, Louisiana Style

Submitted by Mrs. George P. Fleming, 1634 South St., Lake Charles, La.

1 fryer, weighing from 2 to 2 1/2 pounds
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon pepper
1-4 cup sweet milk
2 well-beaten eggs
1-2 cup flour, sifted, then measured
1 1/2 cups corn meal, or cracker meal

Wash and split the chicken into quarters. Season with pepper and salt. Add the sweet milk and 1-2 teaspoon salt to the beaten eggs. Pour egg mixture over quartered chicken and allow to stand for an hour or longer. Remove chicken from egg mixture and roll first in flour, then in corn meal, or cracker meal may be used. Fry in hot fat until browned, reduce heat and simmer until meat is cooked, about 25 minutes. Serve on a hot platter with boiled rice.

Cookbooklets Make Valuable File

The Cookbooklets being distributed by The Constitution will be a valuable addition to your file of recipes. These bookletlets were prepared by a home economist of national reputation, the cooking directions are modern and the booklet quite attractive in design. The one out this week is "Poultry and Game"; the one to be released next week, "Pies and Pastries." If you will collect these bookletlets as they come out and for 39 cents get the loose-leaf binder to hold the entire series, you will have a complete modern cookbook at small cost. To obtain these Cookbooklets simply send 10 cents and a coupon clipped from The Constitution. Or if you wish you may get them in the lobby of The Constitution building.

substituting 1-2 cup granulated sugar and 2 teaspoons cinnamon for brown sugar. Raisins may be added.

Add 1-2 cup grated, hard American cheese to your favorite baking powder biscuit dough just before adding the liquid. Shape and bake in the usual manner and serve hot with salads.

Baked Vegetable Loaf.

1 1-2 cups diced potatoes
2 cups leftover vegetables
4 tablespoons green pepper
4 tablespoons onion
1 cup bread crumbs
1-4 cup melted butter
1-3 cup beef stock
1 egg
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-3 teaspoon pepper
1-4 cup molasses
3 eggs (to be used as garnish)

Prepare and cook the potatoes. Then chop them together coarsely with the leftover vegetables (carrots, peas, beans, etc.), green pepper and onion. Add bread crumbs, butter, beef stock, beaten eggs, seasonings and molasses. Mix thoroughly. Turn into an oiled loaf pan and bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) 1 hour. Garnish with slices of hard cooked eggs or mushroom sauce. Serves 6.

BISCUIT VARIATIONS.

Butterscotch Biscuits: Roll the dough into an oblong about 1-4 inch thick. Spread with 1 tablespoon of soft butter and spread with 1-2 cup brown sugar. Roll up like jelly roll and cut in 1-inch slices. Place slices cut side down close together in greased baking pan. Bake as usual.

Cinnamon Biscuits: Follow directions for Butterscotch Biscuits,

Coal Producers To Aid Drive Against Smoke

City Will Be Given Benefit of Expert Engineers.

Atlanta's smoke problem is to get the acid test—a critical analysis by those most competent to measure it, coal producers themselves.

In addition, the city is to be given the benefit of expert engineers of schools for stokers and of every other facility with which the Coal Producers Committee for Smoke Abatement is armed.

Mayor LeCraw yesterday accepted the services of the organization, offered through Jack Voge, field representative.

Voge was accompanied to LeCraw's office by Charles M. Farrar, executive secretary of the Atlanta Coal Merchants' Credit Association, who assisted the organization in giving the "most scientific and most serious study to the smoke problem of any organization in the entire country."

"Since we produce high volatile fuel and since we recognize that it is one of the worst offenders if not the worst insofar as the production of smoke is concerned, we are the most interested in a solution of the smoke problem," Voge said.

Cheapest Fuel.
"When a chimney belches smoke, it means that the consumer of our products is not getting as much as he is entitled to from his purchase from us. We want him to get every dime's worth of heat available from one ton or from 100,000 cubic feet of coal. Our product is the cheapest fuel available in the south, and those in the lower income brackets have difficulty procuring fuel even now, much less buying a higher priced product."

Voge said the organization will staff a full corps of engineers to work in Atlanta in co-operation with the newly created smoke abatement department.

Israel Kahn, 50, Dies
In Bainbridge Hospital
BAINBRIDGE, Ga., April 17.—Israel Kahn, 50, retired merchant, died in a local hospital today after a long illness.
He is survived by his wife; one daughter, Mrs. Sol Altman, of Thomasville, and one son, Leon A. Kahn, of Los Angeles.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock in Temple Bethel, Dr. E. A. Landau, of Albany, will officiate.

Dr. Gallup Says:

F. D. R. Hits Popularity High

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.
Copyright 1941.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 17.—President Roosevelt's personal popularity has climbed to an all-time high in the American Institute's seven-year presidential popularity index.

The latest nation-wide survey finds that 73 per cent of voters with opinions on the subject express a vote of confidence in Franklin D. Roosevelt. Only 27 per cent said they disapprove of him as President.

His new popularity figure tops the 71 per cent found supporting the President at the time of his third-term inaugural in January and the 72 per cent recorded in a similar Institute survey last month.

The President was re-elected last November with 55 per cent of the major-party vote.

More than 80 separate surveys have been conducted by the Institute on Roosevelt's standing with the public during the past seven years. These have shown that Roosevelt has never been a "minority" President—that is, his popularity, as recorded in these surveys, has never fallen below the 50-50 line, although there was a time—in September, 1935—when the President received only 50.5 per cent support.

Until this spring the highest points in the personal popularity index were 69 per cent in the beginning of 1934, and 70 per cent in May, 1940, when the Nazi armies were overrunning France.

Today's figure does not necessarily mean that the voting strength of the New Deal would run as high as 73 per cent if an election had to be held today. Rather, it is to be regarded as a vote of confidence of President Roosevelt at this stage of his third term.

This does not mean, however, that American voters who approve of Roosevelt necessarily approve of all his policies. In fact, experience has shown that many times the public has opposed some specific Roosevelt policy while at the same time approving Roosevelt in general.

Letter Carriers To Meet at Dublin

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
DUBLIN, Ga., April 17.—The Central Georgia Association of Letter Carriers will meet here Saturday afternoon and night, J. A. Dornay, secretary of the local branch and member of the association's executive board, announced today.

Registration will begin at 4 o'clock p. m. at the New Dublin hotel, and the business meeting will be held at 6:30.

A banquet will follow at 8 p. m. with Judge R. Earl Camp, of the Dublin judicial circuit, as toastmaster. Mayor Dee Sessions, on behalf of the city, and Postmaster M. J. Guyton, on behalf of the local postoffice, will welcome the group. Response will be made by H. O. Bloodworth, editor of the magazine, Georgia Letter Carrier.

Solicitor General J. Eugene

Cook, of the Dublin circuit, and John F. Morgan, of Nashville, Tenn., secretary of the executive board of the National Letter Carriers' Association, will be the speakers of the evening.

Jack Verner, president of the association, will preside.

SAVE 20% TO 30% ON FOOD

in food merchandising was clearly observable with the advent of the Super Market. Thrifty housekeepers as well as the casual shopper recognized the cheaper prices, wider variety, more dependable brands to be found in this new type store.

Organized to keep abreast of the times, the Big Apple Super Markets have made history. Not only the features common to the best Super Markets are to be found here, but one visit is convincing proof that here one may observe still another sensational trend in the grocery field: Mass displays of timely articles; pleasant clerks who are ever anxious to help you; spaciousness and beauty—all mark the Big Apple as the store of tomorrow.

AND REMEMBER—You actually save 20% to 30% when you trade at your Big Apple Market.

Aid by Police Urged in Draft Dodgers' Hunt

Boards Told To Consult FBI Only as Last Resort.

Georgia draft boards were urged yesterday by Adjutant General Sion B. Hawkins to obtain voluntary police assistance in locating delinquent registrants and to use every effort before turning such cases over to the FBI for prosecution as draft dodgers.

Most delinquency so far has been found to be due to careless on the part of registrants or ignorance of draft regulations, it was pointed out. Except in the case of obvious willful evasion of the draft, General Hawkins said, selective service policy has been as lenient as possible.

Registrants were again warned that the law makes it mandatory for them to keep in touch with their local boards and notify the board of any change of address.

In addition to using police assistance in locating registrants, local boards were urged to communicate with the persons listed on registration cards who would always know the registrant's address. Many can also be located through their employers, Hawkins said.

Boards should exhaust every means of getting information about the registrant before using the Department of Justice, it was added, in order to relieve the department as much as possible for "other important national defense work."

U. S. Attache at Rome
Reassigned to Lisbon

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP)—Major William C. Bentley Jr., who was withdrawn as assistant military attache at Rome at the request of the Italian government, was assigned today by the War Department to duty at Lisbon, Portugal.

The Army orders did not disclose what Bentley's new duties would be, stating merely that he had been ordered to proceed to Lisbon and report to the military attache there for duty.

Ornithological Group Session Set Tomorrow

The ninth biennial meeting of the Georgia Ornithological Society will be held tomorrow and Sunday at Emory University with registration beginning at 10:30 o'clock in the Little auditorium.

H. S. Peters, flyway biologist, Fish and Wildlife Service, United States Department of Interior; Dr. Harold Jones, of Mount Berry, Ga., and Bill Griffin, of Emory University, will conduct a demonstration on bird banding and taxidermy.

The session at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon will be presided over by Dr. R. J. H. DeLoach, of Statesboro, president of the Georgia Ornithological Society. Dr. Wallace Rogers, president of the Atlanta Bird Club, will discuss bird photography; Earle R. Greene and H. A. Carter, United States Wildlife Service, will give a report on the Okefenokee swamp and Dr. Harold H. Jones, regional vice president, will summarize the reports.

The Sunday morning program begins with a 7:30 o'clock breakfast at North Fulton park. A field trip will follow, conducted by Glenn Bell, field trip chairman of the Atlanta Bird Club, and Bill Griffin.

Bird House Contest
Victors Get Prizes

Welton Morgan, Raymond Alhadeff and Fletcher Dumas were awarded top prizes in their respective divisions at the annual bird house contest sponsored by the Atlanta Bird Club and held at the Boys' Club Wednesday night.

The contestants were segregated into divisions composed of midjets, juniors and seniors. Second prizes in the midjet junior and senior divisions were won by Frank Kennedy, Ted Demson and David Kennedy, respectively.

Mrs. H. H. Harris, Mr. J. Sam Slicer and Mr. Ralph Rampsey acted as judges, and the prizes were donated by Mrs. Harris, Mr. Slicer and Mrs. Verna Abercrombie.

RIGHTS FOR THE LEFTS—Even a left-handed stripper was present when 50 southpaws who are proud of being left-handed got together in a Chicago hotel for the first annual banquet of the International Association for the Protection of the Rights of Left-handers. The southpaw dancer is Bea Mathews.

Southpaws Join
In Fight for Lefties' Rights50 Protest Against World
Made Just for Right-Handers.

CHICAGO, April 17.—(AP)—Fifty southpaws who are proud to be left-handed were united yesterday in protest against always being left out.

At the first annual meeting of the International Association for Protection of the Rights of Left-handers Wednesday night, a left-handed monkey wrench was thrown into the machine that dictates that the world should be made for right-handers.

"We resent having to drag our sleeves through the mashed potatoes in order to reach the coffee," declared Judge Joseph A. Graber of the criminal court, chairman of the constitution committee.

The group included such well-known southpaws as Joe Sanders, orchestra leader; Emma Freitag, bowler; Joe Platak, national A. A. U. handball champion; Charles Hare, former No. 1 ranking tennis player of England; Lewis Ritman, Chicago Art Institute instructor and artist in his own right, and Larry French, Phil Cavarretta and Verne Olson, of the Chicago Cubs.

A few righties who crashed the gate were discovered, and served—small portions of leftovers.

Bag of Tickets Introduced in Cutcliffe TrialOne Day's 'Bug' Play
Was $2,366, Prosecution Says.

A burlap bag containing a total of 13,712 lottery tickets—allegedly representing a play of $2,366 for one day—was admitted in evidence yesterday in federal district court on the fourth day of the trial of Walter J. Cutcliffe on a four-count indictment charging he attempted to evade and defeat payment of federal income taxes totaling $25,218.

The tickets, according to the prosecution, J. Ellis Mundy and Raymond W. Martin, assistant United States attorneys, were seized by police April 8, 1935, and were wrapped in 21 separate bundles—each bundle representing the tickets gathered from "writers" by 21 "pick up" men allegedly employed by the Home Company, lottery firm formerly operated by Cutcliffe and the late Eddie Guyot, slain "baron of bugdom."

Principal government witness was Walter Milam, former employee of the Home Company, who testified regarding the manner in which the "bug" number—based on the middle digits of the total daily bond sales on the New York Stock Exchange—was furnished to the newspapers and the Home Company.

On one occasion, Milam testified, he gave an inaccurate number to one afternoon newspaper and the accurate number to another afternoon paper, due to the fact that the correct number—451—was a "bug" or "hot" number. He added that considerable confusion among "bug" players resulted from this variance in the two papers.

Other prosecution witnesses were Cecil Johnson, former employee of the Home Company, who described additional details of inner operations of the lottery business, and Joel Lunsford, bondsman, who told about a business arrangement he had with the Home Company relative to payment of fines and posting of bonds.

for the company's employees. Trial will be resumed this morning. District Judge E. Marvin Underwood set a 12-man jury as hearing the case.

Some one said the head-snapping Sarge has a new sweetie. He has. Fact is, whipping the boys into shape uses a lot of energy ... as energy goes down, temper soars. No wonder the Sarge grows angelic.

LET'S GO TO MARKET TOGETHER
Says Mrs. S. R. Dull

I wish we could go arm in arm together to your grocer to buy some flour. Maybe you would think you should get one kind for your cakes and another for your biscuits. But if you took my advice and bought White Lily, you would have the finest flour money can buy for all your baking purposes. After your first trial with White Lily, you would know why I have always endorsed this finer flour exclusively.

Something New In Burglar Tools

Something new in the way of burglar tools—a collapsible jimmy bar.

The jimmy, as essential to the burglar as a shovel to the ditch digger, a brush to a painter, or a knife to the butcher, is the instrument employed by burglars in prying open doors or windows.

Heretofore the burglar's jimmy has been about two feet long, rather hard to conceal, and a dead giveaway for the burglar.

Sheriff Loy Dixon, of Clayton county, yesterday found the collapsible jimmy while searching a suspicious automobile abandoned near Jonesboro.

The tool, Sheriff Dixon told State Patrol officials, is carefully machined, can be unscrewed and folded up and carried thoroughly concealed in the burglar's pocket.

Sheppard Post Appointment Causing Furor

Isolationist Reynolds To Fight Move To Waive Seniority Rule.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Reported plans of administration leaders to waive the traditional seniority rules of the senate as a means of sidetracking Senator Bob Reynolds, of North Carolina, from the important chairmanship of the Military Affairs Committee, threatened a congressional furor today.

The Tarheel senator, isolationist opponent of the administration's foreign policy, brought the situation into the open by acknowledging he had heard word of the sidetracking plan and announcing that he was prepared to "fight it out to the limit."

The chairmanship of the Senate Military Affairs Committee was left vacant by the death last week of Senator Morris Sheppard, of Texas, who had held the post for the last eight and a half years. Under seniority rules that have been seldom violated, Senator Reynolds is in line for the vacancy, but because of his open opposition to much of the administration's foreign policy and a pronounced anti-British attitude there has been serious talk among majority leaders of passing over him.

Next to Reynolds in line for the post is Senator Elbert D. Thomas, Democrat of Utah, a thoroughgoing New Dealer in full sympathy with the administration's foreign policy.

To deny Reynolds the chairmanship by an outright vote might precipitate an open battle that would not only split party lines, but bring the isolationists into the fight, provoking a bitter debate. It might offer the opportunity for isolationists to open up a discussion of the loose-leaf program again. In lieu of this procedure, therefore, some administration supporters have suggested taking no action—leaving the committee without an official head. They say it would be better to have things this way than to have the isolationist North Carolinian sitting in the chairman's seat, where he might delay consideration of important defense legislation, if he willed.

"I have heard of these rumors," Senator Reynolds said today upon returning to the capital from Senator Sheppard's funeral in Texas. "But regardless, I am in the fight for the chairmanship of the Military Affairs Committee, a position to which I am entitled on the basis of seniority and service—a rule which has prevailed in the senate through the ages and which I insist shall be followed. No one has come to me officially about the matter, but I propose to insist upon my election as chairman of the important post since I favor national defense and feel that I am eminently equipped to carry forward the administration's program in this respect."

Only once, so far as a hasty examination of the record shows, has the senate departed from seniority rules in recent years. That was a few years back under the Hoover administration when Senator Cotton Ed Smith, of South Carolina, a Democrat, was elected chairman of the Agricultural Committee while the Republicans were in control. A deadlock between Republicans, Progressives and Democrats led to the deviation.

SHE LOVED A SPY

Joan Finds Herself Being Watched; Tapping on Her Door Awakens Her

By Sylvia Taylor

SYNOPSIS. Joan Leland loses her secretarial job when Arthur Mulford, San Francisco importer, quits business. She answers an ad and Karl Miller hires her at a North Beach night club. This handsome, powerfully built man with a slight foreign accent fascinates her. When Paul Sherman, Karl's manager, sees Karl kissing Joan he warns her Karl will never marry her but soon Karl makes her very happy by proposing. Her older sister, Sybil, wants her to quit her Club Elite job but Sybil accepts a beauty parlor job. Karl gets for her through a Mrs. Murdoch. Karl sends Joan out of the office when Eric Strom, a German, calls. She hears a shot, finds Strom dead and in front of Paul. Karl accuses her of the murder. He admits he's a spy, says Eric tried to double-cross him, warns Joan not to notify the police, says he has wife in Germany, and that Joan will be closely guarded. At home she finds a note from Sybil: "Something terrible has happened." Mrs. Murdoch says she had to let Sybil go for incompetency and then she threatened suicide, but Paul, who confides to Joan that he is Eric O'Malley, a FBI man, is sure Karl is holding Sybil. Through an ad Karl employs a pretty blonde in a club at his club. She is really Paul's sister, Patricia, a runaway from her Brooklyn home, and he warns her not to let Karl see her. In a secret room at the beauty shop Paul finds a small radio transmitter and stolen plans of a bomber. Meanwhile Karl has proposed to Paul and learned Paul's identity. He surprises Paul and Joan and forces them aboard a freighter.

INSTALLMENT XXXII.

"Not a chance," Joan declared, smiling up at him. "And another thing. I want you to promise you won't put any more sleeping powders in my tea. I might miss something."

"It's a deal, if you'll promise not to carry any more concealed weapons."

Then she was serious. "I didn't tell you about the gun because I was afraid you'd take it away from me. I didn't want to use it, but when I saw Karl was going to shoot you, I had to do something. I love you so much Paul! I'd do anything... anything."

And there in the sleepy sunlit garden he drew her into his arms.

During the next three days Joan's fortune began to waver. It seemed so ridiculously simple for them to escape. There was a train three times a week to Nogales, the border. None of Karl's men had appeared; indeed Joan had not seen any other Americans at all. A few Mexican businessmen were staying at the hotel and several honeymoon couples, but outside of them no one seemed to even speak English. Several times Joan had passed the small American consulate. If Paul would only let her go in and explain things surely the consul would help them. But Paul did not want help, she remembered. He wanted to see the thing through by himself. She understood his devotion to duty, but in her heart she longed to escape, to go home, to be married, to give up the chase which seemed to grow more dangerous and futile all the time.

"I don't know why I'm sticking around here," Thomas complained as the three of them sat in the deserted hotel bar watching the shafts of sunshine fall through gridded iron windows.

"You're staying because you're afraid to leave," Paul said, "and you're smart enough to realize it." Joan leaned her elbows on the smooth, old-fashioned round table. "But if Karl's men are here, why don't they do something? What are they waiting for?"

Paul looked into her earnest young face, her searching green eyes. She looked like a little girl with her black hair tucked up on her head like that. She trusted him completely. She was more sure of him than he was of himself. For a moment he wondered how he could lead her into more trouble. He wondered what she would do if he told her the truth. If he said, "Joan, I don't know what's going to happen next; I'm following my hunches..." But Paul O'Malley was not the type of man to admit defeat, especially before it took place. He had come through worse scrapes than this.

Aloud he said, "Keep your chin up, honey! It won't be long."

"That's what you said three days ago," Thomas reminded him. "This place is driving me crazy." He looked around the empty bar in disgust. The bartender dozed. The warm sweet air was heavy and languorous. "Where is everybody?"

"Didn't you ever hear of a siesta?" Paul inquired.

"I've heard of it," Thomas said, "but people who have Karl Miller's gang after them aren't apt to waste time taking siestas. Not for me! But look here, why don't we get out of here?"

"Maybe he's right," Joan urged. "We could try it anyway, couldn't we?"

"Nothing doing. I'm sorry you two have to stay but it isn't safe for you to leave alone. Believe me, it wouldn't work."

Thomas sighed. "Okay, if you say so..." Bartender, he yelled, "bring me another bottle of beer." The bartender shook his head, muttered, "Si, senor," and hurried over with the beer. But at the sight of Joan he paused reflectively.

"You are Miss Joan Leland?"

"Why?" Paul asked flatly.

The bartender broke into Spanish. There was a torrent of words and gestures.

"What does he say?" Joan asked. "It seems there was a man looking for you here. An American. He gave him 10 pesos to get some information about you. He doesn't know what his name was though."

"Karl?"

"Not a chance. Karl wouldn't be apt to row all the way to shore. And the ship isn't in sight. I've been watching to see."

"But who in the world could it have been?"

The bartender, feet on the bar, had returned to his siesta. "What a country!" Thomas muttered. "If someone wanted Joan, why didn't they telephone the hotel? We're all registered under our own names."

Paul laughed. "This is what is known as the subtle approach."

"Paul! Be serious!" Joan insisted.

"Okay," Paul said, leaning forward and surveying her with his kind brown eyes. "It's probably one of Karl's men. They want to get the idea across that they're around, and this is their way of doing it. They may want to make further contact with you. I don't know. They're probably picking on you instead of me as a gentle warning that if anything goes wrong, you'll be the one to pay for it. However, that's looking at it in the worst possible light. He took her hand. "Don't worry, honey, I'll do all I can."

Maybe Karl has some Mexicans working for him," Thomas suggested.

"I don't think so. Besides, this man spoke English, and if he had been able to speak Spanish he certainly would have done so, because the bartender was barely able to understand him."

"So now we start waiting all over again," Thomas asked.

"That's about it," Thomas went for a long walk that afternoon through the narrow sunny streets of Mazatlan. They saw perfume shops, the general merchandise stores where silver, yard goods and weaving were displayed. They saw the market place where almost everything from dolls to fresh meat was exhibited in wild array on the crowded counters. Each merchant chanted the values of his particular wares. There were toy animals woven of straw, blue glass mugs of all sizes, baskets, hats, shoes, fruit, bolts of flowered cotton. Once Joan caught a huge snake contentedly winding itself behind a large pottery jar.

She shivered. "Let's go," she urged.

They visited the cathedral, the park, and finally took in a movie. The film was very old and the subtitles were in Spanish but it helped to pass the time. When they came out, they found that night had fallen. They walked leisurely back to the hotel. Dinner was never served until nine o'clock.

As they turned on to the long avenida which bordered the sea, one of the few automobiles they had seen turned the corner sharply.

"That man!" Joan cried. "I have the strangest feeling I know him! I couldn't see him very well, but I'm sure of it."

"Maybe it's the man who was trying to get in touch with you," Thomas said. "Maybe it's one of Karl's men that you used to see around the club in San Francisco."

"That could easily be possible," Paul said.

"But I don't connect him with anyone at the club," Joan said puzzled. "It gives me the queerest feeling."

She was still worrying about it after dinner when Thomas announced that he was going to "do the town."

"Watch your step," Paul advised. "Don't get absent-minded and try to escape."

"Don't worry about it, Mr. O'Malley! You're got me buffaloed. I'll stick around and watch the fireworks."

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Astrologist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21 and April 19 (ARIES)—The morning hours and until 2:45 p. m. may be a variable day. Be careful in what you say and do. The entire day favors inspirational efforts, artistic endeavor, pleasant contacts and for popularity. The evening hours favor romantic interests.

April 20 and May 20 (TAURUS)—An excellent day for putting new ideas and new plans into effect, contacting relatives and close friends. The day favors literary efforts, educational matters, pleasures.

May 21 and June 20 (GEMINI)—Previous to 2:45 p. m. appears to be the better part of the day, when you should make every effort to get conditions set in motion for progress. An excellent period for literary efforts, signing papers, conferences and making contracts. After 2:45 p. m. does not especially favor taking on additional financial responsibilities.

June 21 and July 22 (CANCER)—During the entire day and until 8:21 favors work that is original in nature and that requires independence of action. The influences after 8:21 p. m. are not so favorable.

July 23 and August 22 (LEO)—There are days when it is better to wait or concentrate on affairs already started, for new beginnings either wear into nothingness or run into obstacles. This is one of the days when you may feel that if you have accomplished nothing, but if you have plugged along you will find that your time has not been wasted.

August 23 and September 22 (VIRGO)—While new beginnings may have a tendency to run into obstacles if started before 11:30 a. m., old practices tical ideas may be pushed forward to advantage. Before 5:04 p. m. favors matters pertaining to land and property. The remainder of the day suggests using moderation in all things.

September 23 and October 22 (LIBRA)—After 10:47 a. m. favors practical work and dealings with older people of a conservative nature, but does not favor making sudden changes. The period suggests sticking to routine.

October 23 and November 21 (SCORPIO)—Before 3 p. m. favors dealings in affairs of a conservative nature and for real estate transactions. After 3 p. m. favors matters of a mechanical nature, dealings with the opposite sex.

November 22 and December 21 (SAGITTARIUS)—The day favors matters pertaining to the ground, such as real estate, mining, moving. After 6:01 p. m. favors social affairs and sports.

December 22 and January 19 (CAPRICORN)—Previous to 12:19 noon favors appointments, meetings, financial affairs, public affairs. After 12:19 noon favors attending to old duties or matters that require patience or perseverance.

January 20 and February 18 (AQUARIUS)—The better vibrations of the day operate between 8:53 a. m. and 4:14 p. m. An excellent period for undertaking new plans and carrying out old ideas.

February 19 and March 20 (PISCES)—Before 5:06 p. m. indicates a time when you may ask favors with the assurance that they will be granted. A good period to start new ventures, new business deals. After 5:06 p. m. your feelings may be easily ruffled and caution in all things should be the keynote.

PARSON'S PREMIER—"Tobacco Road," the story which has topped all records as a stage production with its extended run on Broadway and which has played before millions of theatergoers since it was made into a motion picture, will be portrayed on the radio tonight during Louella Parsons' "Hollywood Premier" program (WGST at 10 o'clock).

Written by the famous author, Erskine Caldwell, "Tobacco Road" is laid in the red clay hills of a Georgia county and tells the story of an impoverished sharecropper family which fights for its meager existence. Comedy and pathos are packed into the story which some critics describe as one of the most powerful dramas ever to play on Gotham's Great White Way.

Tonight's stars will be Charles Grapewin and Gene Tierney. They will be cast in the same roles that they played in the screen version. Louella Parsons will present the stars and will answer questions about the movie played sent in by the radio audience.

MANNERS SINGS—A medley of hill music will be a highlight of the "Friday Concert" program during the broadcast to be heard over WSB at 8 o'clock tonight.

Lucille Manners, beautiful soprano, and Ross Graham, baritone, will be the soloists. The orchestra will be under the direction of Dr. Frank Blake.

The program will include:
"She'll Be Coming Around the Mountain".....Orchestra
"Arkansas Traveler".....Orchestra
"Silver Threads Among the Gold".....Orchestra
"Pop Goes the Weasel".....Orchestra
"Red River Valley".....Orchestra
"Con Vie Partir".....Miss Manners
"Villal" by LeMay.....Miss Manners
"Rose of Tralee" by Glover.....Miss Manners
